President Cuts Dollar Value to 59 Cents

SETS NEW PRICE OF GOLD AT $35; OPENS MARKET

Treasury Reaps Big Profit.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Your dollar is now worth a trifle more than 59 cents in gold.

By a proclamation signed at 3:10 o'clock this afternoon President Roosevelt carried into effect the long heralded devaluation of the dollar for the purpose primarily of inducing a rise in commodity prices and expansion of business as a means of restoring prosperity.

What the President actually did was to proclaim a reduction of the gold content of the dollar from the 25.8 grains nine-tenths fine, which has been the fixed quantity for a century, to 15 and 5-21 grains nine-tenths fine. This reduction brings the gold value of the dollar down from 100 cents to 59.06 cents.

First Change in 100 Years.

This is the first time that the gold content of the dollar has been changed since June 28, 1834, in the régime of another Democratic President, Andrew Jackson, when the quantity was reduced from 27 grains to 25.8 grains.

The President acted today under authorization by congress to revalue the dollar at not less than 50 nor more than 60 cents. The establishment of the new value at 59 cents is not necessarily permanent. The President can change the value as often as he sees fit within the range of 50 and 60 cents.

He may do so to carry out his project of a managed currency whereby the value of the dollar would be so varied as to stabilize prices. Or he may do so in consequence of developments indicating that the value fixed today is too high or of international arrangements for stabilization of all currencies on new levels.

Public to See Little Change.

The revaluation of the dollar will mean little to anybody—for the time being, at least. There are still 100 cents in the dollar, though in gold they are worth only 59 per cent of what they were worth for a century. The dollar will buy just as much as it did yesterday and it will take just as many dollars to pay debts.

But the change will be felt gradually during the next six months or a year if the theories of Profs. Warren and Rogers, the President's monetary advisers, work out according to specifications.

According to the theory the cheapening of the dollar will produce a gradual rise of commodity prices. The rise of prices will induce an increased volume of business. Producers will make more money and will be able to pay increased wages. Everybody will have more money and will be able to pay his debts. That is the Roosevelt blueprint of the restoration of prosperity.

Others Not So Sure.

On the other hand, there are just as many experts, if not more, who say the scheme will not work in a country so large as the United States. They say the President's brain trust has got th cart before the horse; that increased volume of business results in a rise of commodity prices, but that a rise of commodity prices does not increase volume of business.

To revive business, they contend, it is necessary to dispel uncertainty of the future value of the dollar and fear of inflation of the currency, neither of which is removed by the President's monetary experimentation.

By the time the President issued his proclamation the treasury had in its possession gold aggregating at its former value 4 billion 29 million dollars, including the 2 billion 600 millions of gold taken over from the federal reserve banks. The moment the President reduced the value of the dollar to 59.06 cents the gold in possession of the treasury became worth $6,821,902,800. By this financial sleight of hand the President picked out of thin air a paper profit of $2,792,902,800 for the government.

Reserve Banks Get Certificates.

The treasury paid the reserve banks for their gold in a new species of gold certificates which are now being run off the presses. This certificate states that the specified number of dollars

State Demands Death Penalty at Touhy Trial

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Death in the electric chair, as provided by Illinois law for ransom kidnapers, was demanded by the state yesterday for the three Touhy gangsters charged with the abduction of John Factor, wealthy speculator. The case will go to the jury today in the court of Judge Michael Feinberg after defense and prosecution complete their final arguments.

The defense, which has specialized in spectacular gestures throughout the trial, put a sudden end to the taking of evidence yesterday noon by concluding its case after only five witnesses had testified in behalf of the gangsters.

Kearney Demands Death Penalty.

Assistant State's Attorney Marshall E. Kearney began a résumé of the state's case later in the day. In the midst of a description of the ordeal suffered by Factor during his twelve days of captivity last July, Kearney turned and pointed to Roger Touhy, Gus Schaefer and Albert Kator, and shouted:

"These men, gentlemen of the jury, boasted to Factor when they released him, that they had been 'good' to him. They had not murdered him. That very boast should be enough to convince you that they merit death in the electric chair for their crime."

Defendants Not Put on Stand.

None of the three defendants took the witness stand to assert his innocence. There was no evidence to support the oft-repeated assertion of Defense Attorney William Scott Stewart that he would show that the Capone syndicate was behind the prosecution of the Touhys.

Two defense witnesses, one a brewer's agent and the other a Roman Catholic priest, testified that Roger Touhy had denied to them on July 8 that he had Factor in his custody. [Factor was kidnaped July 1 and released July 12 upon the payment of $70,000 ransom.]

Woman Offers Touhy Alibi.

Another defense witness, a woman friend of Mrs. Clara Touhy, wife of Roger, gave Touhy an alibi for the night of June 30 and early morning of July 1, when Factor was abducted by a number of armed men near the Dells roadhouse on Dempster road west of Evanston.

A fourth witness, an eye specialist, testified that a blindfolded man has difficulty in seeing for four or five minutes when the bandage over his eyes is removed. [Factor had testified that he recognized Touhy and Kator when the bandages were removed from his eyes for a few seconds during his captivity.]

Stewart Rests His Case.

A fifth witness, a court reporter, gave relatively unimportant testimony and Defense Attorney Stewart then remarked, calmly enough: "The defense rests."

The move was as unexpected as when the same lawyer suddenly accepted the last four of the twelve jurors for the trial without asking them a single question. He has made several other surprise moves of a similar nature.

The state had taken six days to build up its case. The defense took less than two hours to introduce testimony which was intended to refute the state's evidence.

Two Wives in Courtroom.

Mrs. Touhy was in court when the trial, in so far as the taking of evidence was concerned, ended. So was Mrs. Rella Factor, wife of the kidnaping victim. Factor was in the Criminal Courts building, but did not enter the courtroom.

After the resting of the defense there was a delay while attorneys for both sides consulted with the judge concerning the written instructions to be given by the court to the jury on the law in the case.

Under the new Illinois court prac-

ADMITS CRIMES; DENIES PART IN LINDBERGH CASE

Three Chicago policemen assigned to government duty walked into a barber shop at 4823 North Damen avenue yesterday afternoon and arrested Verne Sankey, former South Dakota rancher, who set out two years ago to raise the mortgage from his old homestead and quickly turned two kidnaping jobs that netted $72,000.

Cheerfully Sankey admitted collecting $60,000 ransom for releasing Charles Boettcher II. of Denver and $12,000 for freeing Haskell Bohn of St. Paul, Minn. But he emphatically denied any connection with the kidnaping and murder of Charles Lindbergh Jr., son of America's foremost air hero, in March, 1932. Government agents here questioned him closely on the Lindbergh case.

U. S. to Investigate Movements.

Although officials of the federal department of justice and authorities in New Jersey, where the Lindbergh abduction occurred, were arded in their references to Sankey's possible connection with this kidnaping, his arrest was hailed as of the utmost importance and an intensive investigation of his whereabouts at the time was promised.

"America's public enemy No. 1 has been captured," exulted Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general in charge of kidnaping prosecutions, who was in New York yesterday when he learned of the capture. "We shall see that he is properly guarded and brought to trial."

Mr. Keenan refused to talk about the Lindbergh case, but guessers hazarded the opinion that department of justice men could consider no one but the Lindbergh kidnaper as the country's foremost public enemy.

Cites Lindbergh Clews.

From County Attorney M. F. Kinkead of St. Paul came more definite allegations linking the sensational crime with the career of Sankey. Evidence had been found, he averred, showing that Sankey put in several telephone calls to New Jersey points while the search for the missing infant was at its height. A second point the Minnesota prosecutor stressed was an alleged resemblance of Sankey's handwriting to that found on notes demanding ransom which were sent to Col. Lindbergh.

New Jersey authorities contented themselves with announcing that Sankey, like all known kidnapers, was a suspect in their investigation. Melvin H. Purvis, chief investigator for the department of justice here, after questioning the prisoner for several hours, said that he maintained it was "foolish" to accuse him of the Lindbergh murder.

"Sankey," said Mr. Purvis, "admits taking Boettcher from his home and holding him prisoner on the Sankey ranch in Gann Valley, S. D. That was last February. He also confesses that he kidnaped Bohn, the son of a refrigerator manufacturer, in June, 1932. He had nothing to do, he claims, with the Hamm and the Bremer cases in St. Paul recently, or with any other kidnapings."

Captors of Kidnaper.

The captors of the South Dakotan are Policemen Thomas E. Curtin, John M. Lynch, and Edward J. Donovan, who were assigned several months ago to assist Mr. Purvis' forces in their search for Sankey.

When they walked into the barber shop, which is conducted by William Mueller, they found their quarry lying back in a chair with an apron spread over him and his eyes fixed on the ceiling. A barber was stropping a razor preparing to shave him.

Leaving Donovan at the door, Lynch and Curtin stepped beside the chair and placed their pistols against Sankey's partly bald head.

"Don't move," said Curtin. "We know you and you are under arrest."

Find Him Carrying Poison.

The fugitive made one convulsive movement, as if he intended to rise. Thinking better of it, he remained quiet. After swiftly searching him the policemen led him into a room behind the shop and stripped him to the skin. In one of his pockets they discovered half a dozen pills.

"Poison," said the prisoner. "I would rather have killed myself than be captured. I admit I'm Sankey and I did the Boettcher and the Bohn jobs. What more do you want to know?"

After being told that he could re-

HARVARD HOUSE PLAN PUTS NEW LIFE IN SCHOOL

Old Homelike Air Is Recaptured.

A series of articles describing recent developments in eastern educational institutions will be published in The Tribune. The following is the first of the dispatches:

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Harvard's widely discussed house plan, now in its third year of operation, in the opinion of students and faculty is fast recapturing the intimate life and close contacts of the early colleges before the era of expansion set in.

A day of talk in Harvard yard with undergraduates and professors disclosed some of the present trends in America's oldest establishment of education—the first freshman class entered in the year 1638—as follows:

Twice as many students are now going in for athletics as a result of the policy of "athletics for all." Contests between the seven houses has put more men into intramural athletics than in formal intercollegiate athletics.

More Seek Honors.

A notable increase has occurred in the number of candidates for student honors.

Use of the libraries has more than doubled, due largely to house libraries, with comfortable chairs and reading lamps, where smoking is allowed. The libraries strike the observer as one of the important features of the new plan.

Incidentally, as to college drinking, student habits appear to be reflecting those of the general public, with indications that since repeal there is less consumption of hard liquor than under prohibition. Beer is served in the house dining rooms, at separate tables. In Boston the liquor stores, restaurants and barrooms report that, after the first wave of buying in December, after the 18th amendment was kicked out of the constitution, sales settled down and now that it is legalized the demand for liquor is less than they expected.

Students Taper Off.

Similarly at Harvard the students are said to have tapered off somewhat. Students say the undergraduate body still does its share, but the old incentive furnished by prohibition has vanished and the hip flask has become passé now.

In the subjects the undergraduates are picking there has been a decline in philosophy and a pickup in psychology. Economics has fallen off somewhat, due perhaps to the weak batting average of some of the economists in various parts of the country and to the wide differences of opinion among the economists.

History has taken a great jump in popularity. In fact, the great trend now seems to be in the direction of history, the biochemical sciences and the science of government. In the latter field Harvard students are now going for local, state and national government, where a few years ago the trend was more toward the international aspects of the subject.

Students More Serious.

Tutors report one trend has been towards increased seriousness of students in their academic attitude. In the whoopee era there was a rush by many to get through and catch a quick job selling bonds. Since the depression, though, life has become more real, and the tutors say it is reflected in student intensity.

The House plan, which is heralded as bringing a new world to Harvard, was a dream of some of the university leaders for a quarter of a century. It was made possible by the gift of Edward S. Harkness, himself a Yale man. It applies to Harvard college, which is a department of the university separate from the various graduate and professional schools which have grown up around it, including the graduate schools of arts and sciences, law, theology, medicine, public health, architecture, city planning, business administration, and education.

Harvard college itself, which this year has 3,500 students, long ago recognized that the undergraduate body has grown until it was an "amorphous mass" which could not be handled according to the old traditions. The aim of the house plan was to distribute the upper class men into residential units of 200 or 300.

RED BARKER'S PAL IS SHOT TO DEATH IN HOODLUM FEUD

William Evans, suspected murderer and bank robber and a henchman of the late George [Red] Barker, notorious gunman, was slain late last night with revolver bullets and shotgun blasts in an alley at the rear of 1805 South 51st avenue, Cicero.

Police were investigating the murder as having a connection with the killing of William (Three Fingered Jack) White, who was shot to death a week ago by unknown assassins in his Oak Park apartment.

Beside Evans' body in the alley were found a number of empty shotgun shells. His head and the upper part of the body were riddled with the slugs and he had been shot through the heart with a pistol bullet. Neighbors saw an automobile speed out of the alley after hearing shots.

Evans, who was 35 years old, had been sought as a suspect in the murder of Joseph Pawlewski, 5953 West 32d place, Cicero, who was killed last Oct. 5 in a saloon at 5125 West 29th street, Cicero. Police records showed he had a long record as a criminal, having served a term in the Michigan City penitentiary for burglary, a year in the House of Correction for larceny, and had been arrested many times as a suspect in other crimes.

In the victim's pocket police found a .38 caliber automatic pistol, which they said was of the type used by the Dillinger gang of murderers and bank robbers. It had not been fired.

KIDNAPED FROM INDIANAPOLIS; IS FREED IN CHICAGO

J. Paul Rich, 27 years old, of Indianapolis, head of a refrigerating distributing concern bearing his name, reported to the South Chicago police last night that two gunmen kidnaped him near his office yesterday and forced him to drive them 170 miles to the outskirts of Chicago. His captors sat beside him as he drove and prodded him with a pistol from time to time, he said.

The men had a heavy suitcase in which Rich said he believed they carried guns. They ordered him to stop the car near a barbecue stand at 106th street and Indianapolis avenue, where they had talked of meeting a man named "George."

Robbed of Two $2.50 Gold Pieces, Mother's Gift

Michael J. Hassett, 73 years old, 7641 Kingston avenue, a retired railroad engineer, was overpowered by two bandits in an alley at the rear of his home last night. They took his $50 watch, $4 in currency and two $2.50 gold pieces given him by his mother 32 years ago.

Mystery Veils Insull Case; Still in Athens

BY EUGENE SPECK.

(Picture on Back Page.)

ATHENS, Feb. 1.—[Thursday.]—Like a modernistic play which never comes to final and decisive act, the drama of Samuel Insull has moved senselessly to an inconclusive curtain, with the old man still in Greece.

The conditions of his stay are best described in the government newspaper, Messager d'Athenes, as "tacit." What promised to be a production with a punch at the end trails off into asterisks.

Residence Permit Expires.

That is the condition of the case this morning as far as is known. The fugitive Chicago utilities promoter's residence permit ended at midnight. It had been expected that he would skip in a hurry, as he did when he slipped into Greece from Italy a year and a half ago. Then he made his getaway from Italy only two hours ahead of the United States government warrant which had followed him from Paris.

Instead, he is not traveling at all. The Tribune learns that the bags and trunks of the Insull menage are still locked up in the basement store rooms of the flat building in which the 74 year old fugitive has created a household embracing himself, Mrs. Insull, Mme. Helene Kouryoumdjoglou, his intimate friend, and the latter's 14 year old boy, Thomas. The baggage altogether includes 35 pieces and none has been disturbed.

Case a Mystery.

The only official facts to be learned this morning are that the old man is here, but by the grace of whom, what, or for how long cannot be discovered. It was announced that the government would make up its mind yesterday on the report of the two government doctors assigned to examine Insull after his appeal, based on ill health, against expulsion. Those doctors reported against him.

At noon yesterday the foreign office said the cabinet council would consider the case last night. But instead of gathering at the designated meeting place the members of the cabinet assembled at the foreign office, where they pursued a prolonged discussion of the Balkan pact, due to be signed some time next month.

Anyone who spent his time for two days checking trains and boats and most of the night sitting outside the Insull flat now is able to realize that these efforts were all lost motion.

Although Insull had a mysterious couple as callers, who remained until 12:30 a. m. yesterday, it was apparent that the activity, whatever it meant, was not due to preparations for departure.

Government spokesmen, including members of the cabinet, earnestly declare that as soon as Insull is able to travel he will go. Yet with the medical report in the cabinet's hands for three days, asserting that Insull is able to travel by land or sea, the cabinet is delaying action.

(Dispatches from Washington yesterday said the state department had been informed by the American legation in Athens that Insull would be deported at midnight, Athens time. No explanation had been received in Washington early this morning for the Greek government's failure to carry out the deportation.)

late his whole history as a leader among kidnapers to Mr. Purvis, Sankey told the police that his first thought when the pistols were placed against his head was to flee and die by their bullets.

"But I didn't have the courage to try it," he added.

Explains His Bushy Beard.

The former rancher, a stockily built man of 42, had a growth of nearly two week's beard on his face. He hastened to explain how this came about.

"I had some moles on my face and I knew I was described in the circulars sent to the authorities as having them," he said. "I went to a doctor and got them burned off. Since then my face was too sore to shave. Today the last burn was healed and I decided it was time for a barber to work on me."

Taken to the office of Mr. Purvis, Sankey reiterated his confessions. He said that he had kept $30,000 of the Boettcher ransom and the entire $12,000 paid for the release of Bohn. Accomplices had already admitted the crimes and accused him of participation in them.

Woman Companion Seized.

He led the investigators to an apartment at 4062 North Kedzie avenue, where he had been living with Helen Mattern, 28 years old. She was taken into custody. In the flat were found $3,430, two pistols, and a quantity of ammunition.

Concerning the rest of the money, Sankey said vaguely that he had spent it. Certainly none of it went back to fulfil his purpose of lifting the ranch mortgage. The debt has been foreclosed and Sankey's wife, Fern, is living on the place only by sufferance. She was indicted as an accomplice in the Boettcher case, but was dismissed.

The prisoner declined to discuss an allegation made by Prosecutor Kinkead that he had planned to kidnap either Babe Ruth or Jack Dempsey. On his ranch home, it was said, records bearing on the earning power and resources of the two sports stars were found.

Two Pals in Prison.

Sankey is the third of his band to be captured. Arthur Youngberg and Carl Pearce, who confessed their part in the Boettcher abduction, are now serving terms in Leavenworth penitentiary. Gordon Alcorn, who was once a fireman on the railroad, with Sankey as his engineer—that was before they became kidnapers—is missing. The Boettcher family had offered $9,000 reward for Sankey and $6,000 for Alcorn.

JUDGE TO LEAVE INSURANCE CASE IN JURY'S HANDS

Judge Benjamin Epstein yesterday refused to direct verdicts of acquittal for six men charged with conspiracy to loot the cash assets of the Security Life Insurance company and its affiliate, the Northern States Insurance company. After listening to arguments all afternoon the judge ruled that it was up to the jury to decide whether the defendants were engaged in a conspiracy.

One of the defendants, Attorney John H. S. Lee, an associate in the law firm headed by former Senator Charles S. Deneen, argued at length for a directed verdict of acquittal in his own behalf.

"It is not what I believe that counts," said Judge Epstein in denying the plea of Attorney Lee. "It is up to the jury to decide whether the contradictory evidence is credible or otherwise."

A week ago when the state concluded its evidence in the case Judge Epstein directed a verdict of acquittal for Attorney Lee on 10 of the 18 counts in the indictment.

TRAYLOR SHOWS IMPROVEMENT IN PNEUMONIA FIGHT

Physicians attending Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, said last night that he had shown steady improvement during the day and evening hours in his battle against pneumonia. Mr. Traylor is ill at his home, 426 Barry avenue.

A second injection of pneumonia serum was made early in the evening as a precautionary measure to give the patient additional resistance. The serum was prepared from blood given by Mrs. Traylor, who recovered from a slight attack of pneumonia shortly before her husband became ill.

Dr. William R. Cubbins, spokesman for the banker's five physicians, said that Mr. Traylor "has a long row to hoe, but is coming along nicely."

Defense Rests Case After Only Five Witnesses.

tice act, these instructions will be devoid of all the legal verbiage which formerly made instructions such a mystery to the layman. Instead of being read rapidly by the judge they will be given to the jury to study at its leisure.

Prosecutor Begins Argument.

Prosecutor Kearney began his argument by outlining the law on kidnaping for ransom. He pointed out that the jury may fix any penalty upon a finding of guilty, from a minimum of five years in the penitentiary to the maximum of death.

He recalled the evidence offered by more than fifty state witnesses on the kidnaping of Factor, his captivity and ransom.

Barred by legal rules from commenting upon the fact that the defendants did not take the stand to deny their guilt, the prosecutor pointed out the significance of this fact by repeatedly remarking, when citing the identifications of the defendants and other facts, that the state's evidence had not been contradicted by any one.

"John Factor positively identified Gus Schaefer as one of the men he saw on the scene of the kidnaping that night," Kearney told the jury. "He identified Willie Sharkey [who committed suicide in St. Paul] as another. That identification has not been disputed in this record."

Recalls Identification of Touhy.

Kearney told of the threat of one gangster, identified by Factor as Kator, to cut Factor's ear off and send it to his wife as a souvenir. He recalled the dramatic part of Factor's testimony where he recounted the abuse of the kidnaping gang's leader, whom Factor called "The Voice" and whom he identified as Touhy.

The prosecutor then referred to the fact that certain state's witnesses have been boarded at the expense of the state and kept under guard.

"I'll leave it to you," he commented, "whether an identifying witness against a powerful mob of this sort does not need the protection of the state of Illinois.

"These Touhy gangsters were gunmen, heavy men in the beer business. They were violators of the prohibition law and when that law was repealed they had to turn to something else. They turned to the kidnaping business."

Stewart Opens Argument.

Defense Attorney Stewart opened his argument to the jury after Kearney had finished.

"The state has proved only a circumstantial case," Stewart asserted. "Factor stands alone in the giving of direct evidence. And he is not to be believed. In weighing his testimony, you have the right to take into consideration what he is and what he has been.

"There was some question as to whether Factor was kidnaped at all. But notwithstanding that, the state has not proved that these defendants were guilty of a kidnaping beyond a reasonable doubt.

"There is no dispute that the defendants rented and lived in the Glenview house. But we dispute the fact that Factor was kept there as he has testified. Factor never identified that place until after he knew it was where the Touhys congregated.

"You cannot trust the word of such a man when considering the taking of the life or liberty of these defendants."

At this point court was adjourned until this morning, when Attorney Stewart will finish his argument and Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley will make the closing argument for the prosecution.

Testimony for the Defense.

The defense rested its case at 12:15 p. m. after its five witnesses had been heard.

The Rev. Joseph F. Weber, for 40 years pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of the Assumption in Indianapolis, proved to be Touhy's most enthusiastic defender at the morning session. The priest, a gaunt man of ascetic type, 70 years old, asserted emphatically that Touhy "could not" have kidnaped Factor, in his opinion.

On July 7, 1933, when Factor had been missing a week, Father Weber said he received a phone call from Lieut. Leo Carr of the Chicago police.

"You know the Touhy boys, we are informed," Carr told the priest, according to the latter's testimony. "We wish you'd get in touch with them. We believe they have Factor and they may be induced to return him through you."

Father Weber said he agreed to come to Chicago and arrived the following day, July 8, bringing with him Michael Hanrahan, a brewer's agent, who was acquainted with the Touhys.

Touhy Sends Car for Them.

"Hanrahan called Roger Touhy at his home," the priest testified. Roger sent a young fellow with a car down to take us out to his home.

"I told Roger the police force was certain that he had a certain man—what's his name?—Factor, in custody. Roger said, 'My God, I never heard of such a thing! If I had him I would give him to you. In the name of God, you don't believe I have him, do you?'

"I told him I didn't think he had and had never thought so. You see, I knew these boys. A little later I took Roger to one side alone and talked to him as a Catholic priest. He answered:

"'The syndicate [Capone gang] knows where he is, but I don't. My gracious, look at my two boys there. They're living under a gun. Suppose they kidnaped one of them. I would have to sacrifice my life to get him back. I wouldn't go into that business.'"

Crowley Cross-Examines.

Prosecutor Crowley began cross-examining the priest in a low, respectful voice, but Father Weber was obviously belligerent towards the state.

Q.—You did a great service for the Touhy family, didn't you father? A.—Well, that's my private business, no concern of yours.

Q.—Did you know that Roger Touhy and his men went around armed with machine guns?

"Well, machine guns are kind of common these days," responded the priest argumentatively, while a laugh went up from the courtroom crowd.

"Did you know he was in the beer business?"

"I met a million men in the beer business when the country was dry," responded the witness.

Q.—Did you know he was surrounded by gunmen? A.—I never saw any.

Q.—The fact that he had two sons, that convinced you that he could not commit a kidnaping? A.—Absolutely.

Asked About Tommy Touhy.

Q.—Didn't you help secure the release of Tom Touhy [Roger Touhy's brother] from a certain place?

"O, I object," said Attorney Stewart, jumping up. "He's been fishing around for that for some time. Father Weber will tell you that he is very friendly to the Touhy family. There is no dispute about that."

The prosecutor's question, which was not answered, was in reference to aid given by Father Weber four years ago in gaining the release of Tommy Touhy from the Michigan City penitentiary, where he was serving a robbery sentence.

Hanrahan's evidence was corroborative of the priest's.

The next witness was Leon M. Golding, a court reporter, who testified he took shorthand notes last Oct. 24 when Factor appeared before the United States senate committee investigating crime and kidnaping in Chicago. Golding's testimony was that Factor on that occasion said his kidnapers brought out a torch one night and threatened to burn his feet. In his testimony at this trial Factor said merely that he was threatened with this torture.

Woman Is Alibi Witness.

The alibi witness for Roger Touhy was Miss Emily Ivans, 210 South Kilbourn avenue, a friend of Touhy's wife.

Miss Ivans testified that she was fired from her job on June 29 and was walking through a loop store when she happened to meet her old friend, Mrs. Touhy. Learning of Miss Ivans' plight, Mrs. Touhy invited her out to the Touhy home northeast of Des Plaines to spend a few days, the witness testified.

"On June 30 Mrs. Touhy came for me in her car and drove me out to her house," she said. "Tommy and Buddy, their children, were there. I saw Mr. Touhy shortly before dinner, which was at 6:30 p. m."

Touhy went out after dinner but returned about 11 p. m., Miss Ivans testified. He, Mrs. Touhy and herself then sat on the front porch of the Touhy home until 4 a. m., she declared. [Factor was kidnaped about 1:30 o'clock on that morning.]

Eye Specialist Questioned.

Dr. Samuel Wolf, 940 Montrose street, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, was the last witness for the defense. He was questioned by Attorney Stewart:

Q.—What effect is there upon the eye when a change is made from total darkness to light? A.—It takes about 45 minutes for the eye to accustom itself to light after a change from total darkness.

Q.—If a bandage were suddenly removed from a man's eyes, how long would it be before he could recognize faces? A.—Four or five minutes.

Upon cross-examination by Prosecutor Crowley, Dr. Wolf admitted that if light could seep through the bandage, or if the eyes could be opened underneath the bandage, the eyes might not be affected so severely by the blindfolding.

U.S. DELAYS THEFT HEARING; WITNESS IS NEAR DEATH

Hearing of charges of assaulting a government witness against six defendants in an interstate freight theft case were continued yesterday until today by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker when he was informed that the witness is near death in the county hospital.

The witness, John [Ham] French, was taken on a gang ride, shot three times and thrown into the Little Calumet river, in the belief that he was dead. He swam to safety and later identified Edward F. Cusack, a suspended city policeman, and James McCarthy, former business agent for a trucking union, as the men who attacked him.

The other defendants, under indictment on a charge of stealing $13,000 worth of merchandise from an interstate shipment, are George McCarthy, a brother of James; Walter Shepard, Robert W. Bainbridge, and Christy Winters.

Assistant United State's Attorney Lloyd C. Moody told Commissioner Walker that French, a patient in the county hospital, had taken a turn for the worse and that physicians were considering the advisability of amputating his wounded leg.

Judge Delays Punishment of 2 Ousted Touhy Jurors

Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday postponed until Feb. 9 the punishment of two men who confessed to perjury after they had been selected as jurors for the trial of the Touhy gangsters in the Factor kidnaping case. The delay was granted because the ousted jurors were not represented by counsel. Judge Feinberg appointed the public defender to represent them. The men are Francis B. Hayes, 2649 Flournoy street, and Russell H. Brownell, 1319 North La Salle street.

FOUND DEAD IN DOORWAY.

John Cienun, 48 years old, 1508 Tell place, was found dead early yesterday in a doorway at 1520 Tell place, supposedly as a result of a heart attack.

M'FADDEN IS HELD IN $10,000 BOND ON WISCONSIN CHARGE

Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, Touhy gangster, who was free only long enough to drink one stein of beer after the state had nol prossed its charges against him in the Factor kidnaping trial on Tuesday, was held yesterday in $10,000 bond on a fugitive warrant charging him with illegal transportation and possession of a machine gun in Wisconsin. The charge, which in Illinois carries penalty upon conviction of one to five years in prison, is punishable by a ten year term in Wisconsin.

Municipal Judge J. William Brooks signed the warrant against McFadden, who was arrested on Tuesday and locked up at the detective bureau a few minutes after he was dismissed from the Factor trial. At the same time the judge issued fugitive warrants against Roger Touhy and Gus Schaefer, two of the three remaining defendants in the kidnaping trial, who with McFadden and other Touhy gangsters were seized in Elkhorn, Wis., last July 9 with a small arsenal in their automobile. The troubles of the Touhys began with that arrest.

TWO KIDNAPERS BEGIN LIFE TERM IN JOLIET PRISON

Souder and Swolley Lose New Trial Plea.

Frank Souder and Gale Swolley entered the old penitentiary at Joliet under a heavy guard yesterday afternoon to serve life terms. They were taken to the prison a few hours after they had been sentenced by Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court for the kidnaping of James Hackett, Blue Island gambler. Members of the downstate band of "collegiate kidnapers," Souder, a Benton poolroom owner and slot machine concessionaire, and Swolley, a Peoria saloonkeeper, were found guilty by a jury last week.

The convicted kidnapers appeared for the first time in court without their stylishly dressed wives yesterday morning and heard their attorneys argue for half an hour on a motion for a new trial, which was denied. The lawyers attacked the testimony of Julius Augustus [Babe] Jones, the member of the gang who turned state's evidence. He has pleaded guilty and his case will be heard later.

Oppose Defense Motions.

Assistant State's Attorneys Mal Coghlan and Emmett Moynihan opposed all of the defense motions, including one for a stay of mittimus. Judge Lynch then entered sentence. Although he allowed ninety days for a filing of a bill of exceptions to perfect an appeal, it was reported the defendants had no funds to prosecute the appeal.

Warden David Moneypenny immediately made arrangements to send Souder and Swolley to Joliet.

"I was glad to get rid of them," he said later. "Both are dangerous characters despite their veneer of education and manners."

In a car preceded and followed by automobiles loaded with detectives and deputy sheriffs armed with machine guns the convicted men made a speedy trip to the prison. With them in the car was Alexander St. John, a suspect in the bombing of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty, who recently was sentenced to serve 1 to 20 years for incest.

Placed in Prison Cells.

The prisoners arrived at Joliet at 3:30 o'clock and were conducted to cells. Today or tomorrow they will be examined by the prison physicians and Dr. R. G. Barrick, psychiatrist. Although they will probably remain at the old prison, being classed as dangerous prisoners, there is a chance they may later be taken to Stateville.

Hackett, the victim of the kidnapers, is in Florida with his family. In May of 1931 he paid the band $70,000 for his release, according to the state, but they were tried for a second abduction which occurred on May 27, last year. The gambling king then paid $1,500 for his liberty, promising another $8,500, which was not paid. Jones, the state's star witness, was not a party to the first kidnaping.

BREMER'S FATE STILL UNKNOWN AFTER TWO WEEKS; NO NEW NOTES

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The silence that has cloaked the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, with mystery since his adbuction two weeks ago remained unbroken today, despite pleas from his family for a contact with his kidnapers. Though a large number of "crank" notes and letters have been received by the victim's father, Adolph Bremer, wealthy St. Paul brewer and banker, no communication regarded as authentic has been received since the first note demanding $200,000 ransom was left with Walter W. Magee of St. Paul, on Jan. 17.

Emphatic denial was made of reports circulated in St. Paul that Bremer had been returned Tuesday night and that the kidnapers had demanded 48 hours in which to make their escape.

From San Francisco, Cal., came reports that police were searching for a man who asked a woman in a hotel there to address a letter to Adolph Bremer. In St. Paul, members of the Bremer family attached no importance to the letter, regarding it as another "crank" effort.

WIDOW OF SLAIN BIG TIM MURPHY GOES TO COURT

The widow of Big Tim Murphy, labor leader, and John [Dingbat] Oberta, his bosom friend, emerged from her retirement yesterday to testify in support of the complaint of two women against their father, William A. Meyer, 55 years old, a city bridgetender accused of assault with intent to kill. Murphy and Oberta were successively murdered some years ago.

Mrs. Murphy, as she is known, was wearing a sealskin coat trimmed in ermine when she appeared in the Felony court of Judge Harold P. O'Connell. She testified briefly that the women had come to her bungalow at 2521 Morse avenue crying that their father had tried to strike them with a sledge hammer. She glared in silence when a defense lawyer asked if she were not the widow of the "late unlamented Big Tim Murphy."

Meyer denied the charges made by his daughters—Adeline, 32 years old, a cripple, and Lillian, 38 years old—who live at 2506 Farwell avenue, and Judge O'Connell freed him for insufficient evidence.

French Begin Stratosphere Plane to Cross Atlantic

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Rene Cousinet, French airplane designer, has just started the construction of a plane which he hopes will cross the Atlantic to America in July or August, traveling in the stratosphere. It was stated the plane would embody no revolutionary principles, but that the design of the cabin would be different from that of an ordinary plane and the engine would be exceptionally strong.

WM. B. STOREYS ROUTED BY FIRE IN GOLD COAST HOME

William B. Storey, who recently resigned the presidency of the Santa Fé railroad, and Mrs. Storey escaped injury early yesterday morning when fire broke out in their apartment on the fifth floor at 100 Lake Shore drive. The fire destroyed paintings and furnishings valued at $50,000.

Retiring shortly before 2 o'clock, the Storeys were awakened soon afterward by the thick smoke which poured into the bedroom from the library. At first they tried to flee through the front door, but they could not find their way through the smoke. They finally found their way out a rear door and took a freight elevator downstairs.

Among the paintings destroyed were a portrait of Mrs. Storey's grandfather, Laurence Finn, by Sir Thomas Lawrence; one each of Mr. and Mrs. Storey by Paul Trebilcock, and several landscapes. George F. Getz, treasurer of the Republican national committee, who lives on the seventh floor, was among the occupants of the building who were aroused by the firemen's arrival.

HOLDUP VICTIMS NAME DILLINGER AS POLICE KILLER

Outlaw Faces Showup in Indiana Jail.

Ten persons, assembled in the office of Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake county [Indiana] in Crown Point yesterday, pointed accusing fingers at John Dillinger and unanimously agreed: "That's the man who shot and killed Policeman William Patrick O'Malley."

The suave, slim Dillinger, Indiana's first string public enemy and confessed raider of half a dozen banks, kept his aplomb and only murmured that the witnesses surely were mistaken, as he was in Florida on Jan. 15 when bandits leaving the First National bank of East Chicago after a $20,000 holdup slew the policeman. Dillinger is held in the Lake county jail at Crown Point under heavy guard.

Bankers View Prisoner.

Among those who viewed Dillinger were Walter Spencer and Edward L. Steck, vice presidents, and James A. Dalton, cashier of the bank; Michael Obermeyer and Peter Bartock, state game wardens. All had witnessed the killing of the policeman with the machine gun that Dillinger handled.

"There is no doubt about these identifications," declared Mr. Estill. "They will stand up in any court."

He then announced his plans for the trial. Dillinger, already indicted, is to have a preliminary hearing before Circuit Judge William J. Murray tomorrow. If the prosecutor's wishes are followed Dillinger's trial for murder will begin on Feb. 13. Conviction of murder during a robbery, under Indiana law, automatically carries a death sentence and Mr. Estill is confident that Dillinger will die in the electric chair.

Police Present at Showup.

Present at the showup, in addition to the witnesses, were Chief of Police Nicholas Makar of East Chicago and Lieut. Frank Reynolds and Sergt. William Smith of the Chicago police.

Dillinger continued, under questioning of Lieut. Reynolds, to add bits of evidence to his former story that John Hamilton, one of the ten men he aided to escape from the Michigan City prison on Sept. 25, is dead.

"John was shot four times and died soon afterward," the prisoner declared. "His body, I was told by some of the other boys, was dumped in the Calumet river."

It was Hamilton, in the opinion of the police, who accompanied Dillinger into the East Chicago bank and scooped up the money while his more desperate companion terrified the whole force of the bank and a number of customers with his machine gun. The policemen who fired on the pair as they fled declared that the second man was wounded as he got into the car in which both fled.

Stege Doubts Story.

One of those who doubts the glib story of Hamilton's death is Capt. John Stege of Chicago, who for weeks led a chase for the Dillinger gang. He pointed out yesterday that if the legend of Hamilton's departure from life is established the search for him will die out and he may be able to work on a plot to free his old friend Dillinger.

Dillinger added to the confessions he made on Tuesday concerning crimes other than the East Chicago robbery and killing. He and his men, he said, furnished themselves with bullet proof vests by raids on police arsenals at Peru and Auburn, Ind. It was their flouting of the police in these instances that caused the state authorities in October to mobilize National Guard units against the outlaws.

"I don't want to implicate my pals," he averred.

He has admitted aiding Pierpont, Russell Clark, and Charles Makley, who were arrested with him in Tucson, Ariz., last Thursday, in escaping from the Michigan City penitentiary. However, he refused to be specific about how he engineered the flight, although former Deputy Warden Harry E. Klaudy, dismissed as a result of the break, pressed him to tell.

The prisoner also was noncommittal when he was asked if he would send for his father, John W. Dillinger of Mooreseville, Ind., to help him. The elder Dillinger said yesterday that if he were needed he would go to Crown Point, but that his start there might be delayed because all his shirts were being laundered. He indicated that not a cent of the thousands of dollars the son took in his illegal operations ever reached him.

A close guard was kept by deputy sheriffs over the jail yesterday and the Indiana state police said they were still looking for the three carloads of Dillinger gangsters who are believed to be planning a rescue raid.

Dillinger announced that he had requested Attorneys W. W. O'Brien and Louis Piquett of Chicago to defend him. They are expected to confer with him today.

Pals on Way to Indiana.

While Crown Point was centering its efforts on the attempt to push ahead the trial of the bandit gang leader, the three men captured with him last week were on their way back to Michigan City, where they will be held until it is determined what the state of Indiana intends to do with them.

All are on a special car attached to the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island railroad, which is due to arrive in Chicago at 9:30 a. m. today. Also on board is Mary Kinder, Pierpont's sweetheart, who was with him in Tucson. She is wanted as an accomplice in the prison break plot.

Besides the state police, led by Capt. Matt Leach, the prisoners are being guarded by a delegation of railroad detectives, who were added to the contingent in New Mexico. The announced plan is to have all the prisoners kept in the special car until they reach Michigan City.

No change has been made in the announced intention to turn over Pierpont, Makley, and Clark to the authorities at Lima, O., for trial. It is alleged that they all participated there in a raid which freed Dillinger from jail and in which Sheriff Jess Sarber was shot and killed.

PROSECUTOR POSING WITH DILLINGER IS A SHOCK TO LOESCH

"I was shocked at seeing newspaper photographs of a prosecutor who is about to prosecute a vicious murderer posing with his arm around the murderer's neck, both of them smiling and exhibiting friendship," said Frank J. Loesch, veteran president of the Chicago crime commission, yesterday. He referred to pictures of Robert G. Estill, prosecutor of Lake county, Ind., and John Dillinger, outlaw, who was placed in the Lake county jail on Tuesday night.

"For a state's attorney to put himself in such a familiar attitude with a criminal is to instill in the mind of the criminal the hope of escape or of avoiding the death penalty," said Mr. Loesch, who served on former President Hoover's law enforcement commission. "Perhaps it isn't unethical, but it is certain that such familiarity breeds contempt for law enforcement in the minds of criminals."

Dillinger is to be tried on a charge of killing a policeman in a bank robbery in East Chicago, Ind., on Jan. 15.

FOUR FISHERMEN ARE TRAPPED IN LAKE ICE FLOE

Quartet Is Being Carried Out Into Huron.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Trapped on an ice floe which was believed to be slowly going to pieces in a heavy sea, four fishermen were being carried out into Lake Huron tonight by a 40 mile gale.

The fishermen were marooned late today when an off shore wind broke off the ice floe in Saginaw bay on which they were lifting their nets. Tonight watchers along the shore said that the gale was whipping up waves ten feet high. The waves, they said, would slowly break up the ice floe on which the fishermen were marooned.

One Is Saved.

The fishermen are Henry Abeare, 60; John Swantek, 32 and Charles King Jr., 17, and his brother, Lawrence, 19. Charles King Sr., at first believed to be on the ice, was found later to have reached shore safely before the floe started moving out.

Army airplanes from Camp Skeel, Oscoda, the winter training camp of Selfridge field, flew over the bay late today, but the pilots reported they found no traces of the fishermen. They also reported that the ice appeared to be breaking up. The men already had been lost to the sight of watchers on shore.

Wind Hinders Rescue.

Coast guardsmen and volunteers tonight were attempting to reach the men, but ice conditions and the strong wind made it impossible to launch boats.

It was feared that should the off shore wind continue the fishermen would be driven far out into Lake Huron where their chances of rescue would be slight.

CLUB FOUNDED BY MORGAN HAS $51,435 DEFICIT

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The Metropolitan club, founded in 1891 by the elder J. P. Morgan and a group of associates, is considering "a union with some other club of similar standing" because of hard times, it became known today. A deficit of $51,435 in operating costs for last year, despite rigid economies, has forced the executive committee, headed by Ambrose Henry, to ask the membership to consider ways and means of increasing revenues at the annual meeting scheduled Feb. 10.

CONTRACT FOR 1934 FAIR EXHIBIT SIGNED BY GENERAL MOTORS

A contract for General Motors' exhibits at the 1934 World's Fair was signed yesterday. At the same time it was announced that more than $1,000,000 will be spent in redecorating, landscaping, and operating the General Motors building at the Exposition.

The signers of the contract were R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors in charge of sales; W. W. Lewis, director of advertising for the sales section; Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress Exposition, and J. Franklin Bell, director of industrial exhibits for the Fair.

"After careful investigation General Motors is sure that the World's Fair again will be a huge success," said Mr. Grant. "We feel it will again attract millions of people and be beneficial to General Motors. We believe that the people of Chicago accomplished one of the best moves in national recovery by having the courage to conduct an enterprise of this character when recovery was not apparent."

Mr. Grant said that with this year's expenditures General Motors will have spent $3,000,000 at the Fair.

Bedridden Woman, 98, Is Burned to Death in Home

Mrs. Mary Dolinsky, 98 years old, a bed ridden invalid, was burned to death yesterday afternoon when fire swept through her basement bedroom in a frame cottage at 8444 Mackinaw avenue. Firemen found Mrs. Dolinsky's body a few minutes later. The flames, brought swiftly under control, damaged only the basement.

HITS WISCONSIN EFFORT TO TAKE DILLINGER GANG

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Attorney General Philip Lutz Jr. of Indiana, in a telegram sent tonight to United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in Washington, asked for a federal investigation of attempts of Wisconsin officers to gain custody of the Dillinger gangsters captured at Tucson, Ariz.

Lutz and a detail of Indiana police are en route to Indiana with four members of the gang, Russell Clark, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley, and Mary Kinder. Lutz made public the telegram when the train stopped here.

"Urge you investigate," it said, "if any collusion exists between gang and local Wisconsin officers, who by agreement with Dillinger's gang entered into conspiracy to thwart Indiana and Ohio claims for extradition under conditions smelling of bribery and corruption. Large deposits of bonds as collateral under control of local officers did not have approval of governor of Wisconsin, but officers sought custody through agreement of voluntary surrender negotiated through Tucson attorney for gang.

"Only through fidelity to duty of some enforcement officers, including Gov. Moeur (of Arizona) and County Attorney Houston (of Tucson) was the delivery of Dillinger gang averted. In your commendable drive upon criminal connivance I urge an independent federal investigation."

Shoots Him Because He's Too Attentive to His Wife

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—William Willett, 21, died tonight from five bullet wounds inflicted by Roberta Newman. The girl, wounded in the hand, said she loved Willett, but he "paid too much attention to his wife."

HARVARD HOUSE PLAN PROVES A RENASCENT IDEA

Old Contacts, Homelike Life Recaptured.

Frosh Live in Dormitories.

The freshmen live in the dormitories in the yard, which now are reserved exclusively for members of the first year class. They take their meals in the Harvard Union, which is the social center of the freshman year. In addition to the dining halls, in which board is supplied at $8 a week, the union contains one of the best libraries at Harvard, lounging rooms and other appurtenances of a club.

Rooms in the freshman halls vary from $60 to $780 per year per man. The average is $220. Many pay about $100. The chief aim of the freshman halls and the union is to bring the freshmen together without regard to financial circumstances, and to give every student opportunity to make the acquaintance of a large number of his classmates.

From sophomores to seniors, the upper classmen, for purposes of residence, now are divided among seven new units, called houses. Each house accommodates from 200 to 300. They are chosen in about equal numbers from the three upper classes and are so selected as to make as closely as possible a cross section of the college. Each house has its head resident member of the faculty as master, a senior tutor as his assistant, a group of professors from various fields of learning as associates, and a dozen or more tutors.

Each Has Own Library.

Each house has its own library of 7,000 to 10,000 volumes, a dining room, common rooms, and squash courts. Nearly all the books ordinarily used in tutorial work and in the large courses are on the shelves and also standard reference works and collections of general literature. It's not like walking into the reading room of an ordinary library. There are lounge chairs with mellow lamps for thos who want to browse and straight backs at tables for those who want to dig in hard; and one can smoke.

In the old régime upper classmen were scattered all over Cambridge and, except for the limited number who belonged to clubs, about 20 per cent of the undergraduate body, there were no dining rooms where groups of upper classmen could dine together. Instead they ate at one arm lunchrooms and at cafeterias.

Student members of the houses are charged a minimum of $6.75 a week for ten meals. For the student who takes all his meals in the house the charge is $8.50. The price of rooms in the houses varies from $100 to $600 per year per student, the average running $264.

Tutoring in Second Year.

The tutoring system begins in the sophomore year, the Harvard method of preparing the student for the general examination upon which his degree depends.

The dining halls are an important feature. Years ago, in his oration on Harvard's 250th anniversary, James Russell Lowell said: "When Cardinal Wolsey built Christ church at Oxford, his first care was the kitchen. Nothing is so great a quickener of the faculties, or so likely to prevent their being narrowed to a single groove as the frequent coming together of men who are aiming at one goal by different paths."

The house plan, it is pointed out by the university authorities, differs from the systems at Cambridge and Oxford, where each college is an independent corporate body, controling itself. The Harvard houses, instead, are only the housing machinery of the university for dealing with the undergraduates and dividing them up into cross sections to bring about greater unity in the college.

President James Bryant Conant in his annual report a few days ago remarked, "Since the seven houses have been operating, two and a half times as many students have participated in interhouse sports as under the previous system of class athletics."

Warm Springs to Get $75 from Shy Navajo Maidens

Gallup, N. M., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Shy Navajo maidens today turned in $75 from forfeits paid them by Indian braves at a "squaw dance" held at Fort Defiance, Ariz., last night in honor of President Roosevelt's birthday. A "healing dance" was invoked by the medicine men as a prayer for the success of the Warm Springs Foundation.

$15,000 EXPECTED FROM PARTIES FOR ROOSEVELT

Satisfaction was expressed yesterday over the success of the President Roosevelt birthday parties held here Tuesday, the proceeds of which are to go to the national fund for the Georgia Warm Springs foundation for infantile paralysis sufferers.

According to Carter H. Harrison, general chairman of the Chicago celebration, it will be several days before the committee is able to report on the money raised. However, it was estimated that the fund in Chicago may reach $15,000 while the amount raised in Illinois may be $25,000 to $30,000.

The largest amount reported was from the Auditorium theater benefit, where between $7,000 and $8,000 was raised. The 2,000 pound cake auctioned off in the city hall brought $1,000. The Chicago and Illinois Federation of Labor raised money with balls held in the Trianon and Aragon ballrooms. About $150 to $200 was the average from among the large hotels.

Bomb Exploded in Home Perils Salesman and Wife

A black powder bomb was exploded early today in the vestibule of the home of Ignatius Ivan, 30 years old, 108 Indiana avenue, a vacuum cleaner salesman, endangering his life and that of his wife, Adolfina. They were sleeping only a few feet away in a front bedroom. The blast tore off both front doors of their bungalow and did other damage, all estimated at $300. Ivan, who formerly operated a real estate business in his home, told police he knew of no reason for the attack.

Asks Wife to Support Him, Divorce Bill Charges

Mrs. Henrietta A. Mower, 9423 South Racine avenue, charged to Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday in the Superior court that Robert Mower spent a $35,000 inheritance from his father in traveling about the country, and then returned to her and asked that she support him. She charged him with cruelty and intoxication. Judge Desort told her attorney, Harry X. Cole, to draft a divorce decree.

WOMAN'S CLUB BACKS SCHOOL BOND PROPOSAL

A resolution approving legislation to enable the board of eduaction to pledge school lands not used for schoolhouse purposes to the federal government as security so that $40,000,000 in school bonds may be sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation was adopted yesterday by members of the Chicago Woman's club at a meeting held at their clubrooms at 72 East 11th street. Such legislation is being sought by the school board with the help of Mayor Kelly.

Another resolution was adopted approving the principle of transferring a portion of the taxes authorized to be levied for building purposes to the educational purpose fund. It was asserted that this would permit the increase of taxes for eduactional purposes without increasing the taxing power of the school authorities. This measure has been proposed by the school board.

ALASKANS BRAVE COLD TO HONOR THE PRESIDENT

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The President's birthday party here drew out 1,000 persons in weather of two degrees below zero.

"I'm broke. I got no money. Let me in," he told the ticket taker, handing over a package of dog fish.

"Dog fish," in the parlance of Alaska, is the dried fish—generally salmon—that is fed to the half wild sledge dogs.

ROUTED BY POLICE SHOTS.

Three youths who apparently were about to smash the display window of the Banner Tire company store at 1556 South Michigan avenue were driven away early yesterday when South Park Policeman Grover Oglesby fired two shots at them.

BLACKLIDGE CASE COMPLICATED BY NEW NOTE TO COP

'It's a Frame,' Says Love Suit Defendant.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A letter purported to have been written by Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, to Policeman Norman E. Nottingham during her recent trial on a charge of alienating his affections was filed in the Superior court of Judge Irving L. Weaver yesterday by Mrs. Nottingham's attorney, Murphy O. Tate. Mrs. Blacklidge was found guilty by a jury and ordered to pay Mrs. Nottingham damages of $7,500 for the theft of Nottingham's love.

The letter, it was charged, was written on Tuesday, Jan. 23, the second day of the trial. It was found by Mrs. Nottingham the following Thursday, the day after the trial, on the policeman's dresser in his bedroom in the Nottingham home at 8453 Vernon avenue.

Asks a New Trial.

The letter, accompanied by an affidavit containing Mrs. Nottingham's charges, was filed in opposing a plea of Attorneys Eugene P. Meegan, John L. Henrick, and William R. Crow, counsel for Mrs. Blacklidge, for a new trial on the ground that the court erred in not permitting Policeman Nottingham to testify against his wife and in behalf of Mrs. Blacklidge. Arguments on the motion for a new trial will be heard Feb. 16, Judge Weaver ruled.

The letter which Mrs. Nottingham said was in Mrs. Blacklidge's handwriting, follows:

"Norman, dear:

"Esther will go to the judge in the morning at 10 and tell him you only heard the juryman impaneled and was expelled at the afternoon session before any testimony was given. [This alludes to an argument between counsel held the second day of the trial in which Attorney Tate declared that Nottingham should be ruled out as a witness because among other things he had heard some of the testimony while other witnesses were excluded. "Esther" apparently refers to Mrs. Esther Garland, 636 West 44th street, who was a witness for Mrs. Blacklidge, testifying that Nottingham had been excluded from the courtroom after the jury was picked.]

"Don't Take a Drink."

"Don't fail me now, Norman, and don't take a drink tonight, at least stay sober for my sake, dear. Be there at 10 in the morning. Better be a few minutes before. I think they will put you on. Read every word of testimony so you will be prepared. You paid $5.75 for that yellow moire formal dress. She said $2.00—$5.75 was the original cost.

"You left here Sunday night about 3:10. If the opposing attorney asks does it take three hours to discuss this case with me—well sometimes one witness in a case is on the stand longer than that. Did you see where she said you had washed once.

"Jeanette [the Nottingham's daughter, who is 7 years old] said she was asking all those questions in Mr. Tate's office, so her testimony won't mean a thing. Everybody congratulated me on my testimony this afternoon. One of the reporters said, 'I wish your attorneys were as smart as you are. You made a swell witness.' Even Murphy O. Tate came over and shook hands with me and said you can sure take care of yourself. You were never undressed in my apartment at any time. It is only her word against mine. Love."

Calls It a "Frame."

Informed of the letter, Mrs. Blacklidge declared: "That's a frame, but I don't think Nottingham has double-crossed me."

Nottingham, reached at his home, said he did not recall receiving such a letter. He is a patrol wagon driver at the Grand Crossing station.

Later Attorney Tate told reporters that in his opinion Mrs. Blacklidge could be sentenced for contempt of court for having written the letter. He added "that it was up to the court," but that personally he felt "that Mrs. Blacklidge had had so many troubles I don't want to pile any more on her."

BURGLARS TAKE JEWELRY.

WILL INSCRIBED ON LADDER "FILED" WITH LOS ANGELES COURT

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A will inscribed on a ladder was "filed" in the probate office today.

Two weeks before he died, Jan. 11, Hermann H. Strachmann took a seven foot stepladder to Mrs. Ellen Gotts, his next door neighbor, and enjoined her to take good care of it.

Last Saturday, after unsuccessful search had been made for Strachmann's will, Mrs. Gotts found this pencilled notation on the under side of the second step from the top of the ladder:

"I love her. I give my all to Mrs. Gotts. She my good spirit."

It was signed by Strachmann and dated Dec. 2.

Lawyers said the note is a valid will bequeathing a $15,000 estate.

Widow's Pleas Save Her Purse from Robber Pair

Mrs. Eileen Smith, 3007 West 61st street, saved her purse from two robbers last night by telling them she was a widow with three children to support. The robbers entered the Marquette Medical building, 6140 South Kedzie avenue, where Mrs. Smith is a switchboard operator, and forced her and her son, Richard, 12 years old, to stand against a wall. They left without taking anything when she asserted that the few dollars in her purse was all the money she had.

BRITAIN, ITALY BACK GERMANY'S ARMS DEMANDS

Propose Powers Recognize Berlin as an "Equal."

Hitler Gains Support

LONDON.—The British government yesterday proposed a ten year plan to break the disarmament deadlock. Under the plan Germany's claim to arms equality is recognized and new proposals for French security are made.

ROME.—Premier Mussolini in a memorandum also proposed that Germany's claims be recognized and that a new arms conference under the four power pact be called.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Great Britain tonight publicly acceded to Germany's demand for "arms equality" in a ten year disarmament plan—its most recent effort to find a formula to settle this question.

Warning that an armaments race, which can only end in disaster, will take place unless some kind of disarmament treaty can be reached among the major powers of the world, the British government pleaded with the heavily armed powers either to agree to give up certain classes of arms or else to agree not to arm beyond present levels.

Wants Germany Back in League.

The British plan, which was recently dispatched to all the major European chancelleries and was made public in a white paper tonight, emphasized the importance of bringing Germany back into the league of nations. It pointed out that Chancellor Hitler had recently promised that Germany "voluntarily renounces any claim to possess 'offensive' weapons and limits itself to normal 'defensive' armaments required for the army with which it would be provided in the convention."

The note then urged that the most heavily armed powers make "a positive contribution to disarmament" by bringing down the scale all around, thus reducing "the demand which Germany might otherwise be disposed to put forward."

Three New Security Proposals.

In connection with security, the British government regards the present form of the security provisions contained in the British draft convention submitted last March as of greatest importance. It suggests, however, three further articles which will contain provisions for immediate consultation of the nations in event of a breach by one of the parties concerned in order to decide upon means of alleviating the situation.

"When taken together with the German chancellor's proposal for conclusion of pacts of nonaggression they would present a sum total of security worthy of general acceptance," the memorandum says.

In connection with equality, the British government holds that a practical application of the principle of equality of rights is no less essential in an agreement than that of the principle of security.

Propose Basis for Pact.

As a basis for the proposed arms convention Britain puts forward a series of proposals dealing with short service armies, land, air, and naval armaments and supervision.

The British draft convention, it is recalled, suggested 200,000 men and eight months' service as the average of daily effectives to be stationed in the home country for France, Germany, Italy, and Poland. Germany claims 300,000 men with 12 months' service. In the opinion of the British government it should not be difficult for the countries concerned to adjust their differences between the two figures.

Military training outside the army of men of military age should be prohibited and the prohibition checked by permanent and automatic supervisgn, the memorandum says.

Would Destroy Tanks.

The memorandum proposes that tanks over 30 tons be destroyed at the end of the first year; tanks over 21 tons be destroyed at the end of the third year, and tanks over 16 tons to be destroyed at the end of the fifth year. Britain would agree to the German army being equipped with tanks up to 6 tons, which Germany maintains is necessary to its defense.

Concerning mobile land guns, the memorandum recommends acceptance of the German demand that its army be equipped with 155 millimeter guns. Guns over 350 millimeters, it is proposed, would be destroyed at the end of the first year; over 220 millimeters at the end of the fourth year, and over 155 millimeters at the end of the seventh year.

The British government expresses a willingness to agree to a system of permanent and automatic supervision of armaments, to be applied at once to all powers.

DUCE AIDS HITLER

ROME, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Expressing doubt that the heavily armed powers wished to disarm or could do so, the Italian government announced today it favors negotiations on a status quo basis for the former allied powers and rearmament for Germany.

Such a course would be coupled with efforts to obtain a general agreement for abolishing chemical warfare and prohibiting bombardments of the civil population.

Countries not bound by peace treaties, including the United States, would be asked to limit military expenditures and land armaments at their present levels.

The proposals were made in an official communique for world distribution. It was issued after Premier Mussolini had studied the British declaration on arms.

Doubts Germany Wants War.

The memorandum said the Italian government was convinced that Germany could not be thinking of "warlike moves outside her borders" and that she would furnish ample guarantees that her increased armament would not be used to infringe upon the security of other countries.

Unless an agreement is reached allowing the reich to rearm within the limits and regulations set, she is likely to do so outside all control, the communique warned.

Two years of disarmament discussions, the trend diplomatic negotiations have taken, and recent declarations by government leaders have led Italy, the communique added, "to have well founded doubts that the armed powers wish or can reach an accord for measures of disarmament that will permit a solution to the present situation and hold Germany's demands within the modest limits that were first taken into consideration."

The right to equality of Germany and other states disarmed by peace treaties has been "colemnly recognized," the announcement said.

When a basis of accord is reached a meeting is recommended under the terms of the four-power western European peace pact—which Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain signed last year—to provide for drawing up an agreement. Representatives of other major powers would be invited to attend such a meeting.

GERMAN BISHOP MENACED BY MOB AT HIS PALACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAYENCE, Germany, Jan. 31.—A mob demonstrated today in front of the palace of Bishop Hugo because he refused to display any but church flags. The mob shouted for him to resign, charging him with separatist activities in the days of the French occupation. The walls of the bishopric were painted with the colors of the separatists, who were branded as traitors. Police dispersed the mob.

Three Steel Helmet chiefs—Herr Halle, Paymaster Koenig and George Schmidt—were arrested today and charged with making disparaging remarks about Nazi leaders.

HEAD OF AUSTRIA ORDERS DRASTIC WAR ON NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 21.—Declaring he will not be intimidated by "foreign barbarians," Chancellor Dollfuss tonight ordered Maj. Emil Fey, his director of public safety, to clean the Nazis out of the province of Tyrol. He said any resistance would be met by sterner measures.

At the same time Dollfuss ordered the state commissioner for employment to drop from the lists of state employés all Nazi sympathizers. Dollfuss made a general appeal in his proclamation, which was sent by radio to the entire nation, to help him in his work of cleaning up "state enemies" and ridding the country of acts of terrorism.

His action followed the arrest today of Franz Baumann, a member of his own bodyguard, on charges of being a Nazi. Baumann had been a trusted guard.

Estimate 4,000 Drowned in Floods of Yellow River

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Four thousand Chinese drowned in the recent Yellow river floods in Hopei province, said an estimate from provincial authorities reaching here today. Dispatches said that the river had ceased to rise in Hopei province and that 100 towns and villages were flooded.

POPE EXPRESSES JOY AT ESCAPE OF MUNICH PRELATE

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Cardinal Pacelli, secretary of state, today telegraphed the pope's congratulations to Cardinal Michele de Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, because he escaped revolver shots fired in the archbishop's palace Sunday.

HEAD OF FRANCE ACCUSED OF PLAN FOR FASCIST RULE

Socialists Issue Appeal to "Save Republic."

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The Socialist party today accused President Albert Lebrun of favoring a plan for Fascists to assume power under the guise of forming a national union government. The Socialists issued a manifesto calling on the people to rally under their banner to save the republic. The Socialists comprise the second biggest party in the chamber of deputies.

"The Socialist parliamentary group," reads the manifesto, "protests against the attempt on the part of the chief of the state to impose a brutal and unprecedented choice on parliament—dissolution or national union.

"The president's desires are clearly reflected in the composition of the new government [of Premier Edouard Daladier, which was formed Tuesday]. They would have been even more clearly reflected if the inadmissible attempt to break the unity of the Socialist party had not been frustrated by the loyalty of the men solicited.

Makes Bid for Power.

"The Socialist party is qualified to gather together all those who do not want to see public liberties destroyed."

Daladier will appear before the chamber next Tuesday, and it is generally believed that he will be able to convey a sufficient impression of the existing emergency so the chamber's hostility will thaw.

Presumably as a preparation for exemplary action against high police officials who were compromised in the $60,000,000 Stavisky bond scandal the premier today began studying all the records pertaining to the case. The future of the cabinet is considered to depend largely upon the thoroughness of the house cleaning Daladier undertakes.

Americans Flee Riviera.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Jan. 31.—An ugly, riotous mood on the Riviera, a repercussion of the violence in Paris in the last two weeks, is causing panic among American and other foreign residents. Many Americans and other foreigners are leaving Nice and moving into the Italian Riviera. Municipal authorities are worried, since the evacuation will cause the loss of several million francs of trade, particularly at carnival time.

FAHRNEY HEIRESS TO SEEK ANNULMENT OF RUNAWAY MARRIAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Annulment of her runaway marriage to Frank Eiszner will be sought by Mrs. Merry Fahrney Pickering Eiszner, her attorney, De Forest Home, said today. The Chicago patent medicine heiress has been living in seclusion here.

The attorney said Mrs. Eiszner, who once was engaged to marry Count Giorgio Di Giorgio of Italy, will charge in the projected annulment action she did not realize what she was doing when she was wed to Eiszner at Aurora, Ill., last Nov. 10.

A week before her elopement with Eiszner, she waited for the count in New York. He was compelled by immigration officers to board a ship bound for Chile. Detectives of New York's bureau of criminal alien investigation said Di Giorgio's passport to the United States had expired.

Mrs. Eiszner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney of Chicago, vowed she would follow the count by airplane, but she returned to Chicago from New York and surprised her friends by eloping with Eiszner. Shortly after the wedding she came to Los Angeles alone.

CHICAGO DAIRIES' PROFIT IS 25 PCT., WALLACE SAYS

Forces Change in Price Fixing Method.

Excessive profits by milk distributors were given yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a speech at Madison, Wis., as one important reason why the AAA abandoned its policy of fixing retail prices of milk in favor of a policy of fixing only the price to be paid the farmer.

Secretary Wallace, who came to Chicago last evening to fill another speaking engagement, mentioned the Chicago situation as a specific incident of the breakdown of the first milk marketing agreements promulgated by the AAA. He said that according to the calculation of AAA auditors, who struck out many items listed as expenses by the distributors' own bookkeepers, the dealers selling 90 per cent of Chicago's milk have for the last five years made an average annual profit of 25.8 per cent on their net plant investments.

Big Salaries Reduced.

From the items of expense listed by the companies, Secretary Wallace said, the department's auditors deducted what they considered "excessive" salaries to officials, high bonuses to high officers, and "excessive" charges for depreciation and obsolescence. They also computed at reduced figures the salaries of some of the higher executives, for this purpose fixing a maximum of $20,000.

Shortly before Secretary Wallace arrived directors of the Pure Milk association, representing 18,000 Chicagoland dairy farmers, concluded an all day session. Henry Pfister, president of the association, indicated that they will accept the AAA offer to enforce a uniform price for milk to be paid producers in the Chicago area. The enforcement will be accomplished through rigid licensing of all dealers. Formal acceptance of the proposal was delayed until a copy of the agreement is received today from Washington.

Wants Orderly Marketing.

In his Madison speech, delivered before a farm and home week audience at the University of Wisconsin, Secretary Wallace discussed the milk marketing situation chronologically, starting with the passage of the agricultural adjustment act on May 12, last year, and the immediate presentation to AAA authorities of milk marketing agreements governing every phase of the milk business.

"We recognize an obligation to insure orderly marketing," said Secretary Wallace, "and to permit distributors to fight against unfair trade practices. But plainly our first duty must be to give the producer as high a price as was economically justifiable, and to protect the consumer against gouging.

High Profits Suspected.

"It became more and more obvious, as our conferences and hearings on the agreements continued, that our main objectives were in danger of being drowned in the flood of details and conflicts incident to the distribution of milk.

"There was a resistance against our waiting to fix consumers' prices until we went into the affairs of the distributors as deeply as we knew we must. If we were to assure ourselves that their requests were reasonable and that the licenses they proposed were enforceable.

"We suspected that the distributors were making fairly handsome profits as it was; we were not inclined to raise the ante for them, or to protect them against competition beneficial to the consumers and not hurtful to the farmers, which might lower those profits.

Unsound Agreements Feared.

"Of even more importance, we feared going into an agreement which was not economically sound, which would invite competition from milk producers on the edges of the zone, and from independent distributors catering to consumer requests for cheaper milk. Such an agreement would not have public support and could not be enforced. Nevertheless, as you know, we did enter a few such agreements only to have our fears too promptly fulfilled.

'Hence the recent announcement of a new policy governing these milk marketing agreements in which we declare it our first and principal concern to fix prices for milk producers at the highest level that is enforceable and economically sound, leaving the price to the consumer subject to competition. In some cases a maximum price to the consumer may be fixed.

"Auditors for the AAA have completed their examination of milk distributors' books in some of the large milksheds. It is shown that distributors in four cities took annual profits during the last five years as follows: St. Louis, 14.6 per cent; Boston, 22.5 per cent; Chicago, 25.8 per cent; Philadelphia, 30.8 per cent. These figures explain one reason for our new policy on milk marketing agreements.

Experience Teaches Lesson.

"So far as the milk marketing agreements are concerned, what I have been trying to say can be summed up in our experience in the Chicago milkshed. Our first milk marketing agreement was for that milkshed. It set prices higher than could be maintained with consumer purchasing power at its present level. The competition of new producers, the so-called chiseling of small distributors, was bound to come. The agreement created hostile public opinion. It could not be enforced, and when we were convinced of that we said so.

"I hope we have learned something about the economic and the importance of public support from this Chicago experience. I hope also that we realize the futility of such a strike as this recent one in Chicago. The policy of the federal government in any milkshed will no longer be swayed by strikes or threats of strikes."

FISH TAKES TEETH OUT OF HIS HANDS, RIFLE BAGS THIEF

New Orleans, La., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Millard Carrier, a farmer of Franklinton, La., rode his horse into the Tickfaw river. While the horse was drinking, Mr. Carrier removed his false teeth to wash them. A fish struck his hand and took the teeth.

Mr. Carrier went home for his fishing tackle and rifle and returned to the scene. For some time he tried in vain to catch the fish on a hook.

Then the thief came into view and Mr. Carrier fired. He killed the fish and cut it open. The false teeth were found inside.

COURTNEY MOVES TO UPSET ORDER FREEING CONVICT

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Daider, embezzlement, sentenced to one year in the county jail; Edward Miluniowski and Thomas Tomczyn, burglary, each sentenced to one year to life, by Judge Donald McKinlay.

Procedure similar to that used in the case of James [Fur] Sammons, now serving a life prison term in Indiana, was ordered followed yesterday against "Dr." Spencer Brown, accused of directing the Werner warehouse robbery. Brown was ordered freed from the Joliet penitentiary Monday by Circuit Judge Clyde H. Thompson at Pontiac on a writ of habeas corpus.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney ordered the action after he reviewed the manner in which Judge Thompson had taken jurisdiction over Brown, a Cook county convict.

Assistant State's Attorneys James V. Cunningham and Walter L. McCoy immediately began an examination of the records in Brown's case. If they follow the method used against Sammons they will file a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Thompson to expunge his records of the habeas corpus action. Sammons, a murderer and rapist, was freed from Joliet prison by Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, and the state Supreme court ordered Judge Shurtleff to expunge this action. Judge Shurtleff recently petitioned for a rehearing. Meanwhile Sammons was seized and sentenced by an Indiana court.

WALLACE SHEARS WHITE BEARD OF HEBREW PROPHET

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Secretary Henry A. Wallace last night sheared the long white beard which tradition put on the face of Jeremiah, the Hebrew prophet, and dressed him up to look like Senator Norris battling the standpat doctrines of the Coolidge administration.

The speech was made before an audience principally of pastors and divinity students, which overflowed Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. It was the first of three lectures by Secretary Wallace under the Alden-Tuthill foundation of the Chicago Theological seminary and the divinity school of the University of Chicago. The remaining lectures will be delivered this afternoon and tonight.

Knows Hebrew History.

The modernization of Jeremiah and other Old Testament prophets drew much applause. Secretary Wallace spoke the language of the ultra modern pulpit. Said he:

"Most people today thoughtlessly look on such vigorous prophets as Elijah, Amos, Micah and Jeremiah as respectable old grandfathers with long white beards. As a matter of fact they were as vivid as Senator Norris and at the time they made their pronouncements were as unpopular as the Nebraska senator was in the Coolidge administration."

But the secretary went further. He made ancient biblical worthies spiritual ancestors of the erstwhile "sons of the wild jackass" embattled against Wall street standpatters "worshipping Baal and running their commercial affairs according to the traditions of ancient Canaan."

"I am sure," Secretary Wallace continued, "that if we had been trying to earn a living in one of the walled cites of Judah 620 years before Christ most of us would have been respectable worshippers of Baal, genuinely worried about the subversive tendencies of that fellow Jeremiah who was breaking down confidence and saying things that were bad for business.

In the Time of Amos.

"On the other hand, if in the time of Amos, we had been watching sheep in the hill country of Gilead or Judah, most of us would have said—in modern vernacular—'Old Amos is sure telling those crooked priests and business men where to get off. If he keeps it up he will stop foreclosures and maybe get us an honest dollar that will remain stable in purchasing power from one generation to another.'"

Secretary Wallace said the typical farmer on mortgaged land today sees things almost exactly the same way as Amos. Like Amos, he added, the modern farmer knows the balances "have been falsified by powerful selfish interests and that a terrible day of reckoning is coming to those who have profited at his expense."

POLICEMAN SHOT IN NEW YEAR'S EVE ROBBERY IS DEAD

Policeman Thomas Murphy of the Stanton avenue station, who was wounded in a pistol duel with four bandits on New Year's eve, died last night in the Mercy hospital.

Murphy had been assigned to guard the Eastman Coal company, 3443 South La Salle street, which had been robbed of $200 three weeks before. While Murphy fought three of the gunmen who attempted to enter through the office door, a fourth robber slipped around to a window and shot him in the back. All four of the killers escaped.

The slain policeman was 40 years old and lived with his wife and two children at 5527 South Lincoln street. His death increased the number of policemen fatally wounded by gunmen during 1933 to 16.

Indoors where it's stuffy one minute, outdoors the next you need good resistance!

It isn't just being out in bad weather. It isn't stuffy indoor living alone. The sudden changes from heat to extreme cold are what tax your vitality.

Most people worry about their physical condition at the wrong time. They wait until they're miserable before attempting to build up.

How much better off they would be if they had prepared themselves ahead. How much more comfortable they will be from now on if they build up their resistance!

One of the pleasantest ways of doing this is with the help of Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

Squibb Adex tablets provide the resistance-building vitamins available from three sources—halibut and cod-liver oil with Viosterol! There are 1500 units of Vitamin A and 2450 units of Vitamin D in every tablet.

ICKES WARNS ALL CONTRACTORS TO AVOID PWA GRAFT

Iowa Official's Fate Cited as What Will Happen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Holding up the indictment of Lieutenant Governor Nels G. Kraschel of Iowa as an example of what awaits those who "play fast and loose" with federal easy money, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes tonight warned the Associated General Contractors of America against trying to graft on the public works administration.

Collusion on bids for contracts or materials, skimping on materials, and doctoring of specifications, so as to eliminate competition will be discovered and punished, Secretary Ickes told the convention of the contractors' association.

"Political Pull Won't Help."

Warning that political pull will not suffice to get offenders amnesty, Secretary Ickes made public for the first time the complete chronicle of the case leading up to the indictment of Lieut. Gov. Kraschel.

"In one of my first statements as administrator of public works," Mr. Ickes said, "I cautioned all the world that no one need employ either lawyer or lobbyist or politician in order to receive proper consideration at the hands of the public works administration. Some people did not believe me and some of these as the result of their unbelief have been grievously hurt. I will give one example.

"Word came to me late on Saturday afternoon that the lieutenant governor of one of the states and a friend and associate of his were playing fast and loose with the public works program. The lieutenant governor was a Democrat. He had caused himself to be made executive secretary, without pay, of the public works advisory board of his state. The facts submitted to me were not conclusive but they warranted an investigation which was started at once. Within an hour, a telegram went out over my signature dismissing Mr. Lieutenant Governor as executive secretary of the public works board. The public works administration made no accusation against this man. It makes no accusation against him now. But in handling $3,300,000,000 of tax payers' money, we could not afford to take any chances.

Refused to Clear Kraschel.

"Bedlam promptly broke loose. By long distance telephone, by letter, by telegraph, by personal interview, I was besought to issue a statement clearing this man of any supposed wrongdoing in connection with the public works administration. I refused.

"Evidence was unearthed which was presented to the department of justice in Washington. The political cohorts promptly moved their siege guns to that department. Every political and personal influence possible was brought to bear in an effort to hush up the matter. The facts were laid before the attorneys general. Orders were given to the local district attorney to present the evidence to the grand jury under every safeguard of the rights of the accused. After hearing the evidence, the grand jury indicted this man and his associate.

"I am not pronouncing judgment in this case. If these men now under indictment are innocent they have nothing to fear. If a jury of their neighbors find them guilty, they will pay the penalty.

"There are two points to this story and that is the reason I have told it to you. One is that the public works administration will pursue any charge of graft or corruption or chiseling regardless of where the trail may lead. The other point is that even an officeholder of high degree does not have enough political pull to escape the outstretched hand of justice if he offends against the law."

Fight Over Debt

Matthew R. Taylor, 41 years old, yesterday shot and killed Hugh Thoms, 30 years old, 3608 Cottage Grove avenue, when Thoms and two employés of a collection agency went to Taylor's home at 2703 Wilcox street and attempted to seize a bedspring and mattress on which Taylor still owed $25.

Thoms was employed by John Casey and Hugo Lekelt, employés of the Central Collection bureau, 28 East Jackson boulevard, as a helper on the company's truck. The three men represented themselves as policemen when they appeared at the house, Taylor told the police. He locked the door, he said, when they were unable to show him a warrant, but opened it when they threatened to smash it down.

When the men entered his house, Taylor charged, Thoms grappled with him and then struck him. He then drew a revolver and shot Thoms six times. Taylor, Casey, and Lekelt were locked up.

TELLS OF SMALL DEALER'S PLIGHT IF HE SIGNS CODE

C. B. Aldrich Says Big Firms Are Favored.

The plight of the small manufacturer, who would like to operate under the NRA but cannot honestly do so and meet competition of larger concerns, was explained yesterday by Clarence B. Aldrich. Mr. Aldrich is president of Aldrich & Aldrich, manufacturers of caps and gowns and clerical outfits, at 1857 Milwaukee avenue.

The company is now operating in conformance with the NRA textile code provisions, although it has not signed the code. Mr. Aldrich said he has not signed the code because it will be impossible for him to live up to its terms and make a profit.

Costs Are Increased.

"The code was drawn by the big business block of the industry," he said. "Without questioning the motives of the code authors, the result is practically a suspension of anti-trust laws in that the small manufacturer is saddled with additional costs which he cannot absorb so readily as can the larger interests.

"If we were to sign the code we would have to evade its provisions in order to continue to live. This we could not conscientiously do. Therefore, we with a number of other small manufacturers in the business, have elected to go under the code as far as is possible."

Peak Periods Not Considered.

Under the code the maximum hours per week for an employé is 40. This, said Mr. Aldrich, is sufficient for ordinary times but in the peak periods of his business, 90 days prior to Nov. 1 and 30 days prior to June commencements, a maximum of 54 hours should be allowed.

"If the hours are not increased during these periods we should be required to hire so many additional employés that we would come out without profit," he said. "The code fails to consider peak periods."

MISS PERKINS' APPOINTMENTS CAUSE NEC ROW

State Directors Question Labor Choices.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson threw a bombshell into the meeting of the state directors of the National Emergency council today, by announcing that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins had already appointed many of the labor advisors in the offices of the state directors.

Nathan Straus Jr. of New York, who had asked Gen. Johnson whether the state directors would be consulted, jumped to his feet and exclaimed:

"They have been appointed without consulting with us?"

"Yes," replied Gen. Johnson.

"Do you think it was wise to have these appointments made without consulting us?" asked George Creel, California state director.

"I am not here to discuss the wisdom of the matter," the general retorted. "The appointments have already been made."

Lieut. Kilbourne Johnson, the general's son, who is in the NRA national compliance directors' office, was besieged for information by state directors after the meeting. He told them that 25 state labor advisers had already been appointed.

At the office of National Compliance Director W. H. Davis, it was explained that all appointments were to be made by the NRA. Gen. Johnson, it was said, asked Secretary Perkins to make suggestions for the labor posts, and the appointments were made accordingly.

SPANISH COURT GIVEN CASE OF FOUR AMERICANS

MADRID, Spain, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Attorney General Marsa today delivered the documents in the case of four Americans accused of assaulting a Palma, Mallorca, civil guard to the Supreme court with a recommendation for their pardons.

Minister of State Leandro Pita Romero informed American Ambassador Claude G. Bowers that the sixth section of the tribunal will act tomorrow, after which the case will be considered by the entire Supreme court. The minister assured Mr. Bowers the pardons would certainly be approved and the Supreme court's decision would be final.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass.; Roderick F. Mead of New York, and Walter A. Blodgett of Stamford, Conn. They were sentenced earlier this month to six months and a day in jail for slapping a guard in a hotel at Palma, last summer.

WHEALAN BACK IN FOLD; NAME GOES ON TICKET

Democrats Also End Puffer-Aken War.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Advances toward closer harmony were made in both the Republican and Democratic parties of Cook county yesterday.

The one serious crack in the Democratic slate for the April 10 primaries, the refusal of Emmett Whealan to run for any office except that of president of the county board which he now holds, was permanently sealed, according to Chairman P. A. Nash of the Democratic county committee. Nash said Whealan had agreed to accept the candidacy for membership on the tax appeals board which the committee offered him last Monday.

"Whealan," said the chairman, "has agreed to abide by the judgment of the committee. Edward J. Kaindl, who following Whealan's refusal of the place was substituted for him as a candidate for the tax board, voluntarily came in and said he was willing to step aside for the good of the party. That ends that matter."

Closes Puffer-Aken Clash.

Chairman Nash also disposed of a disturbance which he described as an effort to "make a mountain out of a molehill." After calling in several of the country town committeemen responsible for the slating of Noble J. Puffer for county superintendent of schools, Nash said that charges made against Puffer by Otto Aken, the present superintendent, were without serious foundation.

Despite Supt. Aken's own signed statement to the contrary, party leaders said Aken had cherished strong hopes that he would be given the nomination.

The official slate containing the name of Puffer was made public Tuesday morning and that day Puffer received a telegram signed with Aken's name saying that Puffer's services were no longer needed as one of the directors of education, a post subordinate to that of the superintendent. Aken later gave interviews charging that Puffer had falsified records in an effort to enable County Commissioner Homer J. Byrd to hold his job when he was assistant superintendent of county schools.

Puffer Stays on Ticket.

Upon seeing the matter in print, Chairman Nash had the leaders of the country town committeemen investigate the charges against Puffer and upon the strength of their report he announced that Puffer would remain on the slate.

Before his election as county commissioner three years ago Byrd had been an assistant superintendent of schools for six years. He did not keep his teacher's certificate alive after his election to the county board although Puffer contends he was entitled to do so. It was an effort to issue Byrd a "renewal" certificate that was the basis of Supt. Aken's charges.

Both Aken and Puffer issued long statements. Aken denied that he at any time had sought the nomination for county superintendent in the approaching primary. Puffer wound up with this question:

"Why has Mr. Aken waited eleven months to make such a charge as he now makes if he thought it a just one?"

G. O. P. Peace Parleys Begin.

Republican harmony came a little closer when active peace negotiations were begun by officers of the G. O. P. county committee under Secretary Edward F. Moore with George F. Barrett and a number of other west side committeemen who for a time threatened to put up a primary ticket of their own. The Barrett group submitted several names for consideration for the slate but no definite results were announced.

M'FADDEN RAPS ROOSEVELT AND G. O. P. AS WELL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Representative McFadden [Rep., Pa.] said in a speech in the house today that the people were following President Roosevelt, but that the chief executive "did not know where he was going."

"He admits himself he is trying first one course of procedure and then another in the hope of finding a good one," he said. "He has not presented to this body, to the senate, or to the public any plan nor any program of what he proposes to do with us.

"He has shown but one of the qualifications of leadership. People are following him, but he does not know where he is going."

McFadden said, "There is no longer a Republican party." The Republican party, he said, "choked itself to death trying to swallow the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for reelectiotn to the presidency. There is no longer a Democratic party. There is only Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

MAYOR TO BEGIN ENFORCING NEW LAW ON LIQUOR

Council Meeting Is Called for Tomorrow.

Mayor Kelly, who is designated as liquor commissioner of Chicago under the new control law passed by the state legislature Tuesday, took steps yesterday to put into effect the licensing and enforcement provisions of the statute within the city. He requested that the council committee on license meet tomorrow to consider amendments or possible repassage of the city liquor ordinance so as to conform with the state measure.

The consensus was that the present ordinance which fixes the amount of the local license fee and sets up qualifications for a single liquor license—making no distinction between the sale of beer and harder liquors—would not need amendment. The mayor said that the city ordinance "nearly complies with the state law."

Sexton to Give Opinion.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, who was one of the framers of the new state law, said he could not give a final opinion upon the validity of the city ordinance until he had had time to study it. He was doubtful whether changes would be required. He said that he would scrutinize the ordinance and the new law and have an opinion prepared for the council committee tomorrow.

In its application to Chicago the new state legislation places in the hands of the mayor the right to issue and revoke local liquor licenses. The legislators left to the city the drafting of qualifications for Chicago liquor license holders. If the present ordinance is found to be valid, then the qualifications now in effect will be retained subject to amendment.

The local license is limited to retailers. All retailers must also take out a state retailer's license, but the state license is to be issued automatically with the local retailer's license. In the same manner the state retailer's license is automatically revoked if the local license is taken away.

Provides for Appeals.

The new law provides methods of appeal for a person whose application for a Chicago license is not granted. The appeal would be taken to the license appeal commission of three members, whose jurisdiction is limited to this duty.

The law provides that both major parties are to be represented on the appeal commission. It specifically names the secretary of state, at present Edward J. Hughes, as one member. A second member is to be chosen by the Chicago city council. If these two members are of different political parties then the chairman of the Illinois liquor control commission will be the third member of the appeals commission.

The chairman is not eligible, however, if his appointment would make the appeals commission a one party affair. In that case the minority member of the state commission will serve as the third member of the appeals commission. The state commission also is a three man committee, all appointed by Gov. Horner and not more than two of them are to be from the same party.

May Appeal to Courts.

If still further appeal is desired the applicant may take his case to the Circuit or Superior court. In such cases no new evidence could be introduced by either the Chicago commission, which would appear as defendant, or by the plaintiff.

Under the state law, a person who wishes to open a liquor dispensary in Chicago would first make application to the mayor for his local license. The act gives the mayor authority to delegate the examining of the applicant to others, but the mayor must ultimately pass upon each license. If the local license is issued the applicant need only pay another fee to obtain his state license.

A Chicago license may be revoked by the mayor in his capacity as liquor commissioner for violation of the city liquor ordinance. Proceedings to revoke a retail license may be instituted by "any five residents of the city, village, or county in which licensee is located." The residents must file complaint with the local commissioner, stating in writing what violations have occurred.

The state law reads: "If the local commission is satisfied that the complaint substantially charges a violation and that from the facts alleged there is reasonable 'cause for such belief, it shall set the matter for hearing and shall serve notice upon the licensee of the time and place of such hearing and of the particular charge in the complaint."

Other Forms of License.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, or importers of liquors from foreign countries or from other states are to be directly under the jurisdiction of the state control commission.

An applicant for a manufacturer's, distributor's, or importing distributor's license must supply information concerning the company, corporation or partnership, citizenship, character of business, length of time which he or his concern has been in business, the amount of goods on hand when application is made, and a sworn statement that the applicant has never been convicted of a felony or disqualified to receive a license "by reason of any matter or thing contained in this act." No person licensed as a manufacturer is to be permitted to retain a retailer's license. Strict provisions are made to keep manufacturers from obtaining any interest in the retailing of liquor.

The law also prohibits village trustees, aldermen, members of county boards, or of the liquor commission from having investments or holding jobs in retail liquor stores, distilleries, or breweries. This will affect three Chicago aldermen—William V. Pacelli [20th], John J. Lagodny [21st], and Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d]—who face the alternatives of resigning from the council or disposing of their liquor interests. Ald. Pacelli is said to be interested in a loop liquor store, Ald. Rostenkowski in the White Eagle Brewing company, and Ald. Lagodny in the Gambrinis brewery.

The status of their liquor control ordinances, in view of the new state law, will determine whether the dry suburbs of Oak Park, River Forest and others face the necessity of adopting new control measures. If there is no conflict with the state law the dry communities would remain dry, the liquor commissioner in each—the mayor or chairman of the village board—refusing to issue licenses. In wet communities where there is no conflict the commissioner would proceed to license in accordance with local ordinance.

Under the law the city council may set up dry precincts within Chicago, which would be effective until next May 10. If the residents of a precinct wish to remain dry after May 10 they must present a petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters to their alderman in order to have the issue included on the ballot at the April 10 primary election when they will be allowed to determine their status by referendum. The matter may not be submitted to vote again for 47 months.

For Other Cities.

In downstate cities and all cities or villages within Cook county but outside the limits of Chicago the only appeal from the local commissioner, who is the mayor or president of the village board, is direct to the state commission with further appeal to the courts.

The liquor bill is 25,000 words long. It had a number of controversial points. Among them was the subject of bars. The governor suggested that bar service of drinks be limited to lunch counters and that the counters be only 40 inches in height. This was not adopted by the conference committee and bars may be retained—according to experts on the bill—if they are located in establishments whose principal business is the service of food.

The bill passed by the legislature is an emergency measure which will ecome effective as soon as Gov. Horner signs it. The governor has said that he will sign the bill as soon as it is printed and delivered to his office, which will be sometime today.

U. S. OPENS QUIZ ON PRICE FIXING BY A "WHISKY TRUST"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A federal investigation of distillers to discover whether a "whisky trust" has been formed to keep up liquor prices has been launched by the department of justice, it was learned today.

At the same time the treasury department moved to "crack down" on bootleg booze by requiring that all legal liquor carry revenue stamps.

The stamp requirement, treasury officials explained, has been put in to distinguish legal from illegal liquor easily.

Informed of the department of justice inquiry into an alleged "whisky trust," Dr. James M. Doran, head of the distillers' liquor code authority, denied that there was any monopoly of private price control.

Federal inquiry into an alleged trust is being confined strictly to distillers, it was learned. Local retail combines to force up retail prices are not being investigated because they do not affect interstate commerce and therefore are outside the federal authority.

A new treasury revenue stamp will be printed to be placed on bottled liquors under the regulations issued today. Previously stamps were placed only on bonded whiskies. Blended stocks have not had to carry stamps, but each bottle will have to have a stamp after Feb. 10.

SENATE PASSES BILL FOR LIQUOR ENFORCEMENT

Gov. Horner Will Rush; in Force Today.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 1 (Thursday).—[Special.]—Three bills appropriating $472,000 for the administration of the state liquor law which Gov. Horner signed last night were passed by the senate early today.

At a post-midnight session the upper chamber completed enactment of the laws which put the bill and its provisions in effect this morning. The governor will sign them as soon as they are presented.

36 Senators Present.

There were only 36 senators present this morning and the vote was 34 to 1. Senator U. M. Mason [Rep., Oglesby] voted against them, while Senator Roy Paddock [Rep., Wauconda] sat silent in his seat.

For just a few moments it appeared that the three bills might fail. When 32 votes were tallied the end of the roll was reached and the first bill still was two votes short of its constitutional two-thirds majority.

Senator Joseph Mendel [Dem., Chicago] was remaining silent like Paddock.

A group of administration leaders assembled about Mendel's desk, but he shook his head repeatedly until Senator John Broderick [Dem., Chicago] came through the door.

Two More Votes.

Mendel apparently believed Broderick would vote for the bill, for he suddenly said "Aye," and Broderick's vote followed in a few seconds. This made just the necessary count and the other two appropriation bills were quickly passed.

The governor signed the bill without comment. After it went through the house with only three votes to spare Mr. Horner issued a statement characterizing it as the best which could be passed under the circumstances.

The governor has been ill three weeks and is now in the convalescing stage. He hopes that the tag ends of the liquor session can be completed soon so that he can name the personnel of the state liquor commission and then take a vacation. He will go to St. Petersburg, Fla., for two weeks, starting Saturday. The third special session is expected to convene on Feb. 13.

A mass of requests for legislation at the next extraordinary meeting of the general assembly is piled on the governor's desk. He will specify what he considers the most important subjects in the call.

Several Subjects Probable.

There were reports today that enabling legislation for the continuation of A Century of Progress this summer, the question of mortgage moratoriums, grants to municipalities and taxing bodies to use federal monies, and a few more topics would be among those included.

There will be no fourth session, it was predicted, unless some matter of a pressing nature which is not foreseen at present, arises.

Cummings Reports to House Group.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The end of prohibition will mean a federal saving of more than fourteen million dollars in enforcement costs during the next two years, according to official estimates made public today in connection with the 1935 supply bill for the justice department.

In response to an inquiry by Representative Robert Low Bacon [Rep., N. Y.] Attorney General Homer S. Cummings furnished the house appropriations committee with a detailed tabulation of the savings expected to result from repeal. This table estimated that the reduction in the expenses of the prohibition bureau, resulting from the lack of need for expensive dry law enforcement activities, would approximate $5,952,000 this year and $8,540,000 next year.

Save on Salaries.

Of the prospective 1934 economies, according to the tabulation, four millions would be realized in reduced costs of the prohibition bureau, with the remainder made up as follows: Salaries, fees, expenses of United States marshals, $750,000; salaries and expenses of district attorneys, $400,000; fees of commissioners of United States courts, $75,000; fees of jurors and witnesses in federal courts, $700,000.

In 1935, according to the attorney general's table, the expenses of the prohibition bureau proper will be slashed by $6,440,000 and the other savings will consist of $750,000 in United States marshals' salaries and expenses, $400,000 in district attorneys' costs, $100,000 in commissioners' costs, and $850,000 in fees for witnesses and jurors.

Prisons Cost Less.

In addition to these economies, said the attorney general, the bureau of prisons expects to be able to make substantial reduction in the cost of operating federal penal institutions from which all dry law convicts have been or are to be freed.

"There has been some saving in the bureau of prisons," said Cummings, "growing out of the release of prohibition prisoners and the diminution of that business and there will become further tendency in that direction. I think, however, you ought not to overlook this suggestion: We must not be overoptimistic about the number of federal prisoners that we will have to take care of during the coming year."

MRS. BRUNDAGE NAMED GUARDIAN OF HER CHILDREN

Court Hearing Discloses Insurance of $98,000.

Mrs. Germaine Vernier Brundage of Lake Forest, widow of Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general of Illinois, yesterday was appointed guardian of her four children by Acting Probate Judge Theodore Forby of Lake county in Waukegan. During the proceedings Mrs. Brundage revealed that her husband's estate is insolvent, but that the children are beneficiaries of endowment insurance trusts which have a face value of $48,451.

After the court hearing Mrs. Brundage also disclosed that she is the beneficiary of other policies on Mr. Brundage's life which will total "around $50,000." She added that her attorneys, the law firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales & Adams, are still conducting a search for a will which she believes her husband executed. If the will is not found by Monday she said she would present a petition for letters of administration for his estate in the Cook county Probate court.

Insurance for the Children.

Yesterday's proceedings involved only the children, Edward, Jr., 18 years old; Margaret, 16; Jacqueline Louise, 14, and Robert, 10. The policies of which they are beneficiaries are payable partly in a lump sum and party in monthly amounts over twenty years.

Mrs. Brundage informed Judge Forby that $8,472 is due the children on the endowment policies at this time. She was granted leave to collect the money and invest a portion of it in government securities. She also was authorized to use a part of the fund to repay loans which her husband had made against the policies. The loans, according to the court records, reduced the face value of the policies by approximately 40 per cent.

Investigates Husband's Death.

Mrs. Brundage said she still is unconvinced that her husband shot himself in his home at 700 South Ridge avenue, Lake Forest, where he was found dead last Jan. 20. Although a coroner's jury decided that Mr. Brundage had "apparently committed suicide," Mrs. Brundage has employed private detectives to investigate his death.

CAMERA THIEF GETS SIX MONTHS.

Edward Brill, 44 years old, of Detroit, who ran off with three cameras after he tossed a brick through the display window of the Central Camera and Supply company at 230 South Wabash avenue, yesterday was sentenced to serve six months in the Bridewell by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court.

RABER ASSAILED BY ALD. NELSON'S LAWYER AT TRIAL

Thompson Hurls Epithets at Prosecutor.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

The racket conspiracy case on trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in Criminal court was enlivened by sharp personal investive just outside the courtroom yesterday.

Cause of His Wrath.

The former chief justice's wrath rose during the morning session when Raber called to the stand a retail tailor, Philip Rosenstein of 3044 Fullerton avenue, to relate an instance of gun play which he experienced in 1925. Mr. Thompson stood up to object, as he had to previous testimony of that period, as being too remote to link with defendants who, by the state's admission, did not become involved in the alleged conspiracy until 1931.

With Judge Finnegan withholding his ruling for the moment, Raber guided his witness through a recital of differences he and officials of the cleaning and dyeing unions had over insurance rates, leading up to the day when he alleged a gunman walked into his shop and fired a bullet at his leg.

Thompson's Face Grows Red.

Mr. Thompson, who avers his aldermanic client was never connected with the cleaning business, reddened with anger as Raber pressed on. The jury was taking in every word.

"Directing your attention to July, 1925, did you have any conversation with any of the defendants here present?"

The witness asserted he did. Stepping off the stand, he pointed out Ben Abrams, business agent of the Inside Dye Workers' union, and Al Boris and Charles Goldstein, business agents of the Retail Tailors' union.

Q.—What was the conversation? A.—There was a meeting of 3,000 retail tailors. I got up and objected to a plan of the retail tailors' insuring their garments through the master cleaners at a charge of 3 per cent, when we small tailors could get cheaper insurance through regular casualty companies.

Q.—What did the defendants say? A.—They told me I'd better go along.

Raber was shooting his questions swiftly now. The jury was intent and the flush on former Justice Thompson's face was deepening.

Q.—What happened after they told you to go along? A.—It was about a week later—a man with a pistol walked into my store—never said a word—just fired a shot at my leg, and walked out.

Q.—Did the gunman make any effort to take your watch or money?

Jury Is Excused.

The tailor's negative answer was stifled with a crash of chairs as a half dozen defense lawyers, Mr. Thompson among them, rushed from their seats to demand before the bench that the testimony be stricken. Judge Finnegan excused the jury.

"You can cool off during noon time and I'll rule at 2 o'clock," the judge told the attorneys.

Raber, his assistant, Dodd Healy, and the defense legal battery moved to the door. Thompson shot a stormy glance at Raber.

"I was always for you, Ed," he called, "but this was downright dirty."

The prosecutor laughed and walked downstairs to his office, where he was still detained when court was called at 2 p. m. His assistant, Healy, took over questioning of the witness Rosenstein.

He led the witness through one window smashing and three bombings up to 1931, when three other defendants, Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, F. Walter Crowley, and Attorney Morris I. Kaplan organized the Cleaners' and Dyers' institute.

Tells Who Spoke.

Q.—You say you were at the organization meeting—who spoke there? A.—Dr. Squires, Mr. Kaplan, and I'm not sure about Walter Crowley.

Q.—You're not sure about Crowley?

The answer was interrupted as former Judge Thompson leaned out of his chair and addressed Attorney Kaplan in a loud whisper—the only audible phrase at the press bench being, "Damned fools like these."

Prosecutor Healy caught the remark, as some of the jurors apparently did also.

"Object," he thundered. "Object to counsel making derogatory remarks about the witness in the presence of the jury. Object to profanity in this courtroom."

With a smile of resignation, Judge Finnegan excused the jury. Counsel crowded forward to the bench once more. Mr. Thompson silenced the now vociferous Healy with a pompous gesture.

"I'll tell what I said," he announced loudly. "I was merely telling Attorney Kaplan that the state ought to cease linking these defendants in wholly irrelevant testimony."

"That's not all," Healy barked back. "I'll swear these reporters to testify they heard profanity."

Judge Finnegan declared another recess. Healy resumed his seat while Thompson, seemingly in a fury now, stalked to the door with associate counsel and defendants trailing behind him. An audience of about sixty persons circled him as he vented his sentiments on Prosecutor Raber.

Lawyer Grows Profane.

"This case—it's like nothing in my experience," he choked. "I was a prosecutor for seven years myself, but I wasn't a dirty dog. I fought hard for convictions, too, but I wasn't a ———. That's what this man is."

Reporters, who had been following the vicissitudes of the racket ridden cleaning and dyeing business for four years, stepped up to defend the absent Raber.

"Yes, and the newspapers are just as bad," the former chief justice stormed. "This constant reiteration of the name of an honorable man—Oscar Nelson. This abuse of a name he has been building up for years. There's no stauncher champion of the freedom of the press than I, but this stuff is intolerable. Oscar Nelson had no more to do with rackets than I had."

"Then the state brings in this story about a shooting, that had nothing to do with this trial. I think it's damned dirty. Print that."

Boris, Goldstein and other union defendants were cheering when Thompson finished. They sauntered back to court, smiling, and the session resumed in a calmer tone.

EMMA GOLDMAN TO RETURN 'HOME' TODAY AFTER LONG ABSENCE

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Tempered by more than 40 years of battling against the social order, Emma Goldman, when she arrives here tomorrow will find a different "home" from that which she left in 1891 as a fieryyoun g anarchist.

Sixty-four now, she was 21 when, after a quarrel with her husband, she set off for New York, vowed to devote her life to anarchy. The Goldmans had settled in Rochester a few years previously after fleeing from religious persecution in Russia.

Fourteen years ago the United States deported Miss Goldman to Russia as an undesirable. She returns to her adopted land on a 90 day permit authorized by President Roosevelt. She will find the home she last visited in 1919, but not her mother. She died in 1923 at the age of 86, unable to understand her daughter's hatred for "capitalism."

RIDES 100 MILES WITH DEAD BODY IN SEAT WITH HIM

Admits Hiding Victim of Saloon Slaying.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A weird story was today unfolded to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney William C. Buckingham by Thomas Bradley, proprietor of a café in Hamtramck, a Detroit suburb.

Bradley told in detail the story of a more than a hundred mile ride in the early morning hours of Jan. 6 with the body of a dead man propped up in the tonneau of his automobile in a position that would lead any observer to believe it alive.

The body, Bradley confessed, was that of Anthony Gossman, an employé, who was shot and killed in Bradley's café the night before. The shooting, according to Bradley, was done by Frank Reid, a gambler, who resented the "bouncing" of a friend from the place by Gossman.

Body Found in Culvert.

The body was found Jan. 22, stuffed into a culvert under a lonely road near New Baltimore, Mich. The police are searching for Reid. Bradley and four inmates of his place are held as police witnesses. Bradley also faces charges of operating a disorderly house and violating the state liquor control law.

"I didn't want the body found in my place," Bradley said. "I was rattled and I wanted to get rid of it before there was trouble.

"I got two of the boys to put the body into Gossman's car and prop it up so it would look as if he was just sitting there. They did it, but they wouldn't go with me. I had to go alone.

"I was looking for a culvert in a narrow ditch where the body wouldn't be seen from the road and with no houses near it. It was hard to find.

Shakes Hands and Leaves.

"I drove out to Utica, over to Mount Clemens, up to Port Huron and back to New Baltimore before I found what I wanted. I hauled the body out of the car and before I shoved it in the culvert I shook its hand—it as cold and stiff, too—and said, 'Good-by, old pal.' Then I shoved him in the culvert.

"I mean it, too. We were pals, and I gave him a job when I really didn't need another man, just so he could get enough money to support his wife and five children."

Bradley, after telling his story drove Buckingham and Leonard Smith, investigator, over the route he had taken.

CUTTEN DENIES OFFERING TO PAY FOR PROPAGANDA

Answers "Ghost Writer" in Suit for $50,000.

Arthur Cutten, wealthy grain speculator, spent most of the day yesterday on the witness stand before Circuit Judge John Prystalski, denying the allegations of John R. Mauff, former official of the Board of Trade, who is suing him for $50,000 on the claim that he acted as Cutten's propagandist and "ghost writer."

Throughout his direct and cross-examination Cutten denied he employed Mauff during the period from 1929 to 1933 for which Mauff seeks payment. They consulted frequently and Mauff wrote articles on which Cutten's name appeared, the witness admitted, but this, he asserted, arose from the fact that they had a common interest in amendment of some of the rules of the Chicago Board of Trade and of the provisions of the federal grain futures act. That interest, Cutten continued, was a desire to improve the status of grain farmers and of the Board of Trade, and not a personal desire for profit.

Tells of Fighting Rules.

Mauff, in his testimony, charged that Cutten employed him as a propagandist to obtain revision of rules of the Board of Trade, principally regarding the storage of grain and the delivery of grain on future contracts. In that capacity, he said, he conferred with Senators Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota and James Watson of Indiana, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, and some congressmen, and prepared numerous newspaper and radio articles.

Cutten was examined by his attorney, James G. Condon, as follows:

Q.—Was it any secret that you opposed these rules of the Board of Trade? A.—It was no secret. I was always outspoken.

Farm Board Opposed.

Q.—Mr. Mauff referred to your activities against the farm board. Did you oppose that bill on principle? A.—Yes.

Q.—Because it was not for the ultimate good of the farmer? A.—Yes. Mauff's views were the same as mine. We agreed on principles. We believed the same rules should be changed.

Q.—Did Mauff ever say he expected compensation from you for his correspondence with Washington officials? A.—He never mentioned or suggested it.

Q.—Was anything said in 1929 when Mr. Mauff started writing these articles? A.—No, we just drifted along.

Q.—Why were some of the articles signed by you and some by him? A.—He asked me to sign some of them.

Witness Cross-Examined.

Q.—Your defense is that you and Mr. Mauff collaborated for a common purpose for a common interest, is it not? A.—We were both in favor of changing some of the rules of the Board of Trade.

Q.—Well, weren't you looking after your own interests in wanting these changes? A.—No.

Q.—You thought storage charges were too high because you stored millions of bushels of grain, didn't you? A.—I stored some grain.

Q.—Isn't it true that you didn't like the cariot rule because it favored the sellers? A.—Yes, I'd like it if I were short, but not if I were long.

Q.—But you were usually long, weren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—So you did have a financial interest in wanting the rule changed? A.—My interest was for the Board of Trade.

Testimony in the case was finished yesterday. It will go to the jury after attorneys have made their arguments this afternoon.

CONSERVE HUMAN ENERGY, WARNING OF PROF. PITKIN

High Powered Engine Wears Out Frame.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A warning that human energies must be conserved if man is to continue to live in his present highly organized state was given yesterday by Dr. Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia university in an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Morrison hotel. Dr. Pitkin is author of "Life Begins at Forty," and "More Power to You."

Dr. Pitkin was introduced to members of the association as "one who speaks our language, a writer, farmer, teacher, jack of all trades." He is 55 years old, with thinning gray hair, and whimsical eyes behind horn rimmed spectacles. He wore a gray business suit, the coat hanging loosely from his shoulders.

Likens Audience to Motors.

"I am convinced," he began, "that none of you know where you are. I have the impression that I am speaking before an assembly of de luxe automobiles in a motor show, a collection not made by mass production, but custom made. So to make my point clear, I will liken you to motor cars for which some gadget must be found to keep the high powered engine from wearing out the chassis.

"Breakdowns have been increasing in the last quarter century because the motor has been too strong for the light frame of easy work. You have made life easy and you will go on doing so. The result will be more untapped reservoirs of human energies.

"There are other defects in these human motor cars. The carburetor is too sensitive. If you step on the gas the engine nearly jumps out of the chassis. The energy is wasted. It is released through the mechanism of human emotions tuned up too wildly. What we should do is to sit back and dope out the whole thing so one could eat his next meal without having to take bicarbonate of soda."

Cites Time Patterns.

Time patterns of people's energies show that hours of rest and hours of work vary as to individuals, the speaker declared. These time patterns should be taken into consideration by employers, he said.

"You are familiar with the person who gets up at 7 a. m., a low grade imbecile, and by breakfast is a high grade moron," Dr. Pitkin continued. "By 9:30 he is a subaverage adult, but by 11 a. m. he is a genius. Many failures in business are due to nothing but that type of time pattern.

"There is the type that arises 100 per cent awake, but runs down late in the afternoon, and another type which has two peaks during the day, with a slowing up after lunch and toward evening. Then there is the rare group that is always up—and gets complete relaxation in a few seconds. This type includes men like President Roosevelt, Lloyd George, and Edison. Why shouldn't one pick employés according to their types of energy patterns?"

DROP 1935 NAVAL CONFERENCE, JAP OFFICIAL URGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 31.—Expressing fear that Japan may be forced to wreck the 1935 naval conference with Great Britain and the United States, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former foreign minister, today proposed to the house of peers that the conference be abandoned altogether "unless preliminary negotiations should show that there is a possibility of agreement."

Almost simultaneously Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of navy, announced in the house of representatives that new auxiliary vessels of the Japanese navy will outrank those of the United States by the end of 1936. Admiral Osumi presented statistics showing that Japan at the end of 1936 will have 140 under age cruisers, destroyers and submarines, compared to 100 such craft in the American navy.

Fears Aggravation of Unrest.

Convinced that a breakup of the 1935 naval conference is inevitable due to the expressed determination of the Japanese naval chiefs to demand a higher ratio, possibly parity, with the United States and Great Britain, and the equally strong determination of the United States to oppose this demand, Yoshizawa warned that failure of the parley will merely aggravate the state of unrest.

Yoshizawa, who took a leading rôle in Japan's fight against the league of nations over the Manchurian issue, expressed grave concern at the talk of war between the United States and Japan and soviet Russia and Japan.

He also warned of the likelihood that the question of Manchukuo would be brought up at the 1935 conference, just as the far eastern issue was brought up at the Washington conference in 1922. Accordingly, he declared, the government ought to decide as soon as possible whether it is going to participate in the 1935 meeting.

Asks Muzzle on War Talk.

Regarding soviet Russia, Yoshizawa said:

"I cannot see why we should engage in war over the North Manchurian railway, and I don't see any other reason for fighting, yet books declaring war is inevitable are being published on this side in increasing numbers, while on the other hand Russian leaders are sounding war alarms."

Yoshizawa urged the government to clear the atmosphere and also to silence those who are stirring up feeling.

Koki Hirota, foreign minister, replied that the government has not yet decided on its attitude toward the naval conference, but he said he shared fully Yoshizawa's concern about war talk.

The foreign office spokesman today said Japan is willing to enter an agreement clearing the borders between Manchukuo, Corea, and Russia of all troops and fortifications, and create a situation similar to that on the United States-Canadian border.

Spurns Nonaggression Pact.

Despite recent provocative utterances by Josef Stalin, Russian dictator, and other high communist officials, the spokesman said that Hirota ardently desires to open friendly negotiations. He added that Hirota feels that the recent war talk is all the more reason why one of the most dangerous factors in the maintenance of peace between the two countries should be removed.

The spokesman explained, however, that Hirota objects to a nonaggression pact because he cannot see much practical benefit in it. He pointed out that, while such agreements have been entered into by the soviets with nations on their western border, this is not keeping the respective nations from concentrating their armies on the frontiers and has not removed the danger of war.

Senate Speeds Big Navy Bill as Reply to Boast of Japanese

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A determination to make up for lost time in naval construction was the congressional reaction today to dispatches recounting speeches in the Japanese parliament predicting that Japanese auxiliary vessels would outrank those of the United States by 1936 and forecasting Japan's withdrawal from the proposed 1935 disarmament conference.

The senate prepared to take up early next week the largest naval construction bill in peace time history, which the house passed yesterday. The measure is the Vinson naval replacement bill calling for expenditures of 475 million dollars and 507 million dollars over a five year period in order to bring the United States forces up to treaty strength.

See Votes to Spare.

There was every evidence that the bill would go through the upper house with votes to spare. President Roosevelt's reversal of the Hoover policy of postponement and delay is being reflected by an eagerness among members of congress to make up as swiftly as possible for what a majority regard as a tremendous mistake. Members are echoing the remark of Representative W. A. Ayres [Dem., Kas.], in presenting the naval appropriation bill for 1935: "Disarmament by example is a dismal failure."

Treaty vessels now in existence which will be underage on Dec. 31, 1936, the date of the treaty expiration, total only 48 of 513,960 tons for the United States, 101 of 554,293 tons for Great Britain, and 130 of 538,023 tons for Japan.

Would Retire Old Vessels.

All United States destroyers now in existence and all but 18 submarines will be over age in 1936; all but three of the destroyers, in fact, are over age now.

The Vinson replacement bill authorizes the vessels required to meet retirement of over age. Ovr the five year period, it will enable the construction of 65 destroyers, 30 submarines, and one aircraft carrier, and will authorize the purchase of 1,184 airplanes to equip ships now under construction and projected.

With ships under construction, authorized or to be appropriated for, the Vinson bill is designed finally to bring the American navy to treaty strength.

JAPANESE TROOPS NEAR SOVIET BORDER IN "BANDIT HUNT"

TOKIO, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Japanese infantry and auxiliary military forces of the Japanese-assisted state of Manchukuo are approaching the soviet frontier in anti-bandit operations, dispatches from Hsinking [Changchun] said today.

The dispatches, sent out by Rengo [Japanese] and other news agencies from the Manchukuan capital, added that three large columns of Japanese infantry were involved in operations centered in eastern Kirin province of Manchukuo.

The war office in Tokio said the operations were not connected in any way, with the Russo-Japanese situation. The sole purpose of the drive, a spokesman said, is to smash bandits concentrated along the eastern frontier, where it is estimated 30,000 brigands have been preying on the countryside.

The dispatches said 150 bandits had been killed and several hundred wounded.

STALIN POLICY WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin received an unprecedented mandate of confidence at a session today of the 17th all-union communist party congress. The delegates adopted a report he gave recently as a "guide for all party activity in the future."

The delegates had concluded their debate on his speech, in which he reviewed Russia's foreign policy and industrial plans, but refused to allow him the privilege of rebuttal. Instead, they cheered him for four minutes and then unanimously approved the address.

Not since the bolshevik revolution has such a congress accepted the statements of a head of the central committee without extensive rebuttal.

Woman Shot by Fireman Who "Died" Dies of Hurts

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Fay Martz, 40, of Quincy, died at a hospital here this morning of wounds received when she was shot yesterday by J. L. Davis, a Burlington railway fireman. Mrs. Ada Duncan, 49, also fired on by Davis, is expected to recover. Though once pronounced dead, Davis barricaded himself a second time and was trying to hang when police gained entrance.

HULL, 1,500 TON U. S. DESTROYER, LAUNCHED IN N. Y.

346 Foot Craft Ready for Completion.

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—In the presence of a cheering crowd of 10,000 including the entire working force of the Brooklyn Navy yard, the 1,500 ton, 346 foot destroyer Hull was launched at the yard today. The Hull was christened with champagne the first naval vessel to be so honored since the advent of prohibition.

The sponsor was Patricia Louise Platt, 10 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haviland Platt of 1095 Park avenue. Miss Patricia is a granddaughter of Levi Hull, brother of Commodore Isaac Hull for whom the new destroyer was named. Commodore Hull was the commander of the frigate Constitution in her battle with the Guerriere in the war of 1812.

Navy Yard Cheerful.

The atmosphere of the navy yard was one of unwonted cheerfulness. Not only had the hull of the new destroyer been completed ahead of time, but the passage by the house yesterday of a bill providing for enlargement of the navy will provide work for hundreds of men at the yard for at least two years to come.

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., commandant of the navy yard, was the host of a group of naval officers at the ceremony.

Messages of regret at inability to attend the launching were received from President Roosevelt, Secretary of the Navy Swanson, and Mayor La Guardia.

The keel for the destroyer was laid last March and she will be ready for service within eight months, yard officials estimate. Work on her superstructure is soon to begin. No commander has yet been assigned.

Hull One of Five.

The Hull is one of the five destroyers for which appropriations were made by congress in 1931, and is the first of three destroyers which will be constructed at the navy yard. The keel of the second will be laid soon and it is estimated that both of the other destroyers will be in service within two years.

The new destroyers will have an estimated speed of between 30 and 35 knots.

Armament of the Hull will include five 5-inch 40 caliber "double purpose" guns for use against ships or aircraft, two quadruple torpedo tubes, all mounted on the center line, and ten 50 caliber machine guns for anti-aircraft use.

30 HOUR WEEK, MORE PAY, MADE MINERS' POLICY

Wage Scale Boards So Instructed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Increased pay for coal miners of the nation, along with establishment of the six hour day and five day week, were adopted as the wage scale policy of the United Mine Workers of America at the closing sessions of the international convention here today.

Demands for a definite wage increase were turned down when the convention approved a report of the wage scale committee authorizing negotiations with bituminous operators and through the national Industrial Recovery administration for "the best contract obtainable." Flat increases in wages were urged by some delegates.

Officers and members of the union's scale committee were authorized to press for adoption of the six hour day and five day week at the bituminous coal conference to be held in Washington Feb. 12.

"Restoration of prosperity to the mining industry and the nation as a whole can come only through the medium of higher wage levels, which of course means increased purchasing power and a consequent increase in employment generally," the report said.

The reports commented on the increase in union membership under the recovery act, which permits workers to organize without interference, and that wages in former nonunion fields have been increased from 20 to as much as 300 per cent.

It was recommended that all contracts negotiated should provide for recognition of the union and "check-off" of union dues.

The next convention will be held in Washington in January, 1936.

Speaking in behalf of the wage scale reports, John L. Lewis, international president, warned delegates they must be conservative in wage demands.

"It took the United Mine Workers forty-four years to establish the ideals of collective bargaining throughout the country," he said.

"We have at least established the right of men to belong to the union, but it will take time to eradicate other evils that have grown in industry."

SURVEY SHOWS MEXICO IS RIPE FOR U. S. TRADE

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.—Mexican-American trade relations today are at a point where with wisdom and prompt action American exporters may greatly increase their markets. The time is favorable for action. A new feeling of friendship exists here toward the United States, and Mexico is on the upgrade economically.

With negotiations for a reciprocity agreement pending in Washington, in which increased exchange of goods will be made possible by mutual lowering of tariffs, another movement in which both governments must take part is essential before the full measure of trade possibilities with this country is achieved. This will be an agreement between the two governments in which they guarantee credits for the exchange of goods between their nationals.

Suggest Guarantee Fund.

A guarantee fund of 300 million dollars is suggested here, but more important than this will be the influence of the Mexican government in a moral way on business men who sign the agreement. It is felt that this would be effectual without the use of funds.

A recent pipe line order of $750,000 was lost to an American firm because of unwillingness to extend credit. This order went to Europe—England, Germany, France, and Spain—which backed their business men to the extent of guaranteeing the cost of production and laying down the goods at Mexican ports. With similar backing of the American and Mexican governments, whereby exporters would be sure of collections, business on both sides would receive a greater stimulus than afforded by a trade agreement.

The action for Mexico on both trade agreement and guarantee fund is a simple matter of a presidential decree. Mexico is ready to talk tariff reciprocity and detailed studies of both sides are now in Washington. Secrecy of the details is maintained on both sides of the border, as reactions from the industries affected might interfere with the plan.

Wants to Export Liquor.

Mexico wants to send in liquor, vegetables, and thin cattle, and stands ready to reduce duties on machinery, autos, and other imports. Economic nationalism exists here, as in Canada, but Pan-American sentiment works toward the benefit of the United States just as empire sentiment works against the United States in the north.

Fostering of industry and manufacturers by the Mexican government has greatly increased in the last few years. Unless an agreement is reached with the United States this trend will increase and Mexico become more self-sufficient. There is need for haste if the United States is to keep and extend its markets here, as well as in other parts of Latin America.

Mexico is on the way toward becoming a competitor of the United States and Europe in selling manufactured articles to Latin America. It is sending a delegation next month to Central America. This delegation will tour all countries in the interests of extening Mexican business. A recent delegation of Honduras business men bound for the United States stopped in Mexico and found all they needed here. Great Britain, Germany, and Japan were competing for this business.

Japan a Big Factor.

Japan has a trade exhibit ship somewhere on the Pacific coast of Central America, sending caravans inland and on the way to Mexico. The Japanese increased their Mexican business 115 per cent during the last six months of 1933 over the corresponding period of 1932. This was largely in electrical goods, dental supplies, and machine parts.

The United States has an advantage, however, which Japan cannot overcome except by cheapness. It takes 120 days to get an order filled in Japan, while goods from the United States are turned over three times in this period.

Mexico is competing for the Latin trade in shoes, hats, cotton, and woolen goods. It still needs, however, many American goods and likes them. Importers here have ready distribution and the majority are good, solid businessmen.

Currency Favors U. S.

The money situation favors American trade, as the peso is pegged to the dollar. The Mexican banking situation is sound and constructive, and the effects of the seven year period of stable government is apparent everywhere in the higher standards of living and increased purchasing power of the people.

The opportunity is here, but American exporters must act quickly, or it may be lost. The American Chamber of Commerce here is ready to extend help, as is also the American trade commissioner. Direct contact and study of the situation is advisable, and correspondence in Spanish.

Cuba, Canada Near Pact to Admit Goods Duty Free

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 31.—Secretary of State Cosme de la Torriente today announced that a Cuban-Canadian reciprocity treaty is virtually assured. The Canadian trade commissioner would not disclose details of the treaty, but it is understood to involve the annual sale of 280,000 tons of Cuban sugar, duty free. In exchange Canadian potatoes, paper, and codfish would be admitted to Cuba.

BRITISH FINANCIERS REBUFF OFFERS OF TURK TRADE MISSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—American exporters of coal handling machinery and textiles may have a chance to do some business with Turkey if they are willing to grant long credits.

Reqaib Bey and Esmad Bey of the Turkish ministry of national economy left London today after an unsuccessful effort to arrange trade terms for British supplies. They were prepared to spend $60,000,000 immediately and more later, if satisfactory terms could be arranged. They met a cold reception from London financiers, who fear that when President Mustafa Kemal Pasha dies Turkey will relapse into its old, easy going, unbusinesslike ways. The British financiers also do not like the idea of a planned economy, on the Russian scheme, which Turkey has adopted.

The Turkish delegates are going to Belgium. They will sail for the United States soon.

SYMPHONY GROUP PLANS CAMPAIGN TO OBTAIN FUNDS

Orchestral Association Faces Deficit.

Plans for a campaign to obtain guarantors and funds from the public to support the Chicago Symphony orchestra were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Orchestral association. The operating deficit for the current season will be approximately $70,000.

The association selected a committee, with Arthur G. Cable as chairman, to map out the campaign, the details of which will be announced within a few days. It was said that the committee would also seek ways and means of financing the symphony for next season. Other members of the committee are Edward L. Ryerson Jr., C. B. Goodspeed and Chauncey McCormick.

Mr. Cable pointed out that since the erection of Orchestra hall thirty years ago rents from offices in the building have aided in paying the expenses of the concert to such an extent that solicitation of funds was not needed. The deficits of the last three years, Cable said, and the effects of the depression on the attendance at the concerts, however, have brought about a serious situation in the orchestra's finances.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra has held an unusual position in the country in that the building, producing revenue, is owned by the organization.

Mr. Cable called attention to the fact that the directors of the New York Philharmonic symphony face a deficit of $150,000 for the current season and have launched a campaign to raise $500,000 to underwrite deficits for the next three seasons. The Boston symphony, with a current deficit of $120,055, has asked that contributions be doubled in order that the organization may continue.

ENVOY SEEKS TO INCREASE TRADE WITH IRELAND

An intention of helping trade between the Irish Free State and the United States was expressed yesterday by W. W. McDowell, recently appointed American minister to the Irish Free State. Mr. McDowell, whose home is in Butte, Mont., will leave Chicago today for Washington, D. C., where he will spend a month before sailing for his new post.

"I plan to familiarize myself with Ireland soon after I get there, visiting by motor car every county and learning what the conditions are," Mr. McDowell said. "It is my plan to help cement friendship and to build up commerce between the two countries."

The new minister to Ireland for a time was acting governor of Montana and served as lieutenant governor of the state and speaker of the house.

Empty Your Gall Bladder
And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!
Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?
And have you kept right on suffering under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?
No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing acid, acids and digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food ferments, putrifies, stomach bothers you with gas, bad breath.
From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps away bowel clean.
Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring, a glass of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning with new health! Such relief you'll get from Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

PRESIDENT CUTS DOLLAR'S VALUE TO 59C IN GOLD

This is the wording of the old gold certificate except the last four words which were added to the new certificate. The significance of these added four words is that under the gold reserve act signed by the President yesterday gold certificates are redeemable in gold only at the option of the treasury.

The gold is payable on demand if the treasury, for purposes of its own, elects to pay it. This is what Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] meant when he said that we now have an irredeemable currency. The certificate carries the regulation legal tender clause. These certificates will not circulate and will be held almost exclusively by the reserve banks.

Two Billion for Stabilization.

Out of the 2 billion 800 million dollars gold profit accruing from revaluation of the dollar 2 billion dollars goes into a secret stabilization fund which Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., will proceed to use at once in buying and selling gold and foreign exchange for the control of the value of the dollar in international trade. He may also use the fund to buy and sell government securities and thereby manipulate the government bond market.

Secretary Morgenthau started operations with his 2 billions fund by issuing a public announcement that beginning on Feb. 1 he will buy through the federal reserve bank of New York "any and all gold" delivered at United States mints at $35 an ounce. This represents an increase of 55 cents an ounce in the price at which the government has been bidding for gold of late in pursuance of the program to depreciate the dollar.

In this connection it transpired that the reason the new value of the dollar is fixed at 59.06 per cent of its former value is that the treasury decided to offer a flat $35 an ounce for gold. The statutory price of gold has been $20.67 an ounce. The ratio of $35 to $20.67 is the ratio of 100 cents to 59.06 cents.

The treasury will sell as well as buy gold. It will not be exactly a free gold market such as is now established inasmuch as only licensed persons can trade in gold but for the first time since last March it will be possible to export gold.

Currency War May Result.

The offer to buy all gold offered at $35 an ounce will depreciate the dollar in terms of the franc and pound sterling unless France and Great Britain take steps to counteract the effect.

Here is where the much talked of currency war comes in. Mr. Morgenthau has two billion dollars with which to buy and sell foreign exchange and thereby manipulate the dollar. The British have a fund almost as large with which to manipulate the pound.

Mr. Morgenthau is interested in keeping the dollar from appreciating, for a cheap dollar promotes our export trade. The British, for the same reason, are interested in keeping the pound from appreciating. Herein is the making of a currency depreciation race.

In addition, if our cheap dollar booms our export trade too much the British and French will raise their trade barriers against us still higher.

President Expects Agreement.

The British have been manipulating the pound, and some say the dollar, with their enormous equalization fund ever since they went off gold. Now that the American government will be doing the same thing for the dollar the President expects that the British will find they cannot have everything their own way and will sue for terms and consent to an agreement stabilizing currencies.

The treasury will buy gold or foreign exchange to keep the dollar from rising above a value of 59.06 cents on the international market and will sell gold and exchange whenever it desires to keep the dollar from weakening.

In this connection it transpired that there is nothing to prevent the treasury from manipulating the dollar outside of the prescribed ten point range, just as has been done since Oct. 22.

That is, outside of the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund and acting under the provisions of the gold reserve act of 1934, which reanimated two civil war statutes, the treasury can, through purchases of gold, depress the value of the dollar below the 50 cent limit imposed by the Thomas amendment or raise it above the 60 cent limit imposed by the new act.

Thus the treasury could drive the dollar down to 25 cents gold value or even lower, or by selling gold shove the dollar back somewhere near the old value of 100 cents.

The President announced the devaluation of the dollar at a conference with the press at 4 o'clock. His office was jammed with reporters when he was ready to make the announcement. He ordered the doors locked for five minutes.

Released for Gold Market.

After briefly explaining his action, he released the news in order to allow it to reach New York before the close of the American gold market. Otherwise, the European gold market opening tomorrow would alone benefit.

At the treasury it was pointed out that the action of today restores an international gold bullion market such as existed prior to last March. The country is now on a bullion gold standard, as the President puts it. No gold is allowed to circulate in this country and the only transfers of gold will be between this and other countries in settlement of international trade balances. Gold will be no longer coined and those coins extant will be melted into bullion.

No gold will be purchased by the treasury from hoarders and those selling gold to the treasury must establish that it is not from hoarding sources. It is estimated that about 300 millions is still in hiding.

President Explains Edict Revaluing Dollar

"1. Acting under the powers granted by title 3 of the act approved May 12, 1933, [Thomas amendment to the farm relief act] the President today issued a proclamation fixing the weight of the gold dollar at fifteen and five-twenty-firsts grains, nine-tenths fine. This is 59.06 plus per cent of the former weight of twenty-five and eight-tenths grains, nine-tenths fine, as fixed by section 1 of the act of congress of March 4, 1900. The new gold content of the dollar becomes effective immediately on the signing of the proclamation by the President.

"Under the gold reserve act of 1934, signed by the President Tuesday, Jan. 30, title to the entire stock of monetary gold in the United States, including the gold coin and gold bullion heretofore held by the federal reserve banks and the claim upon gold in the treasury represented by gold certificates, is vested in the United States government and the 'profit' from the reduction of the gold content of the dollar, made effective by today's proclamation, accrues to the United States treasury.

2 Billion for Stabilization.

"Of this 'profit' two billion dollars, under the terms of the gold reserve act and of today's proclamation, constitutes a stabilization fund under the direction of the secretary of the treasury. The balance will be covered into the general fund of the treasury.

"Settlement for the gold coin, bullion and certificates taken over from the federal reserve banks on Tuesday upon the approval of the act, was made in the form of credits set up on the treasury's books. This credit due the federal reserve banks is to be paid in the new form of gold certificates now in course of production by the bureau of engraving and printing. These certificates bear on their face the wording:

'This is to certify that there is on deposit in the treasury of the United States of America ..... dollars in gold, payable to bearer on demand as authorized by law.'

"They also will carry the standard legal tender clause, which is as follows:

'This certificate is a legal tender in the amount thereof in payment of all debts and dues public and private.'

Same Size as Formerly.

"The new gold certificates will be of the same size as other currency in circulation and the only difference, other than the changes in wording noted above, is that the backs of the new certificates will, as used to be done, be printed in yellow ink. The certificates will be in denominations up to $100,000.

"In his proclamation of today the President gives notice that he reserves the right, by virtue of the authority vested in him, to alter or modify the present proclamation as the interest of the United States may seem to require. The authority by later proclamation to accomplish other revaluations of the dollar in terms of gold is contained in the gold reserve act signed on Tuesday.

Gold Purchases.

"2. The secretary of the treasury, with the approval of the President, issued a public announcement that beginning Feb. 1, 1934, he will buy through the Federal Reserve Bank of New York as fiscal agent, for the account of the United States, any and all gold delivered to any United States mints or the assay offices in New York or Seattle, at the rate of $35 per fine troy ounce, less the usual mint charges and less one-fourth of 1 per cent for handling charges. Purchases, however, are subject to compliance with the regulations issued under the gold reserve act of 1934.

"3. The secretary of the treasury today promulgated new regulations with respect to the purchase and sale of gold by the mints. Under these regulations the mints are authorized to purchase gold recovered from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to its jurisdiction. Unmerited scrap gold, gold imported into the United States after Jan. 30, 1934, and such other gold as may be authorized from time to time by rulings of the secretary of the treasury.

No Hoarded Gold Accepted.

"No gold, however, may be purchased which has been held in noncompliance with previous acts or orders, or noncompliance with the gold reserve act of 1934, or these regulations. Affidavits as to the source from which the gold was obtained are required, except in the case of nuggets or dust of less than five ounces, where a statement under oath will suffice. In the case of imported gold, the mints may purchase only that which has been in customs custody after its arrival in the continental United States.

"The price to be paid for gold purchased by the mints is to be $35 per troy ounce of fine gold, less ¼ of 1 per cent and less mint charges. This price may be changed by the secretary of the treasury at any time without notice.

"The mints are authorized to sell gold to persons licensed to acquire it for use in the industries, professions, or arts, but not to sell more than is required for a three months' supply for the purchaser. The price at which gold is to be sold by the mints will be $35 per troy ounce, plus ¼ of 1 per cent. This price also may be changed by the secretary of the treasury without notice."

BISHOP CANNON'S SON ENMESHED IN SCHOOL SCANDAL

Hague, Va., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Juvenile Judge Watt T. Mayo said tonight that, after investigation into charges that ten boys attending a school operated at Meta, Va., by Richard Mason Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon Jr., had been subjected to mistreatment, he had ordered that the boys' welfare required that the boys be removed from Cannon's custody

No charges were lodged against Mr. Cannon, Judge Mayo said, but the evidence, he asserted, showed that the boys were not receiving the attention their welfare requirec and that they were subjected to unduly harsh disciplinary measures.

Cannon brought the boys here recently from California, where he had previously conducted a military school. The charges of mistreatment arose this week when two of the boys ran away from the school and, after being returned there, complained that they were "'beaten unmercifully." Others charged that they were subjected to mistreatment on the trip across the continent from California.

VISITOR DIES ON TRAIN.

Edward F. Matzger, 55 years old, of Ironwood, Mich., died of heart disease yesterday on a North Western railroad train as it was passing through Evanston bound for Chicago.

MACHINE GUNNER AND GANG HOLD UP 11 IN OFFICE

Four masked bandits, one armed with a machine gun, yesterday took $75 and jewelry valued at $300 in a holdup of the Adolph Seidel & Sons Bakery Supply company, 1245 Garfield avenue.

Max Schuerrlein, cashier in the office, saw the robbers coming and locked the office door. The machine gunner pointed his weapon at Schuerrlein and ordered him to open it. Inside, when the cashier told the robbers that $50 was all the money that was on hand, one of them knocked him down with a pistol butt, kicked him, and took $25 more from his pockets.

Ten women employés were forced to lie on the floor. From one of them, Miss Fay Thompson, 4506 Malden avenue, they took two rings, one an engagement ring.

Treasurer Requests 20 More Tax Receiverships

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $363,086, making a total of $103,980,826 collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Jan. 31	$ 8,603	$ 23,360
Uncollected	15,426,696	41,214,904
	1930.	1931.
Jan. 31	$ 65,578	$ 205,545

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $1,067.

Tax receivership petitions against twenty properties were filed in the County court yesterday by County Treasurer McDonough. The petitions seek the appointment of the treasurer as receiver under the Kerner-Skarda act. The properties sued owe a total tax bill of $29,921 for 1928, 1929, and 1930. One of the properties named is a building at 3753-59 North Western avenue on which $3,932 is overdue.

DIPLOMATS NEED NO LONGER SING "DOLLAR BLUES"

7 Million Assured Them, but They Get a Scare.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—For a moment today things looked dismal indeed for the long suffering American diplomat abroad whose one time elegant estate has dwindled appallingly away with the dollar's diminishing value.

But the dark cloud hovered only momentarily. Brushed aside by a sympathetic congress, it revealed a $7,000,000 silver lining guaranteed to gladden even the most distressed of the sufferers abroad.

Fears Are Dissipated.

It was an action of the house appropriations committee which sent the black cloud zooming to the diplomatic horizon. Reporting the 1935 state department supply bill, the committee announced the complete elimination of a $7,000,000 fund intended for use in righting the financial wrongs heaped upon our diplomats by the appreciation of foreign currencies in relation to the dollar.

The committee's announcement threw the state department into consternation. But even before the expected protest could be voiced the house foreign affairs committee made it known that separate legislation authorizing the $7,000,000 will be brought into the house at once. The department's concern was dissipated.

The need for the $7,000,000 was reflected in a series of harrowing tales told the appropriations committee by state department officials.

Tells Plight of Diplomats.

"Men could not pay their bills," said Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur Carr. "Men had to send their wives home at their wives' parents' expense. They had to take their children out of school."

American diplomats, Mr. Carr explained, are paid in American dollars. For a long time these dollars were just about the finest money any one could have—much finer and more much more valuable than the money of the foreign nation in which the diplomat was living. But suddenly the dollar began to depreciate and the cost of living abroad, measured in terms of dollars, went up accordingly. Added to this situation was the 15 per cent pay cut imposed on the foreign service officer and at the same time it went on all other federal employés.

Negro Society's Carnival to Raise Scholarship Fund

The Alpha Pi Alpha fraternity, the oldest Greek letter society among the Negroes, is sponsoring a carnival and dance to be held on Saturday at St. Elizabeth's hall, 41st street and Michigan avenue. Mrs. Reginald H. Smith, 5428 South Park way, chairman of the entertainment committee, said the proceeds would be used for a scholarship fund.

CONGRESS GROUP DEFEATS SALES TAX PROPOSAL

Refuses Inclusion of Levy in Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The perennial sales tax proposal bobbed up again in congress today and received a preliminary drubbing that spelled its customary doom as far as the current session is concerned.

By an overwhelming vote the house ways and means committee refused to write into the administration tax revision bill a 2½ per cent manufacturers' sales levy designed to raise some 400 million dollars a year and to supplant the special excise taxes now carried on the federal statute books.

Representative Frank Crowther [Rep., N. Y.], author of the plan, declared that despite the committee's action he will offer the sales tax as an amendment to the revenue bill when that measure is brought up on the floor of the house.

Study Security Tax.

The sales tax, however, was not the only perennial tax plan to raise its head again today. The much agitated suggestion that government securities be removed from their tax exempt status was taken up by a subcommittee of the house judiciary committee and legislation to bring federal and state government bonds under the tax laws may be introduced separately or offered as an amendment to the administration bill.

The ways and means committee today was putting finishing touches on the tax revision measure with prospects that it will be reported to the house by Saturday. It will be given legislative right of way by the house leadership in accordance with the wishes of the administration. Designed primarily to plug loopholes in the federal tax statutes, the best available estimates as to the revenues it may raise vary from 200 to 270 million dollars.

Create Tax Post.

Into the bill today the committee wrote a legislative section creating an office of "general counsel" in the treasury department. Herman Oliphant, aid to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., already holds the title of "general counsel" of the department, but the committee's proposal is to empower him with full authority to handle all legal matters pertaining to the treasury and particularly to taxation.

VALUE IN DOLLARS OF WORLD GOLD SUPPLY INCREASED 8 BILLION

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The world's supply of monetary gold, reckoned in dollars, jumped today from approximately 12 billion dollars to a little more than 20 billion dollars.

Until today, the legal price of gold so far as calculating world gold prices was concerned, was still $20.67. The supply of monetary gold in the United States was reckoned on that basis, at little more than 4 billion dollars. Now it has become more than 8 billion 800 million dollars, with the formal fixing of the price of gold both foreign and domestic, at $35 an ounce.

France, which holds the next largest hoard of monetary gold, now has approximately 5 billion 200 million, according to the new reckoning, rather than some 3 billion 80 million, as heretofore calculated on the old par of exchange. The Bank of England, which had some 900 million, now has about 1 billion 500 million.

THE TITMOUSES GET 'THANK YOU' NOTE FROM QUEEN

CAMBRIDGE, England, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Titmouse received a letter today. It was from Queen Mary.

Her majesty expressed to the Titmouses her grateful thanks for their assistance Monday when the queen's automobile broke down on the road between Cambridge and Ely.

On that occasion Mr. Titmouse emulated Sir Laucelot by gallantly transporting the queen in his little sedan from the stalled royal limousine to the queen's destination in Cambridge.

Three Youths Confess Killing Iceman in Holdup

Three youths confessed to the Racine avenue police yesterday that they fatally beat Lewis Kopitko, 44 years old, an iceman, when he resisted their efforts to rob him of $4 last Saturday in front of his home at 656 Fay street. Kopitko died the following day. The youths are Andrew Zagata, 19 years old, 709 Milwaukee avenue; Stanley Kaminski, 17, of 904 West Erie street, and Jacob Nedza, 16, of 670 Fay street.

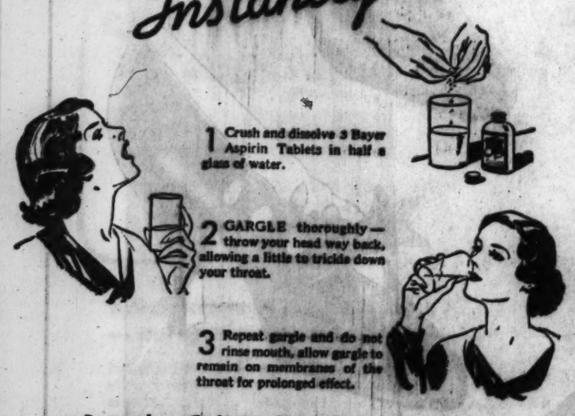
Now! Ease Sore Throat Instantly!



1 Crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water.
2 GARGLE thoroughly—throw your head way back, allowing a little to trickle down your throat.

Remember: Only Medicine Helps Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes!

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles.

Join the crowds at the FORD EXHIBIT

131st REGIMENT ARMORY
16th and Michigan
Open 10 A. M. to 11 P. M. Daily Through February 3

The Ford V-8 is the only car in the low-price field which gives the superior performance and smoothness of the V-8 Engine. It takes 8 cylinders to give 8-cylinder performance. If it's less than an eight in cylinders it's less than an eight in motoring enjoyment. And the V-type eight has certain definite engineering advantages.

Come to this exhibit and inspect the many new features such as the clear-vision ventilation and dual carburetion. There is an additional feature which is of importance to every motorist. And that is economy. Thousands of miles of constant use will prove to you as it has to Ford owners that this is the most economical Ford ever built. It wouldn't be a Ford if it wasn't an economical car to own and drive.

Don't miss this free show. The complete line of Ford V-8 trucks will also be displayed. The "Human Ford", which sees, talks and hears, will perform. Music by Clyde McCoy's Orchestra in the afternoons and evenings.

EARLY DIAGNOSIS CALLED WAY TO DEFEAT CANCER

Dr. Little Urges Action at Slightest Symptom.

The necessity for immediate diagnosis at the slightest symptom of cancer was stressed by Dr. C. C. Little, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, in an address yesterday at the John B. Murphy Memorial hall, 40 East Erie street. He spoke before members and guests of the women's auxiliary of the Chicago Medical society on "What You Can Do for Cancer Control."

"Cancer is natural in its origin, that is, it follows one of the most obvious of body functions—growth—as it advances," Dr. Little said. "No technical knowledge is necessary to recognize the common symptoms."

Lumps which begin to grow on any part of the body, sores which do not heal, unusual bleeding and pain, were cited by the speaker as the most common symptoms of the disease which each year takes 100,000 lives in the United States.

Prompt Treatment Helps.

Prompt treatment of cancer while it is in the earliest stages and still localized has raised the average of cures considerably in recent years, according to Dr. Little. Periodic health examinations are splendid preventive measures, he pointed out.

The most rapid progress toward the control of cancer is being made in the biological research laboratory, Dr. Little said in a later address before the Chicago Medical society in the Medical and Dental Arts building at 185 North Wabash avenue.

He described the many experiments being carried on with mice to determine the cause as well as a cure for the disease. Selective breeding over long periods of time has made possible the development of mice which differ from each other in the amount and type of cancer produced, he said.

Dr. Slye Issues Statement.

Dr. Little agreed with Dr. Maud Slye, University of Chicago cancer expert, in a statement she issued yesterday expressing doubt about claims made recently by Columbia university scientists that rats produce a substance to cure their own cancers or those grafted on them. "Also it is unwise to infer any relation between human cancer and grafted tumors on rats," said Dr. Slye in her statement.

The Columbia university observations were reported by Prof. F. C. Wood, head of the Crocker Institute of Cancer Research, on the findings of his associate, Prof. W. H. Woglom.

In her work with rats Dr. Slye said she had found that grafted tumors were entirely different from spontaneous cancers peculiar to the human body. She also declared that her 25 years of research had brought her to the conclusion that the susceptibility to cancer is hereditary.

Demonstrates New Feature of Autos

ARGUES FOR AUTO STREAMLINES IN A PARLOR TRICK

De Soto Head Reveals Wind Drag.

BY HAL FOUST.

Here's a parlor or after dinner trick to use in the arguments that are becoming common about the merits and demerits of the ultra streamlining on 1934 models on display at the national automobile show in the Coliseum this week.

The stunt was brought to Chicago by Byron Foy, president of De Soto, which with Chrysler is trying, and may succeed, to revolutionize motor car architecture. He demonstrated yesterday afternoon while getting a moment's rest in a hotel room overlooking Grant park.

Shows Old Style.

He placed a paper match folder about three or four inches from his mouth. He placed the burning match immediately in back of the folder. He blew on the folder. The blaze in the rear bent toward the paper container, bent in the opposite direction of the wind from the manufacturer's mouth.

"That's the turbulence in the rear of the old style automobile without real streamlining," said Mr. Foy. "Now I'll take this water glass, fairly well streamlined perpendicularly."

He placed the glass between his mouth and a flaming match about four inches from his face and again blew. The blaze bent away from the glass and was extinguished.

No Wind Drag Created.

"The air passed around the glass with a minimum of resistance and continued on its course without creating any wind drag such as found on the rear of a car not truly streamlined," he concluded. "Maybe you'll want to use that trick some day in the arguments I'm hearing at lunch counters and in hotel elevators as to whether Mr. Chrysler's automobiles are as good as the engineers say they are."

Aerodynamics is only one of several branches of engineering that is attracting intelligent public interest at the automobile shows, from women as well as men. For example, in General Motors' special show in the Stevens hotel yesterday morning, Harlow H. Curtice, president of Buick, pointed to the attention given by the crowds to cutaway engines and chasses and to the fine instruments used in precision mass production.

"Apparently," he commented, "we're becoming a nation of mechanics. Even housewives operate vacuum sweepers, radios and other household machinery as well as automobiles. The public has become so well educated mechanically that it fully appreciates the engineering advancements incorporated in the 1934 automobiles."

The 34th national automobile show has three more days to run, closing on Saturday night. It has enjoyed attendance and sales records exceeding every year since the boom.

AUTO SHOW NOTES

Charles W. Nash, Wisconsin automobile manufacturer, addressed a dealer and distributor meeting in the Congress hotel yesterday over 2,000 miles of telephone wire from California. Five hundred retailers, luncheon guests of H. T. Hollingshead, Nash Chicago distributor, heard their veteran boss break long precedent of conservatism with an emphatic prediction of a decided business revival. Appearing personally before the dealers and delivering the Nash Motors company's 1934 merchandising message were E. H. McCarty, president; C. H. Bliss, vice president and director of sales, and Courtney Johnson, the company's new general sales manager.

Retail orders taken for Chevrolets during the first four days of the current automobile show exceeded the combined totals for both the 1932 and the 193' expositions. This was announced yesterday by H. K. Bragle, Chevrolet's Chicago zone manager. This year's four day total, he said, was 444 cars as compared with 406 for the combined total of the 1932 and 1933 shows.

The trick mirror arrangments that presented "Nudity in a Half Shell" at the World's Fair is being used for a one act playlet on a miniature screen at the Fisher body display in the General Motors exhibit at the Stevens hotel. The actors are not seen by the spectators, but their reflections appear on a screen eighteen inches square. Sound effects have been added to the arrangements that were used at A Century of Progress. The playlets, presented on the hour and on the half hour, tell of Fisher bodies.

JURY CONVICTS TWO BROTHERS AS AUTO FENCES

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 31; recovered, 53; stripped, 5 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

After only twenty minutes of deliberation, a jury before Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the Criminal court yesterday returned a verdict marking the first conviction of stolen automobile "fences" since the present campaign against car thieves began. The defendants were Abe and Isadore Poncher, brothers, operating an accessory store at 2000 South Wabash avenue.

According to the evidence, a car was stolen from Max Salzman, 5143 Kenmore avenue last Dec. 1. A short time later detectives, who had suspected the Poncher brothers, saw the car driven up to the rear of the Wabash avenue store, it was testified.

As the policemen watched, the stolen car was quickly driven inside where one of the two thieves dismantled the headlights and other fittings, leaving them in the shop. The car was then backed out, in evident preparation for dumping. The thieves saw the detectives and fled on foot and escaped.

Defense Attorney James M. Burke argued that the Poncher brothers were unaware of what was being done in their shop at night. On his motion the court set Feb. 20 for hearing arguments for a new trial.

GETS YEAR FOR CARRYING GUN.

George Franklin Smith, 20 years old, alias Robert S. Ward, of Watseka, yesterday was sentenced to serve a year in the Bridewell on a charge of carrying a revolver by Judge J. William Brooks in the Boys' court. After serving his sentence he will be turned over to Indiana authorities to face prosecution for auto theft.

H. O. WALTHER IS MADE CHICAGO HOLC MANAGER

Henry G. Zander Jr., Illinois manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, announced yesterday that beginning today the Chicago metropolitan area will be handled as a separate unit with Herman O. Walther as district manager of the Chicago office. Mr. Walther has been in charge of the HOLC appraisal work being done by the Chicago Real Estate board. Mr. Walther, who lives at 14 East Elm street, is a lecturer on real estate at the school of commerce of Northwestern university.

The HOLC offices will be moved from 134 N. La Salle street to its new quarters at 215 West Wacker Drive building on Saturday. All loans which are past the adjustment point will be handled at the old offices for some time, but all other activities will be at the new address beginning Monday.

All applicants for loans will be received on the first floor at the new offices beginning Feb. 5. The HOLC, in addition, will occupy the fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth floors.

CITY COURT PLEA FOR $2,476,000 VEXES ALDERMEN

Committee Seeks Method of Trimming Budget.

Confronted with a city deficit of nearly 9 million dollars, members of the city council committee on finance yesterday looked askance at the request of the Municipal court for an appropriation of $2,476,271. Unanimously the committee voted to ask Gov. Horner to include in his call for another special session a proposal to provide the court's revenue from a special tax levy.

"I've heard comments that the judges wouldn't spend the taxpayers' money so freely if the court had an income for which it alone would be responsible," said Ald. Joseph Ross [40th].

Approve Salary Cuts.

Previously the committee had gone on record, also unanimously, in favor of legislation that would cut the salary of the chief justice from $15,000 to $10,000 and that of the associate judges from $10,000 to $7,500. This was on the motion of Ald. John A. Massen [48th], but he later had the action reconsidered. The talk wound up with an invitation to the judges to put their case before the committee Tuesday night.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], however, furnished signs of displeasure after he had read an appropridtion of $30,500 for six assistants to Chief Justice Sonsteby.

"I'm going to be in contempt of court," he said, "as I certainly won't vote for those items."

Plan to Defer Election.

There was talk also of deferring the June 4 judicial election until the general election in November to save the expense of the former. A report on the possibility of doing this will be submitted to the committee by Robert Taylor, an attorney for the board of election commissioners.

The aldermen had before them a communication from the citizens' committee on public expenditures, calculating the city's deficit at $8,999,138. Only 39 million dollars now appears available for the 1934 corporate budget, while the 1933 budget totaled $47,883,195. To cut nearly nine millions below that, the aldermen declared, would seriously curtail city services.

Their first action to circumvent the large retrenchment was to authorize a subcommittee to wait upon the mayor with a plea that he ask Gov. Horner to make the call for another special session sufficiently broad to include legislation that would permit the city to issue bonds to take up the deficit. The proposal was made by Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th].

L. E. MYERS AGAIN IS CHAIRMAN OF SALVATION ARMY

Lewis E. Myers was reelected chairman of the Salvation Army board yesterday at its annual meeting. John F. Gilchrist was chosen as vice chairman; John J. Mitchell, treasurer, and Sangston Hettler, secretary. Rush C. Butler, Gen. R. E. Wood, and Frederick W. Moore were reelected members of the board.

Commissioner W. A. McIntyre, in submitting the report for 1933, said the organization had shown a large increase in accomplishments during the year. A total of 5,240 persons were treated in the free dental clinics, an increase of nearly one thousand, and 314 unmarried mothers and 243 babies were cared for, as compared with 283 mothers and 223 babies in 1932.

HALT BOULEVARD WIDENING AFTER OWNERS PROTEST

Motor Club Complains to Springfield.

The paving and widening of Washington boulevard between Crawford and Cicero avenues has been halted by the state highway department on the protests of abutting property owners. The Chicago Motor club yesterday appealed to Springfield that the holding up of this work is an injustice to automobile owners of the west side and of the western suburbs.

"I sympathize with the views of the property owners," said J. J. Cavanagh, general manager of the club, "but the interests of these few should not dictate a policy contrary to the interests of the motoring public as a whole.

"Between Crawford and Cicero avenues is a dangerous and congested mile of a busy boulevard. It is unfortunate that a few trees will have to be moved or possibly removed, and it is unfortunate that five feet must be taken from the parkways on each side of the street, but it's a necessity."

The state plans a new 60 foot pavement to be financed from gasoline tax revenue. This width would accommodate four traffic lanes and parking. A contract has been awarded for an asphalt surface on a concrete foundation.

C. H. DENNIS MADE EDITOR EMERITUS OF CHICAGO NEWS

The retirement of Charles H. Dennis, who has been editor of the Chicago Daily News since the death of Victor F. Lawson in 1925 and a member of the newspaper's editorial staff for 52 years, was announced yesterday.

Mr. Dennis, who will celebrate his 74th birthday on Feb. 8, will have the title of editor emeritus, but is relinquishing his executive duties. Frank Knox, publisher of the newspaper, is to become editor as well. Mr. Dennis will give much of his time to preparation of a biography of Mr. Lawson, he said.

Mr. Dennis was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1881. After working for a few months on a newspaper in Champaign he joined the staff of the Daily News in January, 1882. From 1891 until 1901 he was managing editor of the morning edition of the newspaper, known successively as the Morning News and the Chicago Record.

He became associate editor and chief editorial writer in 1901, managing editor in 1912, and editor in 1925.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE ILLINOIS LIQUOR LAW.

The difficulties of getting a state liquor control bill were overcome at last at Springfield and Gov. Horner is ready to sign the act. He says that it is not a perfect measure but represents a meeting point of many divergent views and is probably as good a law as could be obtained. It creates a state commission under which local self-regulation is permitted. There is an attempt, at least, to modify the sale of drinks at bars, but purchase at lunch counters is permitted, although the use of the words "saloon" and "bar" in signs and advertising is forbidden. This probably will work out to combine the lunch counter and the bar in a place called a tavern. Before the old saloons closed their doors many of them had substituted a pay lunch for the free lunch and this combination would seem to be a lunchroom and a tapreom.

The worth of laws regulating the sale of intoxicants is frequently found more in the intentions of the persons administering the act than in its provisions. That is likely to be true of this one. It will be good or bad as the administrators decide. In theory, at least, the new Illinois act would appear to put not too many restrictions upon the users of alcoholic beverages and not to clamp down on individual habit too much.

It is to be remarked that although the state for two months had only such regulations as local authorities undertook to impose, nothing detrimental to public order was observed. The chaos which had been freely predicted did not make itself apparent. It is true that, until the conditions of the trade were known, persons would be cautious about investing money in it. They would delay until they knew what the legislature intended. No considerable investment would be made upon uncertain terms. Still, there were many places in Chicago of retail sale; and although the new trade developed some eccentricities, notably that of the ladies at the bar, no debauch with public scandal resulted. For the most part the people who had objected to national prohibition protested against it and violated the Volstead act when they wanted to, provided that upon recognition of their adult rights in the matter they were not ready at the drop of the hat to make sots out of themselves. They received the return of their privileges for the most part like sensible citizens and there was no evidence of a social disaster.

No one could prove from conditions as revealed since Dec. 5 that a state control law was necessary, but in providing a statute the state has made it largely a matter of law and not of commission decision and discretion which would tend towards abuses, arbitrary conduct and special privileges. There is a fair assurance that the sales of alcoholic beverages can be resumed in this community and come to better social results than were possible under Volstead. The people display the right spirit and, if they continue to do so, it is reasonable to expect that the evils of the prohibition era can be dropped without bringing in another vicious set to take their place.

AMERICAN CITIZENS AND SPANISH PRISONS.

Whenever the American victims of Spanish civil guard majesty are released now it will be too late. At this writing Mr. Bowers, the American ambassador, has promises or half promises of consideration, but the prisoners are still on jail fare. They have already suffered extreme punishment for a misdemeanor, and both the Spanish and American governments are the worse for exhibitions, in the one case of arbitrary law and excessive penalty and in the other of weakness in permitting citizens to be so exposed. The longer the punishment continues the more painful the dual exhibition becomes.

A THREAT TO RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

A bill has been introduced in congress, known as the Ludlow bill, to authorize loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to churches at 4 per cent interest. It is argued in defense of this bill that unless some relief from the government is forthcoming many churches will be obliged to close and their property will be taken to meet their debts.

These fears are not wholly unfounded and, needless to say, the closing of churches would constitute an incalculable loss to communities and the nation, particularly if many communities should be deprived of all types of religious organizations. Nevertheless, the bill should be defeated. The separation of church and state in this country has been salutary for churches and state alike. Any tendency to break it down can only be regarded as a precedent for retrogression.

The altogether heroic defense of religious freedom in Germany by Pastor Martin Niemoeller could not have been required had the church and state been wholly independent. It was only because the churches in Germany were organized within the framework of the state and dependent upon it in considerable measure for their revenues that it was easy for the state to abuse its powers. With the movement toward centralization gaining momentum in this country, it is impossible to be too zealous in defense of the freeman and his conscience.

MORE JUDGES IN THE CRIMINAL COURT.

State's Attorney Courtney and Judge Finnegan, chief justice of the Criminal court, are supported by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, in their request for more judges in the Criminal court. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, has recommended that there be at least twelve judges in the criminal branch.

State's Attorney Courtney is speeding up the prosecutions with a view to making the execution of law effective because prompt. He and his staff have succeeded in presenting well prepared cases and in doing so without delaying the prosecution. It is recognized as one of the main points of justice that it shall be prompt in its operation. The admonitory effect is greatly increased if delays are not permitted to enter. More than that, it is easier for the state's attorney to keep his evidence in order and his witnesses in readiness if he is not required to submit to postponements but can get to trial on time.

Such encouraging results are being obtained from Mr. Courtney's administration of the prosecuting office that full advantage should be taken all along the line. Enough judges should be assigned to the Criminal court to enable the prosecutors to proceed as rapidly as they can. Chicago is making real progress in this direction and needs to press ahead in its fight against gangsters until the city has been rid of them. It is already making a new name for itself to its own great satisfaction and it wants to keep the work up.

FINNISH AND OTHER OBLIGATIONS.

Finland is the only debtor nation which has kept the faith to the letter of its bond. The debt is not large as these debts go, but neither is Finland large nor is the development of its resources. Nevertheless, Finland has met each payment in full, although France has defaulted on installments which easily could have been paid and even Great Britain has substituted a small cash payment as the mere token to avoid a complete default. The Finns alone maintain the principle that a debt is an honorable obligation to be honorably discharged.

Thrift and honor are revealed up in the northern lights when softer climates have produced softer consciences. It must be conceded that while the doctrine of repudiation and default has been sweeping over the civilized world the United States has not improved its own position. Some of the stern virtue has seeped out through the cracks in the New Deal. How can the United States face down its debtors when its own monetary policy repudiates the financial pledges to which it put its own signature and seal of good faith? The United States, changing the face value of its obligation and returning, say, fifty cents or sixty cents for the hundred cents it obligated itself to pay, may explain the act by reference to many imperative circumstances. In doing so will it not find itself repeating all the phrases and describing all the circumstances with which and because of which its own debtors defend their own repudiation and defaults?

A NEW DEAL IN ENFORCEMENT.

While the departmental appropriation bills are under consideration it is well to call attention to the fact that the repeal of prohibition ought to result in very substantial savings in the outlay for the coast guard and customs and internal revenue agents. Some of the bureaucrats are seeking to create the impression that there is as much danger of bootlegging as there ever was. They insist that their forces must be maintained at nearly their former strength to cope with the situation.

The bureaucrats conveniently overlook the complete change in public opinion that has taken place since Dec. 5. Men and women are no longer tolerant of the bootlegger. It is therefore possible now to develop and maintain a morale in the enforcement units which could not have existed in the prohibition era. A few hundred competent and honest agents should be able to accomplish more in suppressing the illegal traffic than the prohibition army of thirty or forty thousand could do, shot through as it was with corruption.

Juries will now convict, and men sent to the penitentiary for bootlegging and smuggling liquor will no longer be regarded as the victims of a stupid law. Punishment will be exemplary. It will not be regarded as tyrannous, as it was when juries had to be dispensed with and conviction was by a judge for contempt of court, rather than by a jury for the commission of a crime.

A new and much smaller corps of agents should be recruited, free of the tradition of bribery and corruption. Such a corps will be adequate.

Editorial of the Day

GRASSHOPPER CONTROL.

[Peoria Transcript.]

If congressmen come home from Washington with a groggy appearance and a glassy look in their eyes it may not be entirely because the sale of liquor has been authorized in the District of Columbia. It is possible that complications of agricultural programs have been too much for them.

The major objective of Secretary Wallace's program has been stated as the reduction of surpluses and the raising of prices. To do this the government has paid farmers to take large amounts of land out of cultivation at an enormous cost to the nation.

Economists, however, say the domestic allotment plan is only temporary and if agriculture is to be put on a sound basis the government will have to actually buy and retire about one-eighth of the land now under cultivation. The land proposed to be retired is the so-called "marginal land," which usually produces scant crops.

Now, however, congress is being asked to appropriate $2,500,000 to save large areas of marginal land from destruction. It is being threatened by an invasion of grasshoppers.

The hoppers are spread over approximately 12,250,000 acres in the states of Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, and Wisconsin. Almost all the land infested is in the marginal and submarginal class.

A resolution adopted by the national farm conference and to be passed by congress calls for spreading poison bran over this entire acreage to kill the hoppers. The bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture estimates that the bran and poison alone will cost about $1,680,000, in addition to transportation and spreading expense.

The spread of grasshoppers to good productive land should, of course, be checked. On the other hand, if they are left to themselves they will take care of the crop surplus and take marginal land out of cultivation in short order.

Farmers of the northwest are well organized, however, and probably will get the appropriation to protect their land until they can sell it to the government.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ONCE AGAIN the glad refrain, "See America First," comes from the national parks bureau down at Washington. That city has been almost silenced during the terrible years of bone dry drouth. Tourists went to Canada or crossed over to Europe when they wanted to gaze on lakes and mountains, but now it's all different. The national parks bureau doesn't say so, but the idea is that the voyagers of the Yellowstone have a strange fantastic beauty gazed at through a glass full of champagne that they never have looked at in any other way. And Pike's peak after two highballs simply takes your breath away. As for the Grand canon! Well, if you've never looked into the Grand canon after a couple of whisky toddies, you simply don't know how breath taking that place can be.

AND CANADA last year soaked the American visitors five dollars for the privilege of buying drinks. This year they'll be so glad to see Americans they'll have a boy stationed at all road crossings to give every tourist a pint of rye or a gallon of Canadian wine.

AMERICAN TOURISTS are going to be so scarce in Canada this summer that they'll turn out the Maple Leaf Rifles, the Scotch bagpipers, the United Empire Marching association, and the mayor and city aldermen in carriages at every town. And they'll give each visitor a fried small mouth bass, a letter of welcome from the governor general, two sets of auto tires, a free liquor buying license and ask him what he wants for Christmas.

YOUNG MAIDEN.

The nights that I've awoken, stark from sleep—
And called your name,
That it might be a sword against my fear,
A thing of flame

Victorious over shadows in the dark,
Shadows so slight
They might have been the breath of ghosts
Within the night.

This blood that rushes in my ears,
This world so wide, so new,
This lump I feel within my throat—
Is love of you.

"There are better dreams," you said,
I know.
Oh, dear, forgive me if I
Do not go

Along your road of high-flung fantasy
Towards rebirth.
Remember me—alone and frightened
And a child of earth.

RICHARD DUFFET.

MEN! what about this? The tailors' convention says the well dressed men this coming spring will wear a cocktail suit made up of rainbow hued fabrics and even sashes. What! rainbow colors? Sashes? Well, if that's a cocktail suit then I want a whisky sour suit it. I have to design it myself. Anyhow, it won't be made of rainbow hues. It couldn't be if it's going to be sour. And it won't have a sash. And the more rainbow hues and sashes the cocktail suit has the sourer my whisky sour suit is going to be.

"IN BONA FIDE RESTAURANTS," says the new Illinois liker control law, "customers may both eat and drink at the same time." Oh, it can be done; people trying to grab a quick meal at a railroad station restaurant frequently try it, but it's a pretty mussy proceeding. But in our new taverns why do we have to drink and eat at the same time? What's the hurry?

Billion dollar budgets and kidnapers.

VICARUSO JOESACCO.

ZERO WEATHER, which we dwellers in the midwest have been experiencing the last few days, isn't so heartrending. The real suffering came when you got back from seeing whether or not the car was frozen solid and while you were hanging around the radiator trying to thaw out your ears, picked up a paper and saw a picture of "Gladys Gotcomyet in Her Beach Rompers as She Romps on the Sands in Miami." The curse of the opera house on Gladys—may all her children be acrobats.

"I PUT ONE OVER on the groceryman this morning," said the Fat Lady on the Bus yesterday. "I bought some potatoes and he weighed 'em and they came to just 60 cents. So I gave him a dollar and started out and he hollered to me: 'Hey, Lady, here's yer change,' and he handed me back 40 cents, the poor boob. Well, that's what he gets for not readin' the papers and keepin' up with what the government's doin'."

QUESTION.

When I am old and love's sweet pain is gone,
And restless dreams have come to rest at last;
When folded hands admit that work is done,
And placid mind proves youth's mad passion past,
Then will I thrill to April's fresh turned earth?
Or, where a woodland skirts the fragrant field
Unfolding tendril fingers curled at birth,
Will Spring, in spite of age, some magic wield?
Do Autumn's avenues of flame invite
The heart that holds no flame of hot desire?
Is beauty, somehow, keyed to love's delight,
The cadence lost when age has dimmed the fire?
How sad to watch the soft, slow-falling snow
Then turn, content to feel the embers glow.

SOME OF THE NEW CARS this year have a regular bar cunningly concealed within. You press a spring and doors fly open and there are gin, vermouth and everything including a shaker and ice. The only thing left out seems to be a card that can be filled out by the motorist telling the name of nearest relative and where the body should be sent.

WHITE SPOTS ON THE SKIN.

THERE is a disease or disorder of the skin which is characterized by a loss of pigment in patches. Some know it as vitiligo and others as leucoderma. It is not easy to decide whether or not it is a skin disease, since the membrane is free from pain and itching, is not sore or ulcerated, and seems entirely normal except that it is free from pigment. However, a piebald face is not exactly attractive and, because many are affected, there is a wide demand for a cure for it.

For years we have told people who wrote asking for help that the best we could suggest was to stain the spots with walnut juice or some other dye. Those who developed some skill succeeded in keeping the spots of nearly the same hue as that of the surrounding skin. The careless and indifferent were not successful as skin painters, and they continued to complain.

We were accustomed to write inquirers that we knew of no cure. Gradually physicians have been approaching a cure. Several have been tried out and some of the reports from them are excellent. Many cures are reported. Among those that have been tried are muriatic acid internally, injection of acridine, dyes, exposure to ultra-violet light, intravenous injection of cacodylate of sodium, applying an alcoholic solution of oil of bergamot to the patch, followed by exposure to ultra-violet; exposure of the spots to sunlight, injection into the veins of a solution of gold sodium thiosulphate, and a combination of such injection with painting the spots with oil of bergamot and exposure of them to sunlight or to ultra-violet light, and painting the spots with cologne and exposing them to sunlight or ultra-violet light.

Dr. M. H. Cohen reports a most gratifying success from this combination of treatments: Painting the spots daily with a 10 per cent alcoholic solution of oil of bergamot, exposing them to ultra-violet from a carbon arclight for three to five minutes twice weekly, and injection intravenously of a solution of gold sodium thiosulphate once a week.

The improvement was very noticeable in two weeks. The cure was complete after fourteen weeks of treatment.

The simplest of the several methods of treatment is to apply cologne and follow that by exposure to light. That is easy and inexpensive, and should be safe and harmless. As it will be made use of, the chances are that not a great many will be cured by it.

As a rule, when there is a multiplicity of cures none of them is very dependable. If any one is certain there is little need for any other. The several cures for vitiligo cause some lack of confidence. This hesitation is increased by the difference in the principles of cure involved. Some are supposed to be effective because of their effects on pigments, and some because of their effects on the liver and other organs. Some are supposed to cure by acting on the brain. But even though we may not have arrived we appear to be on the way, and that is more than we could say of the cure of vitiligo a few years ago.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

A. R. writes: 1. In what manner does carbon monoxide poisoning work upon the human system?

2. Besides having this danger in a closed garage, is there any danger from gas ranges with poorly controlled air mixtures or poor elimination of gases.

REPLY.

1. This gas combines with the blood and prevents the latter from carrying needed oxygen to the tissues. In acute poisoning there may be dizziness, headache, coma. Death may result. In chronic poisoning there are headache, pallor, and weakness.

2. There is.

SOME BASIS FOR IT.

E. W. writes: Is it true that a woman who has had Bright's disease cannot live through childbirth?

REPLY.

That would be an extreme statement and not fully supported by the facts. However, there is a sound basis for a more moderate statement. A woman who has had kidney trouble during a pregnancy should have her case subsequently studied to determine the safety of another pregnancy. If pregnant the condition of her kidneys and her blood pressure should be watched carefully.

From Across the Sea

BERLIN.—Speeding up of passenger service on German railroads by the wholesale introduction of motor driven coaches instead of trains drawn by steam locomotives is the outstanding scheme of the German Railroad company for this year.

Orders for more than 100 powerful motor driven coaches have been placed or will be placed in the near future. Each car attains a speed of 75 miles an hour.

It is announced that this is only the beginning of the motorization of the entire passenger transportation system on the German railroads and that orders for several hundred cars of the same type are to be placed as soon as German industry has readjusted itself to the increased demand for motor powered coaches.

While the maximum speed of express trains in Germany is to be increased to 75 miles an hour, a number of super-express trains will be operated at a speed of 94 miles an hour. Orders for four express cars of this type have been placed. They will be built on the model of the streamlined Flying Hamburger, which in its trial runs cut the running time from Berlin to Hamburg from 3½ hours to 2 hours 18 minutes. The super-express trains will operate on the Berlin-Hamburg, Berlin-Cologne, and Berlin-Leipzig lines.

The acceleration of German railroad passenger train service necessitates a sweeping readjustment of the entire signal system which has already been started. Despite the considerable increase in speed German railroad experts assert there will be no decrease in safety.

The German Railroad company claims to be the safest transportation system in the world. In 1931, 1932, and 1933 the railroads carried 4½ billion passengers. Of this number only seven were killed in accidents—a remarkably low figure. In Berlin alone more than 10,000 persons were injured and 324 killed in street accidents last year.

FOSTERING THE INCOMPETENT.

Menasha, Wis., Jan. 27.—Many things done by the administration are admittedly good—abolishing child labor, distributing employment by shortening hours of labor, going off the gold standard to make the United States internationally competitive, fostering cooperation, and curbing lawlessness.

The bad things should be more strongly brought before the public.

Some of the principal weaknesses are the curbs being placed on ingenuity, ability, and initiative.

As an example, take my own industry, paper. It is a well known fact that in 1932 more than two-thirds of the production was at a loss.

But you will note that at least 25 per cent of the paper manufacturers had the stamina, courage, ability, and ingenuity to make a profit. Do these 25 per cent who are successful make the industry code?

Do the government code authorities and paper associations investigate the successful before approving a code? Answer—"No."

Because, if they did, they would have to make unsavory recommendations to the two-thirds or more who are unsuccessful and the codes would be entirely revised and built over.

Since the weak and unfit control the paper industry, they write the codes for their benefit.

Does this promote ingenuity and resourcefulness? Answer is again emphatically "No."

Again it might be asked just what this tendency to support the weak and unfit in industry may eventually bring to us as a nation. Is the strengthening of the individual to become a thing of the past? Is the courage and resourcefulness of our ancestors to be thrown in the discard?

Or are we again to become a nation of strong men with courage, ability, and ingenuity?

Will our good citizenry go forward or shall we return to the muddled condition of our European foster fathers which we have tried for centuries to escape?

DIALECT.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I am curious to know why THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE continues to publish the idiotic drivel that passes for poetry by Edward F. Younger. As humor it is puerile; as poetry it is downright asinine. The dialect is criminally mal entendu. To the most educated Negro, as the most ignorant, such jargon is less intelligible than "jabberwocky."

It is futile to prove another a dunce if in so doing one proves himself an imbecile. Mr. Younger's zeal for making the Negro seem an ignoramus leads him into absurdity. What earthly justification is there, for example, in spelling mule, "mewl"; any, "enny"; come, "cum"; around, "er-round", when in each case there is only one possible pronunciation?

The use of "h'it" for the southern provincialism "hit" [it], and "he's" for his, is equally ridiculous. The apostrophe, grammarians tell us, except when denoting the genitive case, indicates the omission of one or more letters in a word or contraction. In the case of "h'it" a letter has been added, and it is not a contraction; yet our Mr. Younger uses an apostrophe. As for "he's"—no Negro in the world ever tried to convert he into a possessive pronoun by the addition of s!

ALDEN HAROLD WILBY.

WHITHER, INDEED.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—A decade less than one hundred and fifty years ago England and France were at war. A former member of the house of commons, P. W. Wilson, Esq., who now lives in the United States, in his recent book, "William Pitt, the Younger," asks this question:

Why was it, then, that a throne with a sane king collapsed in France, while a throne with a mad king was established in England on yet firmer foundations?

And yet on page 168, after saying, "In one word, the reason was finance," he goes on with some remarks which strike me as being especially forceful and correct for our attention at this time.

In Mr. Wilson's opinion, as a close student of history: "It was arithmetic that saved Great Britain from revolution. It was arithmetic that condemned her neighbor. In both countries it was the budget that was the barometer pointing to storm."

When England's prime minister asked himself "Whither are we headed?" he answered by balancing the budget. Necker, the Pitt of France, having no such financial genius from his father, didn't; revolution overtook his country; chaos followed!

The author makes this point:

Both budgets were unbalanced, and no civilization, be it domestic, municipal, national, or continental, can be accepted as secure in which expenditure is greater than revenue.

Viewing the above quotation in the light of plans already outlined to the congress, again I ask: "Whither are WE headed?"

MORTGAGE EXTENSION.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it necessary to make out papers for extension of a mortgage? Same was due Dec. 10 and the party is unable to get the money until March 10.

2. Will verbal agreement be all right? All interest is paid up to date. E. V.

1. If the debtor feels that there is danger of a foreclosure, the signing of an extension agreement would give him some protection against this. As far as the creditor is concerned, the statute of limitations is ten years.

2. Yes.

TAX DEED.

Downers Grove, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On a piece of business property on which the owner has not paid taxes for two years, and on which a first mortgage exists, [1] would the person who paid the taxes in full get a clear title at the end of three years, and [2] will the party who holds the first mortgage lose all his money?

Y. S.

1. No. The tax deed would be merely a cloud on the title.

2. No, but it is to the interest of the mortgage holder to keep the title clear.

ROOSEVELT TO ASK DOMINATION OF ALL POWER

Seaway Treaty Row Brings Plans to Fore.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—By the time the St. Lawrence waterway treaty is ratified, or perhaps before, President Roosevelt is expected to send to congress legislation to create a super-power authority to dominate rate making and transmission of electric power throughout the country.

Word that such legislation was in the making was brought to the capitol today as the senate continued its debate over the treaty, with Senator W. H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.], making a vigorous protest against the treaty's threat to navigation on the Illinois-Mississippi waterway.

Discussion of the agreement with Canada resumed amid an entirely charged atmosphere. When debate began, advocates of the St. Lawrence project admitted that the two-thirds majority required for senate ratification were nowhere in sight. But administration pressure has had its effect and President Roosevelt is reliably reported as having claimed within the last few days that all but five of the necessary votes had been lined up.

Believe Ratification Is Sure.

With the President's heart set on getting the treaty through, even the opponents of the seaway are almost ready to admit that ratification is a certainty.

Senators from Mississippi valley states up to now have been ardent in their opposition to ratification, but administration strategy is making them weaken. Recently an application was made to the public works administration for 99 million dollars for work on the Mississippi waterway. The allotment has not yet been made, and word is being spread among the recalcitrants that they had better see the light on the St. Lawrence treaty if they expect to get the much desired federal easy money for the lakes to gulf route.

St. Lawrence Only Part.

But the St. Lawrence project with its million horsepower production of electricity is to be but one portion of the vast government dominated power empire contemplated in the legislation now in preparation. The St. Lawrence development, in fact, because the power is to go to the New York state power authority, may be only indirectly controled. In the south, however, is the Muscle Shoals project; in the southwest is Boulder Dam; in the Pacific northwest is the proposed Columbia river project, and the President foresees these as only the beginning of federal power developments.

It is the President's plan that all these projects shall be combined under a central authority, which shall fix their rates and rule as to the transmission of their power. It is intended that this great government creation shall dominate the production and transmission of power throughout the nation. Its rates are to set a standard for private companies, whose subscribers will demand service at a cost comparable to that offered by the government. Where government officials believe private companies are mulcting the people there will be the weapon of direct competition at hand.

Charges Violation of Law.

During the senate debate Senator Dieterich charged that the signing of the St. Lawrence treaty had directly violated the rivers and harbors act of 1930, which appropriated 7 million dollars to complete the Illinois waterway and provided for a five year period during which to learn how much of a diversion from Lake Michigan was needed in order to make the Illinois waterway navigable.

The Illinois senator answered a lengthy argument by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], who held that the Supreme court decrees in the lake diversion suit had refused to recognize the claim of Illinois and the Chicago sanitary district to water for navigation purposes.

"The Illinois waterway was not completed until 1933," said Senator Dieterich, "and before its completion, and before any study could be made as to the quantity of water that was necessary for navigation, the treaty was signed and submitted to congress. I say that that constituted a violation of the laws of this land as passed by congress."

Bus Company Announces a Cut in Fares to East

A reduction of approximately 50 per cent in through bus fares from Chicago to the principal eastern cities by the Greyhound lines was announced yesterday by F. W. Benefiel, vice president of the company. The reductions are effective today, and in some cases bring the fare as low as a cent a mile. The Chicago-New York rate, formerly $15, is now $8, and that from Chicago to Cleveland, formerly $8, is now $4.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves Big Dollars! No Cooking!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

MONTE CARLO CASINO GOES ON GOLD BASIS WITH AMERICAN COINS

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The gold fever has struck the world famous casino here. Because of the desire of patrons to touch and handle the metal, the directors in recent months have bought 20,000,000 francs [about $1,265,000] worth of American five, ten and twenty dollar gold pieces. Three roulette tables play on a gold basis. The casino is trying to decide whether to use the gold pieces as chips or simply to pay off in gold. If used as chips, they are afraid the pieces will be bought up and never put into play.

BATTLE IN IRISH DAIL ON KILLING OF A BLUE SHIRT

Foes Claim De Valera Laughed at His Death.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 31.—Wild disorder broke out in the dail eireann half an hour after its reassembly today as rival factions clashed over the killing of one blue shirt and the alleged serious injury of another. Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, a member of the opposition, United Ireland party, charged that Commandant E. J. Cronin, blue shirt leader at present in Arbour Hill prison, had been manhandled.

Dr. O'Higgins complained that Mrs. Cronin was not allowed to visit her husband although she had a permit, and he wanted to know why. Frank Aiken, minister of derense, replied that Cronin refused to conform to prison regulations.

Government Accused.

Dr. O'Higgins then asked whether Cronin had been manhandled because he refused to attend what he described as communistic lectures. Declaring that Cronin had been "half murdered," Dr. O'Higgins said he had been given as bad a beating as that which led to the death of another Cork citizen, Cornelius Daly, at a blue shirt meeting Christmas morning. He accused government deputies of laughing when the question of Daly's "murder" was raised in the dail.

Instantly an uproar ensued. Deputies shouting epithets at each other across the chamber. President Eamon de Valera yelled above the din that government members had not laughed.

"That's a lie," replied De Valera.

How It All Started.

Dr. O'Higgins added that Cronin had been beaten so badly in prison that his wife could not be allowed to see him. Meanwhile the speaker energetically pounding his bell finally succeeded in restoring order.

Dr. O'Higgins' accusations developed from an incident earlier in the sitting when the opposition deputy, John Burke, asked Minister of Justice Ruttledge whether Daly's attacker had been brought to justice. Burke said he was not satisfied with the minister's reply and gave notice he would raise the question again on adjournment.

Something Burke said caused a ripple of laughter among government supporters and Deputy E. O'Neill interrupted, expressing surprise that the murder should be the subject of government merriment.

Later De Valera declared that there had merely been a smile owing to the form in which Burke had given notice that he was going to raise the question of Daly's death on a motion for adjournment.

BYRD'S FLAGSHIP MAKES DASH TO ESCAPE ICE JAWS

Fight Continues to Get Supplies Unloaded.

[By Mackay Radio to the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune.]

S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, BAY OF WHALES, Antarctica, Jan. 31.—After twice escaping disastrous encounters with crumbling ice, this flagship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition today sought anxiously but vainly for a safe berth. Huge floes had twice in 24 hours driven her from moorings in the bay.

The near disaster is still a nightmare to the crew, who have been fighting desperately to unload supplies. The massed ice, suddenly bent in toward the ship by a change in the wind, had left the only avenue of escape an opening at the stern.

Clear Passage Impossible.

Admiral Byrd, determined to unload as much cargo as possible, had held the ship until the last minute, while unloading continued feverishly, but finally had to give the order to back out.

A clear passage was impossible, and the port side struck with a reeling impact against the ice. The whole ship trembled. But fortunately the sheer sides of the icy mountain had no jutting points to puncture the ship's side, and she slipped through into open water scarcely half an hour before the relentless ice movement closed in.

Meanwhile, the 44 men charged with transferring stores from the temporary camp a short distance inland to the base at Little America dragged wearily on in their task. They also were fighting against the time when ice crevasses would make their route impassable and might also cut them off from food.

Supply Ship Arrives.

Some cheer was given by the arrival of the supply ship, Bear of Oakland, from Dunedin, N. Z., today. She left there two weeks ago with necessary supplies.

The flagship held her first anchorage beside the ice yesterday for only five hours. A half mile westward she found another berth late in the day, but could keep it only until 4 o'clock this morning.

From Pressure camp, two miles away, dog teams and tractors had meanwhile come to the temporary landing points to take the unloaded stores back to safety. Many cracks in the ice between the ship and the camp were hardly visible yesterday, but this morning they were six inches wide. Tractors are considered too precious to use across the cracks. To guide the dog teams ashore orange flags were placed at these cracks, and watchmen reported when they were too wide to jump across.

Ice Masses Roar.

A terrific roar accompanied the grinding of the ice masses together, as all day they moved west across the front of the bay ice. The shore of the barrier ice itself continues to disintegrate.

Feverish activity accompanied the unloading operations as long as the ship could hold her berth. Men, sleepless 24 hours, made their way across the after well deck, then down to the gangway bearing quarters of beef covered with burlap on their shoulders. Cargo nets of coal were hoisted from the holds.

For the first time an autogyro has flown over Little America. Joe McCormick flew it last night from the mooring point into the permanent camp.

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A tragedy as dramatic and spectacular as its beginning was revealed today as the end of three balloonists' venture into the stratosphere, for which a new altitude record was claimed.

Secret and surprising, like their takeoff into the upper regions, was the finale which ended in their deaths and the destruction of all scientific instruments capab'e of proving their claim that they had reached a height of 67,585 feet.

(Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the United States hold the world's recognized altitude record of 61,237 feet. The Soviet Union is not represented in the International Federation Aeronautique, which approved the Settle-Fordney mark.)

Balloon Drifts Away.

The end came on a snow covered spot some 350 miles southeast of Moscow when the whole balloon crashed with such a terrific impact that the hydrogen filled envelope was wrenched loose from its gondola and drifted away into the night, leaving the bodies of the crew imprisoned therein. The three were Pavil Fedoseinko, Audrey Vasenko, and Illya Usyskin.

A sketchy communique announcing the catastrophe could not place the time of the crash any more definitly than "between 3:30 p. m. and 5 p. m." yesterday afternoon—about six hours after the trio had enthusiastically started their bold attempt to conquer the midwinter elements.

The announcement did not explain the cause of the crash or say whether the ill fated landing was made in a forest or open field. It did reveal, however, that there were eyewitnesses to the tragedy. They reported hearing two explosions at the time of the crash.

Censor Withholds News.

Nevertheless, not a word was officially revealed concerning the whereabouts or the fate of the balloon until late this afternoon when a foreign office censor published the brief communique announcing it. Instead, all through the night and early morning hours the censors permitted correspondents to send official reports saying no information was available concerning the balloon, thus attempting to preserve the same secrecy and mystery with which the flight was surrounded.

The tragedy was announced officially today to the soviet all-union congress. When the three men took off in a secret ascent yesterday they said the flight was a "gift" to the congress. A special committee was sent from Moscow to investigate the crash.

Release Too Much Gas.

When the communist congress heard the announcement, its members rose in silent tribute to the victims and adopted a resolution that they be buried with the nation's heroes in Red square.

Pending results of the investigation, aviators believed the crew had released too much gas in descending and had too little ballast to prevent too rapid a drop.

The last message from the crew said they were trying to find a landing place in the fog after groping for hours through the clouds. Just a few minutes earlier they had reported that "all is well."

GANG MENACES 20 IN HOLDUP OF DIME STORE

Four robbers took $300 from 15 cash registers and a safe in a Woolworth store at 2016 East 71st street yesterday, after threatening a score of employés and customers. The bandits forced the victims into a corner where they could not be seen by passersby while the cash registers were looted. Then the gang went to the office, where they found W. A. Stevenson, the manager, and Gerard Van Dyke, district superintendent. The office safe was emptied and the four gunmen ran from the store. They were joined by a fifth man, who had acted as lookout. A sixth robber was at the wheel of the car in which they escaped.

HIT THAT COLD WHERE IT LIVES— in the System!

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold is an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

First of all, it is distinctly a cold remedy and not a "cure-all." Secondly, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

Read How Amazing Mineral Concentrate Richest in Newer Form of "FOOD IODINE" Is Building Up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Folks Where All Else Fails

Just read a few of these reports taken from thousands from all over the country concerning Kelp-a-Malt, the amazing new mineral concentrate.

"It will be a week this noon since I began using Kelp-a-Malt and I have gained 5 pounds and feel much better." —T. W. H. . . . "Gained 6 pounds the first package. I'm very much pleased." —D. E. G. . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelp-a-Malt I have a hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelp-a-Malt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life."—W. D. C. . . . "Gained 8 pounds with one package of Kelp-a-Malt and feel 100% better."—Mrs. W. J. S.

These are just a few excerpts from thousands of letters telling us how this newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood—nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn, underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain

Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods, have recently been discovered to be often lacking not only in food iodine but in many of the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

Kelp-a-Malt, only recently discovered, contains practically every mineral essential to normal well being. But most important of all, it is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine —natural iodine not made from iodides or other chemicals which oftentimes prove toxic, but the same iodine that is present in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost national health problem. Kelp-a-Malt is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant-to-take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1600 pounds of beef, 1387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper for rich blood, vitality and strength than a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots—sulphur, sodium, potassium and other essential minerals.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast — doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. 200 jumbo size tablets, which are 4 to 6 times larger than ordinary size tablets, costs but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

Betrothal of Miss Beatrice Borland Told

Fiance Is Character in Her Travel Book.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"MR. AND MRS. CHAUNCEY B. BORLAND announce the engagement of their daughter, Beatrice, to Barton F. Plimpton of Boston, Mass.," read the announcement that came to this society editor yesterday afternoon, just a few hours after Miss Borland had arrived at home from a trip abroad upon which she embarked last September.

This short formal announcement told the main part of the story, of course, but it didn't tell what a very clever and capable young woman Miss Borland is nor any of the interesting details about the romance.

Miss Borland and Mr. Plimpton met in 1929 when she and her elder sister, Harriet, were in Africa, and the next year when the intrepid young women started off on a trip around the world that resulted in Beatrice's delightful and humorous book, "Passports to Asia" [published last fall], Mr. Plimpton was one of the party. He is "Plim" in the book, one of the five who share most of the adventures and experiences the Misses Borland enjoyed on the trip, so even those of Miss Borland's friends who haven't met him must feel that they know him after having read the book.

Miss Borland won't have to look forward to settling down and not doing much traveling when she becomes a matron, for her husband-to-be is a partner in the Butterfield Travel company in Boston, and immediately after their marriage the end of April they will leave to spend the summer in Paris. Mr. Plimpton, who has been an orphan since he was very young, has a brother, Russell, who is the director of the Minneapolis Art museum. Barton Plimpton went to Amherst, where he was a member of the class of 1917.

Miss Borland Vassar Graduate.

Miss Borland, who made her début during the Christmas holidays of 1926 when she was a sophomore at Vassar, was graduated from that institution in 1928. Before that she had gone to Miss Spence's in New York. After she and her sister had returned from their trip around the world she gave a number of informal lectures before various organizations, including the Junior league, of which she is a member, and the Geographic society. It was the enthusiasm with which these humorous and entertaining talks were received that prompted her to write "Passports to Asia." The book was illustrated with pictures and maps made by Harriet and it was acclaimed as one of the most delightful travel books of the year.

Early last fall Mrs. Borland and Beatrice and the "baby" of the family, Martha, sailed for France, where Martha entered Mlle. Bertrand's school, and then Mrs. Borland and Beatrice went to Madrid. There Miss Beatrice took a two months' visitors' Spanish course at the University of Madrid and then joined her sister at St. Moritz for the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Borland returned home in time to spend the holidays with Mr. Borland and Harriet, but Beatrice just arrived at home yesterday morning, having stopped for a visit in Boston on her way from New York to Chicago.

The Borland family is one of Chicago society's oldest and most distinguished ones. Mr. Borland's mother, Mrs. John Jay Borland, died last September at the age of 85. She was a daughter of Chauncey Blair, one of the city's pioneer merchants, manufacturers and capitalists, who migrated to Chicago from the east coast about the time the first Potter Palmer came here.

Crocker-Clark Engagement Told.

We also are announcing another interesting engagement this morning, that of a Boston girl to a Chicago man. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. M. Crocker of Boston are making public the betrothal of their daughter, Carol, to Carrington Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Clark of Chicago and Barrington.

Miss Crocker and Mr. Clark met last fall when she came to Chicago to be a bridesmaid in the wedding of Miss Marjorie Goodman and Charles S. Dewey Jr. Since then Mr. Clark has gone to Denver, where he is engaged in the salt business, but the romance has flourished even at long distance. The wedding is planned for next fall.

Miss Crocker went to school with Mrs. Dewey Jr. in Paris and has many friends in Chicago who would welcome her as a bride if young Mr. Clark should return here to live before they are married.

Mr. Clark went to the Hill school and to Asheville, but did not go to college, preferring instead to enter business, which he did three years ago. He is one of society's most popular young bachelors.

Thursday Supper Parties at Casino.

It has taken the Casino quite a long time to realize that "maid's night out" is a night that must be considered by the entertainment committee, for almost every one dines out on Thursdays, and if a club plans a special party that doesn't tax the pocketbook too heavily for a Thursday it's certain to be a success.

Just before the president, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, went south recently to spend six weeks in Palm Beach, the board of directors met and decided that it would be a good idea to plan something for Thursday night, so immediately Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, the chairman of the entertainment committee, got busy, and last week the first one was given.

After tonight's supper there is to be a showing of the movies of the safari

Soviet Dancers Are Liveliest of Generation

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two of the liveliest young dancers the generation has known, Tatiana Vecheslova and Vachtang Chabukani, made their first Chicago appearance in a joint recital at Orchestra hall last night. They are the leaders of their art at the Marinsky theater of Leningrad, and the first ballet artists that the soviet government have permitted to appear outside the borders of modern Russia.

As a matter of definition rather than criticism, they are classic dancers, following the canons of the art of some two generations ago. The definition, though necessary, is a bit surprising, since they come as representatives of what might on the face of it be expected to be something rather new and contrary to old canons.

Perhaps in compensation for an apparent contradiction, they do more than any of their predecessors within memory. Their leaps are longer, their evolutions more surprising, their finish more glittering than any of the others. Never in my life have I seen a more rapid series of whirling high jinks as Chabukani performed close to the end of the first half. He was as a teetotum gone into fits, except that at the finish he dropped down as solidly and firmly as though a statue had suddenly been put upon the stage.

What is trying to be indicated is that the two are marvelous technicians, with the skill that comes from years of training plus the excitement of high spirits that is the gift only of youth.

Perhaps it is also a mark of classic dancing that the music to which they danced did not, apart from its rhythms, amount to much. But their performance was so extraordinary that strictly musical considerations could easily be forgotten. Nicolas Kopelkin played it, demonstrating in the solo intervals granted to him that he was an able pianist as well as accompanist.

As might be imagined from a contemplation of a performance that meant graceful evolutions raised to the furious, the applause was furious as well. It was the kind of an evening that makes one want to see more of soviet art.

Sees Spending Joys in Peril of Regulation

Declares Allure Is Chief Item in Stockings.

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The psychology of a woman purchasing stockings was expounded by Allyn B. McIntire, president of the Association of National Advertisers, today. Given as an example to disprove the wisdom of governmental regulation, he said, she cares little that government tests might show relative mediocre quality so long as her legs are made "more alluring to those she might aim to attract."

Attacking the Tugwell and Huddleston bills and other governmental measures for regulation of advertising, he spoke before a luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club of New York.

"I am getting a little tired of pedagogs, demagogs and just plain gogs taking their pens in hand and taking a crack at one of the most protective devices [advertising] the consumer has," he said.

He called the contention of the rationalist that people buy articles to use them "admirable," but declared it also "only half the story."

"When a woman buys a pair of stockings," he said, "she is, of course, greatly concerned with the wear they will give. At the same time she is also tremendously interested in how those stockings look with her suede shoes, what her husband thinks of them, and how she thinks they will wash.

"She may not know what the exact laboratory report on these stockings may be, but she does have a definite personal opinion as to whether the color is right, whether they come out of the wash with the sheen or dullness she likes, and whether they have the kind of knit which appeals to her.

"Now, in spite of the stockings being of relative mediocre quality as far as their construction would be revealed by tests which the government might make upon them, they have, in spite of these shortcomings, given this woman exactly what she wants. We may even go so far as to say that they have done the primary thing she is interested in, by making her legs more alluring to those whom she might aim to attract."

He deplored the possible loss of what he called "delight in spending money" on the part of the consumers.

"It is entirely probable," he said, "that as a result of the efforts to make retail customers purchase upon specifications alone, that if they are encouraged to adopt a thoroughly defensive attitude toward all purchases, their metaphysical joy in making purchases will receive a tremendous setback.

"They will become so extremely suspicious of the possibilities of being defrauded and they will adopt the attitude of not being interested in making purchases unless absolutely essential."

Mrs. Roosevelt Has Guests at Townsend Musical

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt attended Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's musical at the Mayflower this morning, entertaining a party including Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Tracy Dows, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, and Miss Nancy Cook, to hear Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, British pianists, in joint recital, and Alexander Gray, baritone of Pennsylvania, who made his debut as a concert singer in New York last month.

Miss Lee, whose home is in Denver, was Jeanne's roommate at Mount Vernon, and she arrived Sunday for a visit with Miss Street whose engagement to Thomas Hunter Knorr of Chicago was announced by her mother, Mrs. Harry Street, on Tuesday. Miss Otis is to become Mrs. Wade Fetzer Jr. Saturday. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Corinne Griffith Quits Her Comeback Movie Which Stars Kruger

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Corinne Griffith withdrew from her first rôle in her American movie comeback today. The former star of film silents said, "I'll tell the truth; I am retiring from the picture because I regard my comeback film as very important and I did not wish to play a part in which little would be seen of me but the back of my head. It would then be regarded as a mediocre performance by myself, whereas the script doesn't allow me to do myself justice."

She said she had every regard for Otto Kruger, star in the film, which is titled "The Crime Doctor" and is to be produced at Radio studio, but that it became too complicated when Kruger insisted she could only be photographed from certain angles and these angles would prevent her features showing. Kruger will go ahead with the picture, for which Richard Dix originally was intended as star.

Welfare Dinner.

The home and public welfare department of the Chicago Woman's club, with Mrs. Howard Ames as the chairman, will have a dinner at 6:30 this evening at the clubhouse for the business and professional members of the club.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt had a small company of personal friends at dinner tonight, and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained a number at tea this afternoon.

Mrs. Roosevelt was entertained at luncheon today by Mrs. Garner, wife of the vice president. The company included Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Morgenthau Jr., Mrs. Dern, Mrs. Homer Cummings, Mrs. Farley, Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Ickes, Mrs. Wallace, and Mrs. Roper, all cabinet hostesses; Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, Mrs. J. T. Robinson, Mrs. Pittman, Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Mrs. Hull, wife of the secretary of state, was "at home" at the Carlton this afternoon for the first time in this administration. She had assisting her Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. William Phillips, wife of the undersecretary of state; Mrs. Wilbur Carr, and Mrs. Sumner Welles, wives of assistant secretaries, and Miss Moore, hostess for her brother, Assistant Secretary of State Walton Moore.

Mrs. Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, assisted Mrs. Homer Cummings, wife of the attorney general, who received in her suburban home, "Ruthven," overlooking Rock Creek park. Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, daughter of the President, and a number of wives of senators, also were assisting.

President of Tailors Sees Need of 18 Suits to Be Well Dressed

The fashion committee of the merchant tailors and designers associations last night was considering whether it should select the best dressed man in America. The joint convention and exhibit of the two groups will close tomorrow at the Palmer House.

During the day A. Lincoln Stadler, president of the National Association of Tailors, told the members that the well dressed man today should have in his wardrobe no less than 18 suits and seven overcoats.

Hundreds visited the style exhibit. Among the exhibits was a box of two top hats worn by the late Potter Palmer. When unpacked the hats were found wrapped in a copy of THE TRIBUNE dated May 27, 1894.

Revise Treaty or Face War, Warns Author

Correspondent Appeals for Peace Action.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"War Unless . . ." by Sisley Huddleston. [Lippincott]. Published today.

Sisley Huddleston, famous for three decades as a European correspondent for London and American papers, today "tells the world" in a volume which the author describes as "in spirit a pamphlet." "War Unless . . ." has all of the fiery quality of the famous pamphleteers who, goaded by conviction, prophesied and either precipitated reforms or averted catastrophe.

SISLEY HUDDLESTON.

Mr. Huddleston, who has been a recent lecturer in Chicago on the subject, accepts the existence of the menace . . . the "inevitable" war which is feared and discussed in Europe wherever men are gathered together. But he does not accept its inevitability. "War unless," not "war inevitably," he says, and in 288 pages explains the difference.

"I am convinced that few people in western Europe want war," he says. "Germany, despite all the rumors, is by no means ready for war." . . . France definitly does not want to make a war. Italy does not want war. And England has never been suspected of wanting war.

"In my opinion the condition of Europe's return to sanity is a serious revision of the so-called peace treaties," he says, after a careful explanation of the grievances and injustices engendered by the Versailles treaties. "Germany and other countries who were defeated or disappointed in the peace settlement would welcome and indeed are determined to secure a revision of the treaties. France and its former allies who benefited by the disposition of 1919 are alarmed at the prospect of an upheaval and are resolved to resist a general rearrangement of the European statute." But, Mr. Huddleston declares, the choice is not between revision and nonrevision. "It is between war and peace."

That revision should be undertaken, he declares, not by pacts or conferences or huge public gatherings of representatives of forty-odd countries but quietly and skilfully. He suggests that America and Great Britain, being at once interested and disinterested, might combine to keep the peace. In his lecture he made the suggestion more concrete than he does in his book. "I suggest," he said, "that your President issue a joint declaration with Great Britain that in no circumstances will the United States or Great Britain send supplies or give moral countenance to either of the belligerent powers in a European war."

In the book he further suggests that the four great powers, "Great Britain, Germany, France, and Italy," be made to constitute the revising body of the ineffectual and extremely dangerous present treaties and to "work together . . . in the cause of peace. If they can agree—and it should surely be easier for four or five powers to agree than for 40 or 50 powers—then no other nation will be capable of beginning a devastating war."

That is merely the brief outline of a passionately presented statement of the menace and hope for its extinction. In "War Unless . . ." Mr. Huddleston mentions a book which, when it came out in the fall, caused terrific shock to those who read it. "What Would Be the Character of a New War?" It was made up of reports from the interparliamentary union of Geneva by authoritative persons on the subject of chemical warfare, the effect of war on economics, and the mental and moral consequences of war.

A firm of British publishers, thinking that those semi-official reports might be excellent worm medicine for the dogs of war, published them and the book has struck a new terror into the heart of man. Mr. Huddleston believes that mankind should feel that terror and that "it is foolish to remain silent about dangers which will involve us all in ruin."

Frank H. Simonds recently published another impassioned "pamphlet" in "America Faces the Next War" [Harpers]. He, like Mr. Huddleston, is convinced that Europe is at the brink of a great conflict, but he thinks it inevitable, possibly within a year.

Mr. Simonds reviews America's participation in the last European war and declares, concerning her participation in the next war: "That war may wreck European civilization, but it will not modify European nationalisms. If the United States intervenes again it can once more aid one nationalism to defeat another, but it cannot change the spirit of either." And he is sure, if America continues to follow her present policies that she will be drawn into the conflict.

Phi Omega Pi Party.

Phi Omega Pi sorority will hold its annual card party tomorrow evening in the Tower ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Miss Helen Else of 1100 North Wailer avenue is chairman of the arrangements.

Front Views and Profiles

AS might be expected, with Alice Henderson Evans of Santa Fé present at luncheon, the talk turned to the late D. H. Lawrence, and his widow, Frieda Lawrence; to Dorothy Brett, whose book, "Lawrence and Brett," came out last April, and to Mabel Dodge Luhan, individualist and author, who induced Lawrence to come to New Mexico from Italy.

Gossip—Autograph—Etiquette—Pianist.

"Are Frieda and Mabel still friends?" some one asked.

"O, yes, but with a great hate," replied charming, gay, dark-eyed Alice Evans, thus summarizing a whole bookful in a phrase.

* *

IT is likely that Mrs. Evans does not care to be identified as a former daughter-in-law of Mabel Dodge Luhan, nor, come to think of it, would Mrs. Luhan care to be identified merely as the grandmother of Mrs. Evans' three daughters! Mrs. Evans' father is William P. Henderson, whose paintings frequently have been exhibited at the Art institute, and her mother is Alice Corbin Evans, a distinguished poetess, who assisted Harriet Monroe during the first four year of Poetry Magazine, and who collaborated with Miss Monroe in bringing out "The New Poetry."

* *

A NEW arrival in New Mexico who is creating a certain amount of talk is the former Mrs. Bror Dahlberg, that same Mary Dahlberg who washed her hands of Chicago's "washtub aristocracy," to use her own phrase, and went to Mallorca. She now is living in New Mexico, is married to Huntley Chapin, and is writing a very spicy book.

* *

RECENTLY Knowlton L. Ames Jr. and his oldest son, Buddy, dined with Gov. Horner in the executive mansion at Springfield. After dinner Buddy politely, but urgently, asked that the governor sign an autograph card for him. Gov. Horner assented willingly, and modestly asked Buddy why he was so anxious to have the signature.

"Aw, I want it because the fellows at school don't believe that I really know you," responded the forthright Buddy.

A WOMAN who applied for a job in the Civil Works Employment service was not able to pass the poverty test. This brings up a perplexing question in etiquette. Ought one to say to her, "I am so sorry you are not poor enough," or "I'm glad you are not that poor?"

* *

SOME of you don't like children's stories, judging by the mail, but, on the other hand, some of you do. So we'll report the comment of young Michael Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Catton Rich.

"I can play the piano now, mother, but my legs aren't long enough to put on the brakes."

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Burt J. Denman of Wilmette are announcing this morning the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Dayton, to Beresford Ellsworth Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Beck of Evanston. Miss Dayton was graduated from Ferry hall and the Katharine Gibbs school in Boston. Mr. Beck is a Yale graduate. The wedding will be an event of the late spring or summer.

WELLMAN, FIRST TO TRY ATLANTIC FLIGHT, IS DEAD

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Walter Wellman, pioneer aeronaut and journalist, died here today after an illness of three months. His career of adventure reached its climax in 1910 when he was the first man to attempt the crossing of the Atlantic by air.

Four times earlier he had risked his life in an attempt to reach the north pole, twice by air and twice on foot. The attempted Atlantic crossing took Wellman and his crew of five almost 1,000 miles Londonward from Atlantic City, N. J., and required 79 hours. The airship then was abandoned and Wellman and his men were taken aboard a rescue ship.

Accidents End Polar Flights.

The polar flights in 1906 and 1909 failed solely because of accidents. Only after Peary had reached the north pole on foot did Wellman discontinue his efforts. His trans-Atlantic venture was his last.

After he had been rescued in mid-ocean and had seen his airship, America, float away, never to be seen again, Wellman gave up air travel. Never again did he enter an airship or airplane.

Besides his exploratory activities, Wellman was one of the well known newspaper men of his day. His career in this field began when he was 14 years old, when he started a weekly newspaper at Sutton, Neb.

Founded Cincinnati Paper.

He founded the Cincinnati Evening Post when he was 21 years old. For many years he was Washington correspondent for the Chicago Record-Herald. The first feat that brought him to public notice was a jaunt to the Bahamas, where he located the exact landing place of Christopher Columbus. This brought him recognition from the Royal Geographical society. In 1911 he wrote a book called "The Aerial Age." Later he wrote an exposé of the claims of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, which was recognized as having considerable authority.

Wellman was born in Mentor, O., Nov. 3, 1858. In 1878 he married Miss Laura McCann of Canton. Five daughters were born to the couple, Ruth, Mrs. John Aubert, Mrs. Roy Chamberlin, Mrs. Edgar F. Leo, and Mrs. Herbert Wilson.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Let's Go

IRON SALT MAKES INVISIBLE CRACKS IN STEEL VISIBLE

Tested at Meeting of Aviation Leaders.

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A new white iron salt made to sprinkle on airplanes like the proverbial salt on the bird's tail was described to the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences' annual meeting here today.

The metallic salt reveals cracks in steel otherwise invisible and forestalls the air disasters due to crack-up or "failure" of engine and other parts during flight.

Flaws Made Visible.

"This is going to seem like pulling rabbits out of a hat," said Alfred V. De Forest, New York engineer who invented the salt, as he lifted a shaker full of its before the distinguished audience of aviation authorities.

He spread out steel airplane parts, such as valve springs, pipes, rods and metal straps. They appeared to be perfect pieces of metal. A shake of his white salt over a piece, a light tap against it and he passed it about among the engineers.

Exclamations of wonder broke out. Here and there the metallic salt had gathered in fine lines, resembling scratches. The lines were cracks in the steel. The most remarkable of these was a little pipe. Its crack was inside, yet the telltale streak showed outside.

Explains How It Works.

De Forest explained that the salt gathers to show the cracks after the metal has been magnetized. The salt is finely ground pieces of iron, their shapes flat. They are coated with zinc oxide and talc powder to make them visible and to slip easily.

The dangerous cracks, it was stated, may be in the original piece of metal, or may develop slowly during use, taking many months before reaching the danger stage. All that time they are virtually impossible to detect readily. Once they are magnetized the salt shows them up in 10 seconds.

STROKE FATAL TO FORMER MAYOR OF CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Fred Kohler, the man who came back after being dismissed in disgrace as chief of police to become mayor of Cleveland, died here early this morning of a paralytic stroke. He was 69 years old.

At the age of 25 he was appointed a policeman. In eleven years he was a captain and made his district model for the city.

Flouting politicians, Mr. Kohler soon was the most colorful person in the city and in 1903 he was appointed chief of police by Mayor Tom L. Johnson.

In 1913 he became involved in a scandal—a scandal that began with a divorce suit filed by a traveling salesman. Mr. Kohler was found guilty of charges of misconduct and dismissed from the department in disgrace.

In 1916 he "came back" as mayor.

WED SIX YEARS, SINGER AND WIFE TO RENEW VOWS

In an unusual ceremony which the husband calls a "reaffirmation of marriage," Reinald Werrenrath, concert singer, and his wife, Verna True Werrenrath, tomorrow will have a church wedding in the home of a friend, Brayton Witherell, at 811 Bryant avenue, Winnetka.

The Werrenraths were married in a civil ceremony six years ago by the mayor of Weehawken, N. J. The Rev. Gardner MacWhorter, former assistant rector of St. Luke's church in Evanston, will conduct the ceremony tomorrow after the "bride" is given away by Mr. Witherell's father. An organ in the Witherell's living room will play.

"Our civil marriage was legal, of course," said Werrenrath. "But we decided to have a church ceremony."

Mrs. Marie Loula Dies After Lingering Illness

Mrs. Marie Loula, 55 years old, 5705 Forest Glen avenue, died yesterday at her home after a lingering illness. She was the wife of Lieut. August H. Loula of the forest preserve police and a former chief of that department. Surviving also are six children and two grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday afternoon. Interment will be in the Bohemian National cemetery.

Alfred P. Sloan's Father Leaves $2,173,379 Estate

NEW WILLS FILED IN PROBATE COURT

Four wills were filed yesterday with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Probate court and were approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. The wills are those of:

AUGUST KNIEWEL, died Oct. 4. Estate, $6,500, to four children and five grandchildren. Paul J. Kniewel, son, is executor.

MARIE L. OVERTON, died Dec. 7. Estate, $7,000, to sister, Harriet C. Otto, who is executrix.

THOMAS FINIGAN, died Dec. 25. Estate, $55,000, to widow, Anna Louise Finigan, who is executrix.

MARY SOMMER, died Sept. 19. Estate, $5,500, to two brothers and two sisters. The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company is executor.

CHESTER JOHNSON IS DEAD; OWNER OF ART GALLERY

Chester Henry Johnson, 58 years old, well known art dealer, died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday at his home at 200 East Pearson street. He was the owner of an art gallery at 410 South Michigan avenue, which he established in 1922. Prior to that time he was in charge of the Reinhardt Art galleries at Chicago and New York. He was a member of the Arts club. Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Marie Johnson, and a sister, Mrs. John St. John, both of Madison, Wis.

Widow Settles Her Auto Injury Suit for $13,500

Mrs. Irene Engleking, 32 years old, 4450 Beacon street, widowed mother of two children, yesterday settled for $13,500 her $25,000 suit for injuries incurred in an automobile accident. The settlement was announced by her attorney, Murphy O. Tate, as the case was on trial before Superior Judge Walter T. Stanton. Mrs. Engleking, who has been on the relief rolls for some time, sued George E. Billingsley, manager of the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 Lake Shore drive, and the Yellow Cab company as a result of an automobile accident at Sunnyside and Racine avenues on Oct. 1, 1932. She was a passenger in a cab.

AUTOIST KILLED AS CAR UPSETS AFTER COLLISION

One automobile death in Cook county yesterday increased the motor toll for 1934 to 112. The victim:

Leo Lucas, 35 years old, 6314 South Troy street, a fireman for the Indiana Harbor Belt railway. Died when his car was overturned in a collision at 25th avenue and Harrison streets in Bellwood. Mrs. Hazel McLennan, 40 years old, 2024 North New England avenue, driver of the other car, was held for the inquest.

Civil War Veteran Dies; Married for 62 Years

August Poutre, former commander of the Whipple post, Kankakee, of the G. A. R., died yesterday at his home, 845 Highland avenue, Oak Park. He was 85 years old. He is survived by his widow, Josephine, 86 years old, and a daughter, Mrs. Victor E. Brouillet. The couple had been wed 62 years. The body was sent to Kankakee last night for burial tomorrow afternoon.

Don't take calomel!

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, drowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver which does not yield sufficient bile—causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

M. B. STARRING, FORMER TRANSIT OFFICIAL, DIES

Mason Brayman Starring, former Chicago street car and elevated official, died yesterday in New York. He was 74 years old. Born in Chicago on Ontario street during the days when State street was called Wolcott street and when Lincoln park was a cemetery, Mr. Starring rose to leadership in operating the city's railway systems. In 1904 he was made general manager of the Chicago City railway and three years later he was elected president of the Northwestern Elevated Railroad company.

In 1911, when he was head of both the Northwestern and Oak Park elevated systems he was made president of the United Railways Investment company with headquarters in New York. He retired from active business life in 1931, although he retained directorships in several transportation companies.

Starring is survived by his widow, Helen Swing Starring, and two sons, David Swing Starring, of Green Farms, Conn., and Mason Brayman Starring, Jr., of Irving-on-Hudson, N. Y. Mrs. Starring's father was the famous Prof. Swing of Central church, Chicago.

AGREE TO GIVE NEWS BY RADIO TWICE DAILY

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—An agreement for the broadcasting of news twice a day, for five minutes in the morning and five minutes in the evening, has been reached at a series of conferences between representatives of newspapers, press associations, and radio groups, it was announced today. This program will go into effect March 1.

In accordance with the agreement a committee of seven members will set up proper editorial control and supervision of a bureau designed to furnish to the radio broadcasters brief daily news bulletins of not more than thirty words each for broadcasting purposes.

This committee is to consist of one representative each from the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Associated Press, United Press, International News Service, and the broadcasting companies.

The Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting company have announced that, in accordance with their previously expressed intention, they have decided to withdraw from the newsgathering field.

MOE ROSENBERG'S ESTATE $15,000, COURT IS TOLD

Moe Rosenberg, Democratic ward committeeman and party leader who died on Jan. 12, left an estate valued at $15,000, Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell, was informed yesterday.

Rosenberg left no will, and his widow, Mrs. Annette Rosenberg, 1230 Independence boulevard, applied for letters of administration for the estate, which she will share with two sons.

At one time Rosenberg's fortune was estimated at $2,000,000. At the time of his death he was facing trial on charges of income tax fraud. The government has a claim of $65,000 for unpaid taxes, which may be made a lien against the estate.

In every neighborhood, Chicago families realize the nearness, the remarkable promptness and superiority of Hursen service in directing funerals.

They know that Hursen elegance, Hursen unmatchable equipment, and the use of Hursen Organ-Chapels, always free, cannot be matched in their own neighborhood.

They know, too, that Hursen funerals cost less!

John Simpson and young Watson Armour made in Africa about a year and a half ago. Mrs. Winterbotham is combing the membership of the club to discover other talent to present as entertainment on other Thursday nights.

A number of the young men in society who belong to the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club and who enjoy squash [the game, not the vegetable] will take their wives or sweethearts to the club tonight for dinner to see two squash matches. This is the club's offer of something to do on "maid's night out."

Reception to Open Art Institute Show.

Pouring and serving tea for the hundreds who will go to the Art institute this afternoon for the opening reception of the 38th annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity will be representatives of four women's clubs of the city, the Englewood Woman's club, the Woodlawn Woman's club, the Hyde Park Travel club and the Woman's Ideal club. The reception is to be from 3 until 5:30 o'clock in the temporary exhibition galleries.

The prize winners, of course, will be the objects most looked for by those who are there today, but catching the eyes of all, partly because it is in the first gallery and partly because it is the portrait of a well-known Chicago prelate, will be a painting by Paul Trebilcock of Bishop George Craig Stewart. Peterpaul Ott's bust of Harald Kreutzberg, the dancer, also will attract the eyes of all, we are sure, and so will Sylvia Shaw Judson's beautiful Shepherd.

Since Victor Elting became president of the English Speaking union evening affairs have been given by that society, for Mr. Elting, being a busy man himself, realizes how difficult it is for men to take time enough at noon to attend the luncheon-meetings of the society, interesting though they be.

Consequently a buffet supper has been planned for a young English journalist and lecturer, Patrick Braybrooke, on Thursday, Feb. 8, at the Palmer house, instead of a noon party. The supper will be served at 7:30 o'clock and after supper Mr. Braybrooke, who is a cousin of G. K. Chesterton, will talk. His subject is "Post-War England Speaks."

Swifts Leave for the West.

Mrs. Edward F. Swift and her son and daughter-in-law, the Junior Edward F. Swifts, left Tuesday, bound for the west. Mrs. Swift Sr. is going out to the James Minotios' ranch in Arizona to spend a few weeks, and the younger Swifts are going on to California to visit friends. When they have had a gay whirl there they will join Mrs. Swift on the Minottos ranch and return home by March 10.

A family quintet started off yesterday by rail for Miami, from where they will take a boat to Nassau, where they will spend at least a month and perhaps longer. In the party were Mrs. John G. Shedd, her two daughters, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe and Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, and her two granddaughters, Miss Jean Schweppe and Miss Mary Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fentress, who sailed last November on a business and pleasure trip, are on the high seas returning home. They took a slow boat last Saturday and will be in New York by the beginning of next week. There they will visit for a day or so with their son, James Jr., who lives there, and they might even stop off to see their younger son, David Wendell, at Lehigh university, before returning to their Winnetka home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charl Henry Brown [Bertha Alling] are being congratulated upon the birth of their first child, a boy, yesterday at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling and he is to be named Alling Brown.

Schmidts to Sail for Home Today.

At the close of A Century of Progress last summer Miss Dorothy Schmidt, who worked so hard for the success of the Junior league plays in the Children's theater on the Enchanted island, and her mother, Mrs. Frederick M. Schmidt, departed for Europe. They are sailing today and should be at home by the middle of the month, even if they stop a few days in the east to visit friends.

Miss Kate Buckingham, who had planned to sail shortly for Italy to hear her protégé, Giuseppe Bentonelli [Joseph Benton], make his debut in opera in Rome, is postponing her trip indefinitely because she is not feeling quite up to the long voyage.

The Sterling Mortons left yesterday for Palm Beach, to be away two or three months. Their daughter, Miss Suzette Morton, will spend her vacation from Vassar with her parents.

Members of the Woman's Athletic club are looking forward to the lecture they will hear this morning on "Wisdom in Living," by Dr. Harry A. Overstreet, philospher and psychologist, and his wife, Bonaro Wilkinson Overstreet, the poet. Each member may invite two guests.

Mrs. James L. Kippey, Mrs. Roger Cros, Mrs. Joseph Allworthy, and Miss Dorothy Cahill will be the hostesses at the weekly causerie of the Alliance Française this afternoon. Mlle. Dorcas Perrenoud will give a French reading while the members sew and then tea will be served.

M. Jean Canu, who is a professor at Bryn Mawr, will talk about "In Normandy with Flaubert and Maupassant" at Saturday's conference at the alliance.

Fireman to Make Coffee for Reception.

The club delegates and friends of the woman's division of the Salvation Army who attend an open house between 3:30 and 5 this afternoon at the new Two R shop at 421 North State street will have coffee made by the firemen across the street. These firemen, observing the shop with interest the last couple of weeks, paid a visit to it yesterday and volunteered to make the coffee for the party today. Immediately the board members accepted.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark and Mrs. Holland Flagler will preside over the coffee and the doughnuts that are to accompany it.

"A Night in Paris" is what the committee in charge of the series of Thursday night parties being given at the College inn for the benefit of the Arden Shore Boys' camp at Lake Bluff is calling tonight's affair, and Miss Julianna Holmes, chairman, reports that there have been many reservations made for it.

Edward F. Wilson has taken to the stage. This evening he is appearing in the sole masculine rôle in a skit that features two spinsters on the clubroom stage at the Kenwood church. Young Mr. Wilson is a member of the official board of the south side church where his family, the Thomas E. Wilsons, attend services.

Hair Styles for Children

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We'll confess to a weakness for small children, but if there's one time when the sight of a small child sends us screaming from the scene in pain and disgust it's when that small child is decked out in too, too adult fashion. The only thing that makes it worse is to have the youngster lift her childish voice in torch songs. We shoot to kill then—or wish we could!

Children who are brought to beauty shops and indiscriminately given permanents, blood red nail polishes and eyebrow pluckings are most unfortunate in their choice of mothers, to our way of thinking. That's why we heartily endorse those children's shops in Chicago which spread the gospel of beauty, but do it in the wholesome fashion that doesn't obliterate childish charm.

If the small girl is heartbroken because she has straight hair and eating her spinach hasn't encouraged the promised curls there's no reason why she shouldn't have a permanent if her mother honestly thinks it's for the child's own good—BUT that wave mustn't be a tight one. It should be given by an expert who appreciates the charm of "little girl" curls and strives for just that effect rather than a grown up one.

And if a little girl bites her nails there is nothing in the world that will awaken pride in the appearance of her hands that manicures will. If she sees her hands looking pretty just once, she'll hesitate, being feminine, before she ever again despoils that prettiness with a nervous nibble at a nail. But—red or even pink nail polish for the girl under sixteen—NO.

At the children's beauty shop in a State street store we were delighted to find just the wholesome atmosphere we think important. Fond but misguided mamas can't even talk the operators into freakish cuts or waved effects that are in blatantly bad taste. There's a room for boys—with ship models and such to entrance them; another for girls, all delicately done in pastels, and still a third room for infants, who are guaranteed to take happily to hair cuts when a moving belt bearing the most wondrous toys in the world distracts them while the barber does his good work.

Bright Prints Splashed Upon Sheer Wools

Small Flowers Spaced on Ivory Background.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the most exciting prints are being splashed over sheer woolens such as challis and thin novelty wool sheers from France. Look for the lovely new blue stuff, a clear bright blue the color of sapphires, patterend with bright yellow and white broken circles. It would make a stunning three piece costume with the frock ready for instant duty under a winter coat.

Tiny flowers circumspectly spaced on creamy ivory backgrounds, fragile floral bouquets sprinkled on pale pink and sky blue challis make some flattering dance frocks for young slim persons, for whom they seem especially designed to charm. Striped challis like stick candy are other selections perfect for different new dance dresses, while a broken band design looks exactly like the colorful designs in the sarongs worn by a Malay belle.

Stunning flowered challis that look like the gorgeous flowered silks of summer time are as startling and attractive as anything you can find. Softly blurred floral designs in soft rose, yellow, leaf green, and old blue make some eye-filling lengths of amazingly soft wool distinctive for party dresses for midseason wear, while the gay, breezy striped effects will fashion some of the most soul satisfying evening costumes you can manage to own.

Until you have seen the bolts of huge plaided patterns that have been unpacked during the last few days you have missed the thrill of the season. It's bigger and better plaids from now on, the sky apparently being the limit, and absolutely no limit to the wild color combinations and contrasts.

Some audacious plaids are crossed and criss-crossed on white or ivory backgrounds, bright blue, green, and scarlet with yellow, and gay greens doubled with clear citron yellow and wild orange. Good old timers of black and white and gray and black, gold and brown, and beige splurge with a new size squares. If the new yardage reflects or shows what is coming later, we are all in for a wildly checkered fashion career.

Bath Hour Is Good Time for Face Creaming

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Allowing a cream to remain on the face during the bath is an old beauty hint, but I see that the hint is being revived by cosmetic manufacturers.

If you are in need of a hurry up massage and have no time for the engagement with your usual salon, this gives the face quite a lift out of the doldrums. But it is wise first to wash the face with your cleansing cream, and wipe off the first grime and soil. Then, wash the face with warm water and soap before you get in the tub and then apply your second helping of cleansing cream, and you have a home massage that's worth talking about. Leaving the cream on while you bathe has an especially softening effect, and of course the body heat helps to absorb more of the cream, liquify it, and allow it to penetrate more deeply into the pores.

If you want a really refreshed look, remove this second coating of cream and let face and throat come in for the rejuvenating effects of the shower water turned directly on. Then, when the body is dried, and the face, put still another film of cream on, or use a bit of your foundation cream. Your face should now be fit to be well appraised by your worst enemy.

And speaking of the softened skin and soft facial expression, generally arrived at cosmetically, certain discriminating women are using the cream rouge and leaving it unpowdered, the theory being that the powdering over the rouge adds just a bit of a dried touch to the skin.

Another softening trick, pretty commonly practised now, is leaving a faint film of cream over the eyes, and a wee bit under the lower lash, just so the skin around the eye glistens slightly. If you use a cream eye shadow you won't need this, although many who use eye shadow do the cream filming too, and it looks nice.

Sometimes the cream is mixed in the palm with a bit of cream eye shadow to both tone down the eye shadow coloring and to get a more moist look around the eye.

Paris Lowers Neckline in Spring Frocks; Throats, Chests Again Come Into View

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Dresses that make a point of showing the neck and some of the chest are appearing here and there in Paris styles. They are in the minority, and the frock which leaves only a glimpse of the top of the throat in public view is a lot more prominent. However, the low cut dress is coming back to style, and even the couture who are busiest covering up our necks for us admit that it is on the way.

Vionnet is one to indicate clearly her intention of letting our throats and chests show. She makes frocks that are cut down in a quite deep square, like the model shown in our sketch, and her clients seem to like them, for one sees them worn on some of the smart Parisiennes here.

This model is made of a soft green crêpe silk, and the way in which the low cut neckline is draped around the edges is characteristic of Vionnet who seldom sanctions hard and severe lines anywhere. Vionnet's new sleeves which are full below the elbows and which are caught into fitted cuffs with bows at the wrists are a feature of this model. The skirt is slim looking but actually has a good deal of width below the hipline, done by circular cutting.

Longer Skirts Appear in Paris Style Shows of Summer Clothes

PARIS, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Longer skirts were the rule in today's fashion shows, which are beginning to indicate what's what in the spring mode.

"No more striding about in short skirts," is the present decree for all hours of the day, following upon a general trend toward greater femininity.

Although the length is far from extreme, there is a tendency to lengthen sports and street outfits to nine to eleven inches from the ground and to make informal afternoon clothes slightly longer.

Spring coats, a big item in feminine wardrobes, appeared in sober tones of black, brown, and navy, in beige and wools, often brightened by scarfs of gay colored suede silk. Street models, designed for slightly fitted waistlines, had smooth plain shoulders, the sleeves sometimes widening slightly just below the shoulders into a fullness, brushed backwards.

There were scores of three-quarter length tweed, wool and linen models, sometimes hanging loose, sometimes belted, often contrasting with the color of the dress, as a knee length beige linen coat, embroidered in black dots with a black crêpe frock.

Several models had broad collars of banded suede instead of fur, which has been rarely used as yet. There were many brown, navy, taffeta, black and satin afternoon coats.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. George D. Pratt, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic B. Pratt sailed today on the Oriente and have arranged to pass the next six weeks in South America, later returning to their Long Island estates.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitch Gilbert, who were at the St. Regis, started for Aiken.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Everett Hooper Jr., announce the birth of a daughter on Jan. 27.

This Man Has an Eye Each on Girl and Ideal

But the Good Humored Woman Wears Ring.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

As a news item, the ideal wife qualifications, offered a while ago by Mrs. E. F. Langworthy, a leader in the National Congress of Parents and Teachers of the United States, may have been brought to your attention.

But an incident, in connection with the cited fourteen requirements of the ideal wife, just comes to our notice, indicating that some of our young men take these recommendations seriously.

The first qualification cited in the 14 point list was:

The second read: "Know how to budget, spend wisely and get the value of money spent."

No. 5 read: "Know how to combine foods for nourishment and attractiveness."

One young man, with a view to housing under his roof an ideal wife at an early date, was trying to make up his mind which of two girls he should ask. The list with the qualifications came to his attention. He made duplicates and sent one to each girl, asking her to check off her accomplishments according to the suggestions enclosed. One girl was furious, called him up and demanded to know what right he had to inquire whether she could sew, mend or budget. And she didn't expect, as his wife or any other man's wife, to get dishpan hands combining foods for nourishment and attractiveness. How would he like her to make out a list for him to subscribe to? "Fine," he responded. "Then you'd know a lot about me right from the start." "You see," he explained, "when you're running around with a girl you don't think so much about these things. It's afterward you begin to ask: 'Well, why didn't I find out thus and so beforehand?'"

Girl No. 3, who eventually got the engagement ring, returned the list with gay little comments, confiding a willingness to learn what she now performed only half well in sewing, budgeting and other household features.

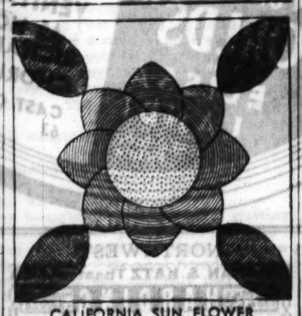
The Stage

"Let 'Em Eat Cake," the sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," will not appear in Chicago this season, or ever, although it has been an expected booking. After three weeks on tour the company ended its career in Philadelphia last Saturday night.

"Maya," a French drama of the Marseilles redlight district which has been in performance in the Punch and Judy theater for the last six weeks, will end its run next Saturday night. "The Mad Lover," by Melanie Koll, will be the next production in this playhouse. Its premiere is announced for Friday night, Feb. 9. Raymond Hackett will have the leading rôle—Don Juan of Byron's poem.

Alice Gersternberg's dramatization of "Alice In Wonderland," staged in the Punch and Judy theater last fall, will be revived for Saturday morning performances in the Studebaker theater during March. C. C.

State of Sunshine and Flowers Gives This Quilt Design



CALIFORNIA SUN FLOWER

BY NANCY CABOT.

Pleasing design and harmonious colors make the "California Sun Flower" a great favorite not only with the "native daughters" but with all quilters. The block is executed in two shades of yellow and dark green. Simplicity makes the pattern easy for the novice to follow in sewing her first quilt.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

WEDDING

Miss Roberta Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Lewis Clore of Evanston, was married last night to James Herbert Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Herbert Wells, also of Evanston. The service was read at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Gerald G. Moore, dean of the procathedral in the Lady chapel of St. Luke's church. Miss Alyse Marsh attended the bride and George Craig Stewart Jr. was best man.

MIDDLE AGED HAIR IS YOUTHFUL AGAIN

"I'M DISGUSTED WITH MY HAIR. IT'S ALWAYS SO DULL, LIFELESS AND OLD LOOKING. HOW DO YOU KEEP YOURS SO LOVELY?"
"MY HAIR WAS THAT WAY UNTIL I USED GERAL THE ORIGINAL MAKE-UP FOR THE HAIR. WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?"

Doing one thing now makes dull hair gleam with lustre

If you would like to see your dull, faded hair take on a lustre and beauty it has not had in years—just do this one simple thing. Comb your hair with Geral—the original make-up for the hair. Geral is not a dye, bleach or henna. It contains no oil. Geral beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. No matter what the color of your hair—blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray—no matter how lifeless and drab, Geral will impart NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters and drug stores.

Cuticura Soap

For the Daily Care of Your Hands

Prolong the youthful appearance of your hands by giving them the same care you give your face. Use Cuticura Soap every time you wash your hands; it will do much to prevent redness and roughness caused by daily tasks and to keep the hands soft, smooth and lively.

Price 25c.

Veteran Actor Gets His First Role as a Star

Charley Grapewin Has Been Married 35 Years.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Charley Grapewin, veteran character actor, possesses a couple of Hollywood records. Now being starred for the first time at an age when the parade has passed by for most actors, Grapewin has been happily married for 35 years to the stage leading lady of his youth, Anna Chance. And when not acting he's a carpenter. Unaided Grapewin not only has added an entire new wing to their Hollywood home but he built the bar in the billiard room of inlaid imported woods and nearly all the chairs, tables, dressers and even some of the beds with his own hammer, saw and glue pot.

This actor is playing with Emma Dunn, Billy Bakewell, Mary Kornman and Barbara Weeks in "The Quitter," story of a futile old man who has forgotten all that women—mother, wife and friends, ever meant to him in his life. The film is being made by Chesterfield Productions.

Grapewin has written several plays including "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp" in which he successfully appeared on Broadway, and novels, one being "The Town Pump." Of Mrs. Grapewin he says "She's as pretty and has as lovely a figure as the day I married her." [Showing that he's a smart fellow now and was a smart picker 35 years ago].

While Greta Garbo and her director, Rouben Mamoulian, were on another of their brief companionate vacation jaunts to the Kemper Campbell "guest ranch" in the desert near Victorville, Cal., last week eleven other guests were at the ranch when they arrived. The manager requested each of the others, men and women, not to "stare at, follow or stay around" when Miss Garbo left the ranch place for hikes or horseback rides through the surrounding country.

In the recent filming of "It Happened One Day" Mrs. Lee Ray Turner, society woman who manages the film location department for the Assistance league, obtained unprecedented permission for a movie company to land an autogiro in the famous Busch gardens in the heart of Pasadena's exclusive residential section.

The Assistance league is a gathering of Los Angeles society women, club women, motion picture actresses who contribute their time, services, talents and considerable of their money to activities which render a profit wholly devoted to supporting eight or ten permanent Hollywood charities.

Mrs. Turner's job is to obtain permission for film companies to rent estates of millionaires and celebrities who would under no other circumstances permit a movie foot inside the grounds. She gives each estate owner her personal guaranty as a friend that the film company will return the premises to its owner in the apple pie order that existed when the movie company walked in. Money from the studios' rental of grounds, drawing rooms and fancy automobiles is turned over by the rich people whom Mrs. Turner does business with to help swell the league's charity treasury.

Shirley Temple, movie actress, not yet 5 years of age, draws $150 a week with gradual increases—if all her options should be renewed by the Fox studio—guaranteeing her $1,250 a week in her eleventh year. The salary agreement became known when the yellow haired "youngest Follies girl" went to court with her mother, Mrs. George R. Temple, wife of a local branch bank manager, to get a minor's contract legally approved by a Superior judge. Shirley is playing in "Fox Fillies."

Sylvia Froos, 18, a radio entertainer from New York also had a contract legalized with Fox starting at $750 a week and running to $1,500 at expiration of seven years. She and little Shirley both go to school to Lillian Barkley, the Fox studio teacher. Miss Froos is in the film Follies, also.

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Laurie leaves and Barbara makes her presence known to Rance. She asks him to marry her. But when she learns he is divorced, she tells him it is hopeless and leaves him. Gregory feels humiliated. The Chiswicks give a party to announce the engagement of Laurie's sister. Barbara and Gregory meet. She is torn between her love for Gregory and fear of hurting her father.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A FATHER'S LOSS.

Rance was far from feeling the calm he had assumed. From the moment he had her body in his arms he was lost and he knew it. Everything in her exuded an extreme sensibility, that sensibility in women that alone can satisfy combustible natures like his.

"Whatever she may pretend," he said to himself fiercely, "she, herself, belongs to me."

He was unable to rid his imagination of that impulsive seeking of her lips to his! The first provocative kiss of a woman may mean all or nothing. It is tentative. A man may accept the challenge and go on as far as he likes or is able, but the first kiss of a young girl passionately in love is a surrender without premeditation or conditions. If it haunts the imagination it is because it cannot be lightly repeated. To return is to admit an equal surrender. Because it has the quality of the forbidden, it has that quality of danger which heightens all passions.

"She loves me and she wants to immolate herself on her old Puritan prejudices. How ridiculous!" he thought angrily. "That's what's wrong with all these people. They're afraid of everything, afraid of living, of loving, afraid of suffering. Everything they want is something wrong, something to be resisted! Puritanical gloom and flagellation, sickly consciences! Life has to be denied to be moral. And that's just what she's preparing to do—fade out of life, hugging the memory of her one thwarted illusion——"

Some one came up and began to talk to him. He listened without hearing, nodding his head from time to time to conceal his preoccupation. He had her constantly before his eyes as she passed lightly among the dancers as though suspended on the arms of her partners. She was no longer smiling, no longer avoiding his glance. Wherever she went, at every turn of the dance, her eyes sought his, heavy with a wounded incomprehension. The sight of her arm in the arms of other men was torture. He hated everything about him, the sounds of laughter, the rhythms that beat in his ears and stirred his emotions to dangerous tensions, the soft, sypnotic swaying of the lanterns, the men who looked at her, talked to her, danced with her. He was miserable, angry, at a loss. He wanted to hurt her again, to beg her forgiveness for what he had done, to leave, to stay, to show his indifference by devoting himself to other women, to go back to her, carry her off, escape. He stayed, unable to make up his mind.

All at once the music stopped and there came a great clapping of hands from the inner rooms. Frank Chippinway appeared, waving his hands.

"Everybody in, please. Mr. Chiswick is about to make an important announcement. Silence, every one. Silence!"

Rance moved to the doorway reluctantly, keeping Barbara in view. Auguste and the borrowed butlers were hurrying around with trays of champagne. Ed Chippinway and Peter Van Valgah were crying:

"Everybody must take a glass. Everybody now!"

"All in."

"Silence."

"Tony's going to make a speech."

Chiswick appeared from the dining room, a napkin in his hand, very red, very flustered. Back of him, old Maria, vigilant and calm, stood with a glass and a bottle.

"My friends, my very good friends——" He paused, passing the napkin over his brow while every one applauded. "You—every one who knows—you all think I am delighted, should be delighted to rise: that is, to come before you tonight. Well, I—I—I am NOT! I want it distinctly understood I am NOT—NOT HAPPY! I'm not going to be a hypocrite! No one, not here in Oxbridge, no one can say he ever heard Tony Chiswick say what he DID NOT MEAN! I'm very unhappy, very, yes, very."

"But isn't he going to announce his daughter's engagement?"

Another voice:

"S-h, if he doesn't soon Frank Chippinway will."

Old Maria, nudging him, said audibly:

"Come on now, Mr. Tony, tell them what it's all about."

"The divinity who presides over my household," said Chiswick, starting off again, with a backward glance at Maria, "has just jogged my elbow and said——" He stopped, and as it was quite evident that every one knew what she had said, he went off on another track. "My good friends; no, no, NO! There is one person here, one man, who is not, distinctly not! There is one MAN, one young man, whom I cannot regard with anything but—but—the BLACKEST, the most VINDICTIVE of—— You ask; that is, what you want to know—why I am unhappy. Why? BECAUSE everything is WRONG. [The napkin began to wave wildly.] All wrong! The whole system of society is wrong. The system that forces a father to bring up a child—a girl, ten, fifteen, eighteen years; yes, eighteen, that's it; buy her clothes, educate her—here, home, abroad, finishing schools, music lessons—— Thousands—yes—thousands of dollars! And what happens? Does she return to his home to run his house, relieve his wife, help him with his bills, and his correspondence? Does she grace his home with her charming presence, comfort his declining years—no—no—years, comfort his declining years with the rippling notes of her lovely laughter? Does she? No! What does she do? She goes off in the home of another man. And what about the father, eh? By Jove, who thinks of the father and the worry and the clothes to be bought and——"

Voice of Maria:

Voice of Mrs. Chiswick:

"Tony!"

"Isn't it true? Isn't it true?" exclaimed Chiswick, waving both hands. "I appeal, I ask—any father here tonight—all fathers—if—if—if there's any peace in the household between the engagement and the final catastrophe? That's why I said I am not happy, not happy at all. My Evangeline—my only daughter gone from these ancestral halls! But, but we must put on a smiling face, a brave front—face the music. And so I, I raise my glass and drink, we all drink to the health of my daughter, Evangeline, and may she have nothing but daughters to desert her as, as——" Here he seized the glass from Maria, poured it full, and crying, "Evangeline," drained it and shattered it on the floor.

"But who's the man? Name the man!" cried fifty voices amid roars of satisfied laughter.

Now, whether on account of the abruptness of the demand, the excitement of the speech, the noise of the clapping and laughter, or whether he actually forgot, Tony Chiswick stood helplessly glowering around for Maria, who, having gone off for a dustpan, could not prompt him.

Evangeline, with a furious look at her father, stepped forward and said:

"The name of the man I am proud to marry is Louis Bradford Coates. And here he is!"

"Speech!" cried some.

"Do we smash our glasses?"

"No!" cried Mrs. Chiswick, rising and raising her hands.

"YES!" cried Tony, now recovered.

"No."

"YES—YES!"

Frank Chippinway interfered diplomatically with the suggestion that there were other toasts to be drunk, particularly that of the charming mother. "Mater pulchra, filia pulchrior," and the glasses were saved. The crowd, laughing and delighted that Tony had performed true to form, pressed around Evangeline to congratulate her.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N, Tune in at 2 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Soups, it seems, are as fastidious about their dining companions as are wines or women. Take broths and chowders, for instance. We would hardly expect a light broth to settle the situation by itself at a winter's day lunch any more than we would think of placing before dismayed guests a huge platter of cream soup or hearty chowder just before a dinner of turkey and trimmings. The time and the place are very much matters of import in soup serving.

But, though we sorrow over the heavy soups if they appear as a precursor for more food, it's a bird of quite a different complexion when it bows itself in as the main attraction of a noontime winter's meal. Then we welcome chowder with glad hearts and open faces. So, to scandalously versify, the next time the larder's low and the ground's under snow, try the recipe below. You'll discover that a fellow's amply fed after one serving:

POTATO ONION SOUP.

1 quart cut-up potatoes (3 large ones)
2 tablespoons butter
3 large onions, sliced thin
3 tablespoons flour
1 tall can evaporated milk with enough water to make one quart of liquid
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

Cook the potatoes in a quart of water, drain (saving the water), and mash until smooth and fluffy. Melt the butter in a soup kettle and simmer the onions in it until they brown. Sift on the flour, stirring to blend, then slowly add the water in which the potatoes were cooked. Cook, with frequent stirrings, until thickened. Now mix together the diluted milk and the potatoes, adding this to the soup with the seasonings. Heat until piping, then serve up the soups with a dash of grated American cheese or minced parsley saluting from the top of each.

Also there's another recipe in which these Irishers play a part, this time starring opposite the creaminess of canned corn. It's a:

CORN-POTATO CHOWDER.

1-3 cup minced salt pork
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 cup of potatoes cut in small slices
1 cup canned or fresh cooked corn
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups water
2 cups whole milk
Soda crackers

Simmer the fat until the grease has partially tried out, then add the onion and cook until golden. Turn in the potatoes, corn, water, and seasoning. Continue boiling until the potatoes are tender, then add the milk and heat again before serving. Serve this chowder over whole soda crackers or sprinkle toasted, buttered bread cubes over the top.

Which gives us a good start for still another satisfying soup. This one is egg chowder and is a popular departure from the above corn affair. Egg chowder simply uses the above recipe and adds twice as much onion. It also omits the corn. Now, when it is ready to serve, poach four eggs in a separate pan of water and, when done, transfer them to soup plates and pour the chowder over them.

And to wind up the soup line the gulf states offer their version of oyster stew, which we'll call:

BAKED OYSTER SOUP.

36 oysters
6 coarsely crushed salted crackers
Salt and pepper to taste
1 stalk celery, separated
1 tablespoon butter

Scald the milk and turn it into a deep baking dish with the well cleaned oysters, whole stems of cleaned celery, butter, seasoning, and crackers. Set the dish at some distance below a broiler flame in a heated oven and tend carefully while a golden brown crust forms and billows up. Stir this in, let another form, stir it in also, and then remove the celery. (This vegetable may be used later for stewing.) Taste carefully for flavor, adding more seasoning if necessary. If you would be most proper in serving this dish bring it to the table in the baking dish and serve it into family bowls from there.

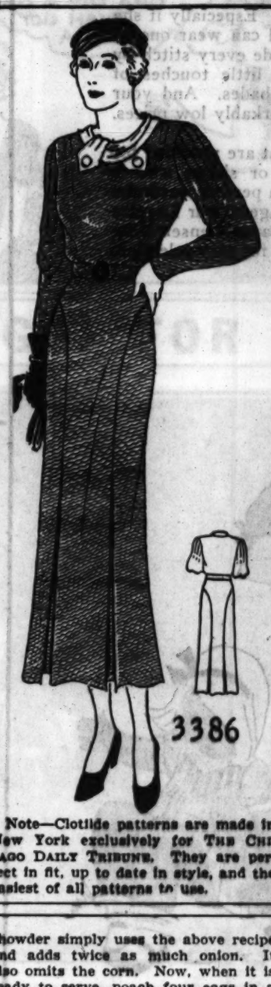
Draped Collar and Paneled Skirt Achieve Slim Line for Full Figure



WOMAN'S DRESS.

The crossover, softly draped collar of this chic daytime dress is slenderizing and becoming. The skirt is paneled to narrow the hipline and lengthen the silhouette. It has inverted plaits at both the front and back for easy walking. A navy and white printed silk crepe, with white crepe for contrast, is always good, will brighten your winter wardrobe, and be just the thing for street wear later on.

The pattern, No. 3386, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

311 Housewives Praise New Washday Trick

Here's what you do. Just use your regular soap and regular washing method, then add two tablespoons or so of Lux. Stir the Lux around in the water and you'll be amazed at how much richer the suds become.

These richer suds work ever so much faster, leave white clothes whiter, keep colors bright. Cut down washing time! And you know how easy Lux is on your hands!

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

Even Fathers Should Play Nursemaid Sometimes.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I remember once hearing a woman say, "I used to think it couldn't make me any better mother if I wiped my baby's nose than if the nurse or the maid did it. But I found out that I was wrong."

It does make a great difference who wipes the children's noses—by which of course we mean that the intimate physical care of a baby or little child tends to make you understand him better. Why? Because in the early years, physical care—the establishing of habits of bathing, eating, dressing, sleeping, and elimination—form a large part of the relationship between children and parents. Character and personality are shown and developed little by little in these routines. Behavior to encourage and behavior to correct are seen by the person who has constant care of children in the early years.

This is something that young fathers might ponder. "My husband can't even change the baby's diaper," is a frequent plaint. That husband is missing a lot—believe it or not!

A correspondent says in part: "You will notice that I am including my husband all through, telling what 'our ideas' are. I wish that I had time to tell you how wonderfully he coöperates with me—studies right with me—and how we agree on what we consider best for our baby boys.

"It is not only in planning that he works right along with me—it is in everything. He has always worked with those babies just like a mother. He can handle, bathe, feed, and care for a baby as well as I. At times when they are sick, I say even better—for he has such a tender, patient way and knows what to do, without waiting for me to decide for him.

"It is at such times, when I am worried and a little nervous, that I realize most how much it means to a mother to let her husband in on these things and let him enjoy his children the more because of it.

"I am so happy because of this. I often think that many fathers could enjoy their children more and be closer to them if they could be brought in more on the little everyday care of them. And I believe more fathers would be, if it wasn't that many mothers just assume that it is not a man's job and just shove them out of things like this with a feeling that they are only something the mother can undertake. I wish that more mothers would try out our plan. I am sure they would find that it is really wonderful."

Good Morning!

Roses, victrola records, Austrian officer married to Russian secret service operative—and guess what you have? Of course! Another "spy" movie.

Though unremarkable in any way, "Madame Spy" manages to hold the interest through the ability and personality of its players and the various slick methods they utilize to make myriad meanings known to many people.

The story's locale is Austria and Russia at the time of the world war. Miss Wray, now blonde, depicts a beauteous and subtle lady who, in the guise of an Austrian Red Cross nurse, weds that ace Austrian intelligence officer, Capt. Franck, to see what she can learn from him. One of the things she finds out to her dismay is that she's in love with her intended victim. . . .

The ways of war and the ways of love join and merge in a rocky trail that straightens out and lies lapped in sunshine by the end of the picture.

"Madame Spy" has romance, suspense, and action. While these are of the cut and dried variety, still—they serve.

KUCERA, STUNDL TIE FOR MEN'S SILVER SKATES

LONDOS THROWS SAVOLDI BEFORE 20,200; DRAW $32,000

JIM AVENGES HIS DEFEAT OF 1933 IN 21 MINUTES

Marshall Wins from McMillen.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

That little black mark which Joe Savoldi indited in the book of James Londos last spring has been scratched out.

Jim attended to the erasure at the Chicago Stadium last night in the presence of 20,200 howling customers, who paid gross receipts of $32,000 to see Londos avenge his defeat by Savoldi on the same premises last April 7. The crowd was the largest ever to see a wrestling match in the Stadium.

Londos not only threw the former Notre Dame football star, using a reverse body hold, but made his revenge sweeter by accomplishing it in 21 minutes and 40 seconds. This was nearly five minutes shorter than the time required by Savoldi to win in their only previous meeting.

Thiry Referees Match.

Notable by his absence last night was Referee Bob Managoff, the central figure in the disputed Londos-Savoldi case of ten months ago. Emil Thiry served as the arbiter in the ring last night, with the outside collaboration of Walter Evans and Sam Clapham as judges. The match had attracted such attention that the reading of the new fangled rules to govern it sounded like a selection from the Congressional Record.

The match started officially at 10:11 after the touching presentation of a hamper of posies to Londos by a young admirer. There was nary an orchid for Savoldi, but Joe didn't seem to be wrought up about the oversight.

Londos Goes Right to Work.

The customers were amazed by the manner in which the proceedings got under way. Instead of going into his usual minuet, Londos came dashing across the ring in bare feet encased in leather spats and began to cuff Savoldi right smartly across the jowls. Joe obviously didn't care for this and soon responded in kind and they bartered slaps and punches for three minutes, until Savoldi finally gained the advantage with two arm locks in quick succession.

The Greek then applied a body scissors and then a split hold, from which Savoldi liberated himself by kicking Londos in the chin. Londos then came through with his well remembered series of body slams, followed by the finishing reverse hold. This appeared almost unnecessary, since Savoldi was considerably dazed, and it seemed to the trusting souls in the vicinity that he was practically prostrate before Londos made certain of it.

Marshall Beats McMillen.

"The Compleat Rassler," an interesting study in the full routine of the grappling art, was presented in 30 minutes by two of the league's best practitioners, Everett Marshall and Jim McMillen, in the 30 minute semi-windup. Marshall was awarded the referee's decision, and appeared so startled by the fact that he nearly forgot to go to his honorable opponent's corner to extend his sympathy, which would have been an atrocious breach of rassling etiquette.

Karl Davis of Columbus, O., was awarded the referee's decision over Dutch Heffner, 228 pounds, of Texas, in the first match. Heffner is a disciple of the unorthodox George Zaharias, and did his best to uphold the Zaharias teaching by kicking Davis in the head. It took the referee three minutes to convince Heffner that he had overstepped the bounds of sportsmanship.

The next number involved two cavemen named Ernie Dusek and Matros Kirilenko, and verged on the epic. Kirilenko, enhanced the prehistoric motif by disdaining a bathrobe for a leopard skin. The boys evinced the ultimate in ferocity and spent the time pitching each other off the fairway. Matros finally succumbed to a reverse body hold in 24 minutes.

Short, but Snappy.

The clientele was stunned by the briefness of the third novelty, and there was much thumbing of the rule books to see whether a bout could actually be concluded in less than ten minutes. It was finally decided that even if it was unlawful, it was a good thing and it was allowed to stand as a victory for Joe Malcewicz. It took Joe just nine minutes and six seconds to do away with Milo Steinborn. He used a reverse body hold.

Charles Dinsmore, Hocky Referee, Is Suspended

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The suspension of Charles [Dinny] Dinsmore, National Hocky league referee, was announced today by Frank Patrick, managing director of the league. Patrick said the suspension was for "inefficient refereeing" in the game here last Saturday between the New York Americans and the Montreal Maroons, won by the Maroons, 2 to 1 in overtime. The suspension is indefinite.

ON YOUR MARKS—GO! FOR A SILVER SKATES TITLE

Yale Appoints Pond Coach; Willaman Quits Ohio State

To aid the man who made football history for Yale in the muddy battles of 1923 and 1924 against Harvard, three outsiders were called:

Earle [Greasy] Neale of West Virginia, back field coach.

Denny E. Myers of West Virginia, line coach.

Ivan B. Williamson of Michigan, end coach.

Recommended by Farmer.

The appointments were made tonight by the board of athletic control, on the recommendation of Malcolm Farmer, chairman of athletics, after a controversy involving graduates and undergraduates alike since the close of last season.

Ducky Pond and his aids take over the reins from Reggie Root, head coach of only one year, and his staff which included Charlie Comerford, a Yale man, and two Notre Dame men, Adam Walsh and Bucky O'Connor.

The Yale Athletic association announced that the new staff will report at New Haven early in February to lay the groundwork for a squad that must meet next season one of the toughest schedules ever faced by an Eli team.

Big West Virginia Tinge.

The strong West Virginia tinge in the new staff came as a surprise after the demands of graduates for an outsider head coach, preferably Harry G. Kipke of Michigan, led to the belief that most of the coaches would be Michigan men.

Yale athletic authorities said Bennie Oosterbaan of Michigan had been offered the post of end coach, but turned it down, so Williamson, previously assigned to the freshman staff, was raised to the varsity job.

The board of athletic control—twelve men, headed by James Rowland Angell, president of the university—held its deciding meeting in the offices of the Yale A. A.

The appointments were announced immediately afterward. One year agreements were drawn up for the new coaches. Their salaries were not disclosed.

No action was taken on the freshman coaching staff, but Reggie Root was expected to go back to his post of season before last as head coach of the yearlings.

Shaughnessy Denies Buckeyes Offered Post to Him.

Columbus, O., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The resignation of Sam Willaman as head football coach at Ohio State university was announced today by Athletic Director Lynn W. St. John.

An hour later Willaman's appointment as head coach at Western Reserve university at Cleveland was announced by athletic officials at that school. He will succeed Tom Keady, who was not offered a new contract.

Willaman came to Ohio State in 1926 to serve for three years as chief of staff for Coach John W. Wilce. He was made head coach in 1929. He was graduated from Ohio State in 1913 after playing half back on the first team coached by Dr. Wilce.

Other Coaches Stay.

Resignation of Willaman will not affect other members of the football coaching staff, St. John said. Although the new coach, whoever he may be, will be given his choice in selection of assistants, St. John believes that, even if members of the present staff are not included in the new coaching setup, there will be enough work for all. Present members of the staff are Ernie Godfrey, line coach; Floyd Stahl, assistant coach, and Dick Larkins, line coach.

Willaman's salary, although not announced, will be in excess of what he received at Ohio State, it is reported. He will take over his new duties in time to supervise spring practice, although he will not be officially employed until the start of Western Reserve's fiscal year on July 1.

With spring practice less than six weeks distant St. John will take immediate steps to obtain a successor to Willaman. As athletic director it will be up to St. John to make the recommendations for the new coach to the athletic board.

OHIO WANTS SHAUGHNESSY

It was reported from Columbus last night that Clark Shaughnessy of the University of Chicago was first choice of Athletic Director L. W. St. John for the position at Ohio State vacated by Sam Willaman. St. John admitted he had been authorized to approach Shaughnessy with the proposition.

It was all news to Shaughnessy, however. The Chicago gridiron leader said last night he had talked to St. John in Chicago Sunday about routine football matters connected with the coming Chicago-Ohio State game, but there was no discussion of the coaching job.

Shaughnessy said he was entirely satisfied with his present position.

WESLEYAN GIVES STATE NORMAL 42-40 BEATING

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan held first place in the Little 19 conference basketball race by defeating State Normal, 42 to 40, tonight. It was the fifth straight league victory for Wesleyan.

With 11 minutes to play, Normal led, 30 to 28, and with four minutes remaining, Normal still was in the lead, 37 to 36. Paul Weger and Jean Bedell then rushed Wesleyan into a 42 to 38 lead.

Babe Ruth Has Setback; Doctor Orders Him to Bed

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Babe Ruth had a slight setback in his recovery from an attack of grippe today and the doctor chased him back to bed. A couple of days ago he was allowed to roam around his apartment. "The Babe's fever has disappeared," Dr. Oswald La Rotonda said, "but he's so fatigued that I thought it would be best if he rests in bed for five or six more days."

Vines Finds 13 Unlucky; Loses to Bill Tilden

Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines Jr., found his 13th match with Bill Tilden, national professional tennis champion, unlucky and lost tonight in straight sets, 0-6, 2-6.

TONY HERRERA STOPS MANDELL IN 6TH ROUND

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Tony Herrera, El Paso lightweight, tonight won by a technical knockout in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round bout with Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion.

For four rounds Mandell maintained a fast pace, holding Herrera on even terms. Herrera started a terrific head attack in the fifth round that had Mandell in a bad way when it ended.

INDIANA SQUARES ACCOUNTS WITH WABASH, 32-28

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Indiana university's basketball team squared accounts with Wabash tonight. The score was 32 to 28.

Although leading at the half, 16 to 12, Indiana was threatened in the last ten minutes when the Little Giants, led by Mason and Hollett, took a 28 to 27 lead. Last minute shots scored by Weir and Walker decided the battle.

Interest of Hoosier fans centered on Fred Fechtman, sophomore from Southport, who made his debut at center. Six feet 7 inches tall, Fetchman took a large share of tipoffs and showed promise of gaining a regular berth on the team. With the exception of games played in a Southport Sunday school league, it was his first competition.

Kehrt led Indiana with three field goals and two free throws, while Weir got 7 points.

NOTRE DAME WINS, 27-25

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The shock troops came to the rescue tonight and led the Notre Dame basketball team to its 15th consecutive home victory, defeating Valparaiso, 27 to 25.

Coach George Keogan retired all but one of his starting cast midway in the first half when it became apparent that their basketball had suffered considerably from the semester examinations. Valparaiso, using a fast passing attack, held the lead three times during the first half and the score was tied four times.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Al Kucera of the Brekke Skating club and Edwin Stundl, Olympic skating club star, finished a dead heat in the two mile Senior Men's Silver Skates championship race last night at the Waveland avenue ice arena. They shared the title in the 17th annual Silver Skates Derby sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and thus established an all time record. It was the first time in the history of the events that any championship has been called a draw.

Thousands lined the course adjacent to Sheridan road when the men lined up for the two mile event, the climax of the afternoon and evening. To some extent the crowd was responsible for the decision of the judges, for it broke through the cordon of police to swarm out on the field of ice as Kucera and Stundl fought for the most highly prized skating championship in the central states. Stroke by stroke the pair paced the field until with three and a half laps to go Kucera, easily visible because of his white jersey, jumped into a 30 foot lead.

Stundl Closes with Rush.

Stundl, winner of the boys' intermediate championship in 1931, strove to come back. As he hit the final turn he was within six feet of the flying Kucera. Then as Kucera breasted the line, Stundl also came up on the outside and in the opinion of the judges and referee earned a share of the award.

Arthur Larson and William Skrivans, judges of first place, were divided in opinion as to the winner. Fred Schwind and Frank Oakes thought Kucera was second, while Sigard Larson refused to cast a vote because his view of the finish line was obstructed by the crowd. After Gen. John V. Clinnin, referee of the tournament, called for a vote of the judges, he cast the deciding opinion that Kucera and Stundl should share first place.

On the flip of the coin, Kucera was awarded the Silver Skates, but Stundl will receive a like prize, which will be ordered immediately by THE TRIBUNE.

Iowa Gets Second Prize.

The deadlock for first place gave Larry Dennis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., the second place skates. All other winners moved up a notch with Wallace Fee, Jr. getting the bronze pair of skates. The medals for fourth and fifth places went to Tony Neverz and Art Conroy, respectively.

The team representing the Eden T. Brekke Skating club, coached by Pete Miller, won possession of the Walter Eckersall Memorial Team trophy for the period of one year. Brekke skaters scored 345 points. Beside sharing in the senior men's championship, the Brekke team won the boys' intermediate and juvenile and the girls' senior events.

Lap Award to Dennis.

Larry Dennis won the gold medal for lap prize in the senior race. He was first for the greatest number of the 12 laps over the two mile course.

Priscilla Richey of the Brekke club won the Girls' Senior championship after a close race with a team mate, Merle Newman. Miss Richey won the Girls' Junior title in 1929.

Marvin Thomson, winner of the Midgets' championship, who represented the Avondale playground, is a son of George Thomson who took first place in the Junior race in 1920. Charles Schultz, Brekke Skating club, won the Juvenile Boys' race. The victor in the Junior Boys' race was Robert Sherman, a former Juvenile champion. Sherman represented the Olympic Skating club.

Genevieve Swierkos Wins.

The first preliminary races in the boys' midget class started shortly after 5 o'clock. The youngsters under 12 years of age reported for their racing numbers at 9 o'clock and they were the first to reach the Waveland avenue rink. Two qualified in each of the preliminaries and they raced on the eight-lap-to-a-mile track which Paul Staff had surveyed on the flooded tennis courts.

By having the lower age divisions compete on the tennis courts the six lap track adjacent to Sheridan road was saved for the finals and the more experienced competitors. While the ice was excellent, it was necessary to flood the surface twice during the early evening to eliminate the precipitation of silt which had been blown during the day by the 30 mile an hour gale from the south.

Only One Bad Spill.

Watson Thoms was the only casualty in the early qualifying events. He fell and received a cut above his left eye, but the doctors soon fixed him up. His greatest disappointment was the fact that he could not continue in the semi-finals.

The number of contestants in the younger age divisions far exceeded the estimates of the clerks, but the rush of skaters was handled with the usual rapidity and ease by the officials. The temperature was almost perfect. It was just cold enough so that the ice did not melt and yet as warm as any skating weather could be. The weather conditions were in sharp contrast to the meet last winter at La Follette park when the temperature dropped to 10 degrees below zero.

The success of the races was due in no small part to the efficient work of the officials who reported early in the afternoon to pass out the racing numbers and who stayed until award of prizes was made. Summaries:

BLUE RIBBONS BEAT EAU CLAIRE IN HOCKY, 5 TO 0

The Blue Ribbons scored three goals in the first period, Butala netting the first two on passes from Karam. Kitte carried the puck down the center of the rink for the third score. A pass, Lunde to Peterson, brought the only score in the second session, and a double pass, Tolen to Kuzma to Peterson, ended the scoring in the final period.

Spartas Meet Cleveland Sunday in Cup Matches

The Sparta Leaders, local professional soccer champions, will play the Indians of Cleveland at the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue Sunday in the second round of the national cup. A victory for the Spartas would put them in the western semi-finals, along with the Wonderbolts in the Chicago district.

Park Officials Help to Make Meet a Success

THE TRIBUNE extends thanks to the officials and the representatives of Lincoln park who made possible the success of last night's Silver Skates Derbies. In particular THE TRIBUNE wishes to thank the commissioners of Lincoln park: Alfred D. Plamondon, president; Martin H. Kennelly, vice president; William Schlake, auditor; G Bernard Anderson; Walter J. Cummings, Frank Bobrytzke, Louis H. Harrison, Bernard P. Jung, Frank M. Gordon, J. Vines and Tilden Must Appear in Court Tomorrow

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines and William Tilden, professional tennis players, have been cited to appear before a Superior court commissioner Friday for a hearing to determine Vines' ability to pay a $3,500 judgment obtained by John Albright for injuries received when struck by Vines' motor car. Tilden was called as a witness as to how much money Vines has received since turning professional.

Knight and Rosenbloom Meet Tonight

Not since 1894, when Jim Corbett knocked out Charlie Mitchell in the third round, has a championship bout been staged in this state because of a legislative act.

The law still is on the books, but despite the fact the Rosenbloom-Knight bout has not been advertised as a championship affair, it already has been agreed that the man who wins will be recognized as the world's light heavyweight titleholder.

The bout, scheduled for 15 rounds, will be held in the Madison Square Garden arena for a baby milk fund charity.

How successful the fight will be from a financial standpoint is problematical. Rosenbloom has been given a $15,000 guarantee, which was the advance sale tonight, according to Garden officials.

STODDARD, HURT IN STEEPLECHASE FALL, RECOVERING

The race was only the second for Stoddard, son of the chairman of the United States Golf association, since he was injured at Belmont Park, L. I., last May while schooling some of his own horses. He suffered a skull fracture in that fall.

State Rifle and Pistol Matches to Open Feb. 16

The annual program of small bore rifle and pistol matches, conducted by the Illinois State Rifle association, will open on Feb. 16 it was announced last night. The first event will be THE TRIBUNE match in which both teams and individuals participate. Firing is at 75 feet, any sights permitted. A similar match, limited to iron sights, will also be fired at the standard 50 foot range. In addition a special shoot for marksmen who have never won a competition medal will be staged early in March. The program winds up with a pistol match late in March.

HAGEN QUIT? WHY, MAN, HE'S JUST STARTING!

Plans Trip South for Few Tournaments.

Maybe Babe Ruth is about to sign off after another year of baseball. Maybe Bill Tilden's legs are beginning to slip a mite. But the third member of sport's greatest showmanship trio—Walter Hagen—is still going to keep on wowing them. He made that plain yesterday in his new rôle of business man at the National Sports Goods Distributors' association show at the Hotel Sherman.

There was a bit of a rumor through the golfing grape vine that the suave Walter was about to retire from competitive golf, a morsel inspired by his conspicuous absence from the current winter tournaments to date. The Haig, making a typical Hagen entrance [he came upon the scene an hour after his scheduled arrival], soon put an end to any fears that he would no longer take part in the big time shows of golf. However, he does plan to devote more time to the business end of golf, particularly as concerns the Detroit golf factory, where he has concentrated his activities for more than two months, dividing them as adviser, idea begetter, and salesman.

He'll Play in South.

"It's very easy for folks to overlook the fact that while you may go on winning tournament after tournament on the winter circuit, you don't wind up with much of an actual profit, for it's an expensive proposition to be jumping from place to place."

The old master who has been an unfailing gallery favorite since he first won the national open in 1914 is still possessed of the yen to get back and wallop the little white pill, and will presently take steps to satisfy that yen. He plans to compete in a number of southern tournaments, including events at Tampa, Miami, Charleston, and of course the August national open in March, when Hagen will meet up with the country's leading amateurs and professionals, not the least of whom will be his old rival, Bobby Jones.

He Likes Western Open.

Hagen expressed himself as happy that the western open, which he has dominated for several years, would not be abandoned, as had been proposed, but will be held at the Country club of Peoria in June. He intimated, however, that it might be almost a physical impossibility for the leading pros to compete in the national, western, and British open events because of the proximity of the dates of the three.

He pointed out that in the case of the British tourney the majority of American players would rather arrive before the tournament to get in a few licks on the English courses than to dash from the boat to the first tee. On this account he advanced the suggestion that it might be possible for the western association to shift the dates of its open to late summer.

Hagen will compete in the United States open, will make every effort to go to England, and even hinted that he may stay abroad at considerable length if he does go across. He plans to spend a week or more in June practicing at the Merion Cricket club near Philadelphia, the scene of the 1934 national open.

WOOD BREAKS RECORD

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., broke the course record today to lead the field in the first 18 holes of the fifth annual $7,500 Agua Caliente open golf meet. He scored 34—33—67.

The previous record for Agua Caliente's 6,800 yard layout was 68, shared jointly by Gene Sarazen in 1930 and Fred Morrison and Leo Diegel in 1932.

Runyan, who has not been playing up to his game in recent weeks, was steady today. He was even par for the first nine and shaved perfect figures by two strokes in the second. Cox duplicated Runyan's score, going out in 35 and coming home in 34.

Ralph Guldahl, now a Los Angeles pro, got 35 each way for a sub-par 70. Tied with Diegel at 71 were George Von Elm of Los Angeles; Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill.; Stanley Kertes of Los Angeles, Mark Fry of San Francisco, and Will C. Hunter of Los Angeles.

Olin Dutra had a 74 and Denny Shute a 75.

Ogren Meets Dukelsky in Arcadia Ring

Ogren is boxing in his best form. He resumed competition a few weeks ago after a layoff due to a jaw fracture. In his latest start he knocked out Young Stuhley at the Stadium.

Fans have made Ogren the choice to win, probably because of his punching ability. However, Dukelsky possesses a straight left to the face that piles up points and he may surprise those who favor Ogren. When Dukelsky maneuvers an opponent into position for a hard left or right to the head or body he seldom misses the mark.

Lenny Cohen will fight Bobby O'Dowd of Sioux City, Ia., in a five round semi-final at 120 pounds. Other matches:

Art Zimmer vs. Davey White [4], 130.
Mickey Misko vs. Tom Habel [4], 156.
Floyd Embrey vs. Frank Mirabal [4], 120.
Steve Roberts vs. Lou Bolton [4], 170.

Johnny Phagan and Chuck Reed, local 152 pound fighters, have signed to head the program at Rainbo Fronton tomorrow pending approval by the Illinois athletic commission. This must be obtained because of Phagan's sheduled match with Solly Dukelsky at Marigold Gardens Monday. A commission rule forbids windup boxers competing more than once before five days have expired. George Schrosbree and Al Schiarato, lightweights, are paired in a four round preliminary match at the Fronton. Another will bring together Johnny Bailey and Sammy Adams, 148 pounders.

Nestor Bruggman, welterweight runnerup to Bob La Monte in the C. Y. O. amateur boxing tournament, may face La Monte again in the main event of a show tomorrow night at Our Lady of Pompeii auditorium. Other engagements are:

Sammy Scoleri and Phil Mario, 112.
Dick Marquis and Jim Killeen, 120.
Dan Valleri and Ed Giffee.
Otto Fischal and Joe Pyzik, 160.

Judge Francis Allegretti, Bernard Barasa, Judge Nuncio Bonelli, Rocco De Stefano and Joseph Castruccio, Italian consul, are to speak on the the formation of an Italian Youth organization.

Henry Rothier's six round contest against Billy Miller at Milwaukee Wednesday has been canceled. Frank Misko, Saginaw, Mich., middleweight, leaves for Milwaukee Sunday for his eight round windup against Tony Bruno.

Leo Rodak, featherweight, will be out of action for three or four weeks because of dental treatment. . . . Champion Barney Ross will go to Kansas City, Mo., Saturday instead of today for his bout with Pete Nebo Wednesday.

Joe Lubin, a west sider, is among the favorites to win the middleweight championship in the Jewish Organized Youth amatuer boxing tournament which will be held at the Jewish People's institute Monday and Tuesday. Lubin is a hard puncher and has won his first seven bouts, four by knockouts.

Phil Kenneally, John Logan, and Frank Schultz, lightweight, heavyweight, and flyweight champions of the Catholic Youth organization, will appear on the amateur card tonight at C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street. Kenneally opposes John Esposito, Logan fights Tom Kenneally, and Schultz faces Jack Sullivan. Preliminary bouts:

Joe Sprafka vs. Al Oddo.
Tony Carlucci vs. John Kurak.
Joe Minneci vs. Bob Wiley.
Tony Bartutus vs. Tony Catalino.
Lorenzo Lovings vs. Ed Jackson. P. M.

RIVERSIDE WINS, 38-23.

Talking It Over

Coach Dick Hanley returned to Evanston yesterday after spending the last six weeks in California where he coached the East All-Star team in its New Year's game against the West.

Following the game he visited friends and relatives on the Pacific coast. He spent most of the time in Los Angeles where he acquired a heavy coat of tan on the golf courses.

An ardent golfer, he admitted devoting most of his vacation to playing golf. He scored a hole-in-one on the course at Palo Alto just before the East-West game.

Bears Sensation on Coast.

The Chicago Bears football team is creating something of a sensation in California, according to Hanley. Red Grange and his teammates have held the spot light ever since their arrival on the coast, he said.

"Those Californians will apparently go for football the entire year," he said, "the wide open game that the Bears have introduced went great on the coast and the Chicago team made many friends out there as a result."

Hanley will leave for New York tonight to attend a meeting of the football coaches' advisory rules committee which has been called for Saturday by Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the committee. This group has been appointed to draw up suggested rules changes for the national rule committee.

Start Drills Next Week.

Upon his return early next week, Coach Hanley will start preliminary spring practice drills. The work will consist mostly of indoor drills and black board theory. As soon as weather permits the kickers and passers will start outdoor work with the remainder of the squad reporting later on.

Hanley was encouraged to learn on his arrival in Evanston that the football candidates as a whole were well up in their grades and that there would probably be a few casualties as a result of the semester examinations now in progress.

BATTALINO, DUE IN BROOKLYN, IS FOUND AT HOME

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, who was scheduled to fight Al Barra in a ten round bout in Brooklyn tonight, returned to his home here late today. He had been missing since Monday.

Battalino said that when he found he could not get into proper shape for the Brooklyn bout he notified his manager, Pete Reilly, he would make no further attempts at a comeback. He had been in Boston visiting friends, he said.

110 Battle for Golden Gloves in Davenport Meet

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The fifth annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE Daily Times Golden Gloves tournament opened here tonight at the new Masonic temple with a large crowd in attendance. The show will be continued tomorrow night and next week. Twenty-nine bouts were staged tonight in the three most popular divisions, 126, 135 and 147 pound weights.

Tomorrow night the 112, 118 and 160 pounders will get into action and some of the winners of tonights bouts will be back in the ring for their second round scrapps.

With 110 boys weighed and examined the entry this year has shattered all records for the Times tourney. Twenty-eight communities in eastern Iowa and western Illinois are represented. Last year the entry list reached 86, being the largest since the tournament opened in 1930. Last minut entries last night brought the total entry to 165, but 57 dropped out when they decided they were not in the best of condition for the battle.

Four champions from the 1933 team were on hand for the preliminary meeting. Buzz Green of Colona, heavyweight, will defend his title as will Cliff Bourdeau of Davenport, winner of the 118 pound championship in 1933.

BIG BLOOMINGTON FIELD

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Amateur boxers from all parts of central Illinois are getting ready for the Daily Pantagraph's first annual Golden Gloves tournament. The bouts will be staged in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Feb. 13, 14, and 15.

More than 50 boxers have already entered the tournament. The entries close on Feb. 5 and it is expected that about 90 boys will compete for the eight divisional championships.

A number of the entries include college athletes from Illinois Wesleyan, University of Illinois, Illinois State Normal, Eureka college, and Millikin.

De Pauw Victor, 55 to 32, Over Charleston Teachers

Greencastle, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—De Pauw university ran up its largest score of the season tonight in defeating Charleston Teachers basketball team, 55 to 32. Townsend, De Pauw's center, made 18 points for high individual scoring.

Miller Whips Covelli in Ten Round Battle

U. S. Matches to Decide Ping Pong Debate

The National Intercity team ping-pong championship meet, which opens Saturday at the Morrison hotel, will go a long way toward deciding arguments over form and technique.

One of the subjects under debate is the method of holding the racket. The penholder advocates will be there giving support to youthful Aaron Boksenbom, Cleveland champion, and Billy Condy, Chicago title holder. Both use the penholder grip and believe it is superior to the more universally accepted tennis grip.

Strong Defense Helps.

In almost every sport the best defense is a good offense, and ping pong is no exception. Many topnotch players insist that the one who keeps getting the ball back, no matter how hard it is hit, usually will win. On the other hand, there are a large number who advocate hitting every ball as hard as possible and thus blasting their way to victory.

Both styles of play will be much in evidence at the Morrison. Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis, who has recently won both the Indiana and Ohio state championship, and Merle Arens of Dayton, are both great hitters. It will be interesting, however, to see what a careful player like Jimmy Jacobson of New York, national champion, or Vernon Tietjen of St. Louis, will do against this style of play.

The new and baffling finger spin serves will bear close watching. The argument over these fascinating serves is heated. Some say they are harmful to the game, while others declare they improve it. One player will say that a smart opponent finds no difficulty in handling them, but another retorts that the player with the best finger spins is bound to win. Carlton Prouty of the Chicago team has developed some new ones that veer off the table at right angles.

Matches in Three Groups.

Some believe that a ping-pong player who plays tennis has an advantage over one who does not. Coleman Clark, captain of the Chicago team and former captain of the University of Chicago tennis team, believes that tennis experience is valuable provided he can shorten his swing, snap his wrist, and stroke the ball so as to impart topspin.

Tietjen and Portnoy of St. Louis are excellent tennis players. On the other hand, Alan Lobell of New York, who has been one of the sensations of the east and is now attending New York university, has never had a tennis racket in his hand.

The matches are to be played in a series of three sessions, the first of which will run from 1 to 5 on Saturday. Play will be resumed at the second session starting at 7 o'clock on Saturday night and will wind up with the third session on Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

MAROONS AND ICKES WRESTLE IOWA TONIGHT

Raymond Ickes, son of the secretary of the interior, will compete for the University of Chicago wrestling squad for the first time this season tomorrow night when the Maroons meet Iowa in Bartlett gymnasium. Ickes will compete in the 155 pound class. His opponent will be Clarence Johnson. Ickes has been kept off the mat for two weeks because of a broken nose received in a polo game at Illinois.

Winning Ping-Pong

BY COLEMAN CLARK.
[National Champion 1932.]

THE PENHOLDER GRIP.

In using the penholder grip hold the handle of the racket in your fingers as if it were a pen, as pictured. In the arrangement of the fingers there are many variations, but most experts use the thumb and forefinger. In executing either forehand or backhand shots with this grip the ball is struck on the SAME side of the racket.

Give the tennis grip, described in the previous article, a fair trial before discarding it in favor of the penholder and regardless of which one you adopt remember that slight variations are permissible. However, avoid radical ones, for in the long run you will make no mistake in sticking to sound principles which have been tried and tested.

Individualism in ping-pong grips is all right so long as it has the sound foundation of good form behind it.

Chicagoans on Olympic Game Committees

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The American Olympic committee set up the framework today for the selection and direction of more than half the 1936 United States Olympic athletes with the announcement of membership of seven games committees. This brings the total of committees named to 12, leaving 11 more to be decided later.

Several Chicagoans were given places on the committees. Among them are George T. Donoghue, president of the Central A. A. U. and superintendent of the south parks; Nelson Metcalf, athletic director of the University of Chicago, and Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern athletic director, members of the men's track and field committee.

On the boxing committee the Chicagoans are Capt. Roy Davis, chairman of the Central A. A. U. registration committee, and Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Mrs. Richard Folsom of Chicago is included in the group in charge of women's swimming while Frank W. Blankley of Chicago is on the men's swimming list along with Matt Mann, University of Michigan coach.

Kurtz Again President of Sports Goods Dealers

Louis C. Kurtz Jr. of Des Moines, Ia., was reëlected president of the National Sporting Goods Distributors' association at the close of the fourth annual convention of that body at the Sherman hotel yesterday. Vern McMillan of Terre Haute, Ind., was named vice president and John H. Hatton of Kansas Ctiy, Mo., was reelected secretary treasurer.

Groundhog Is Back in Print; It's an Old Gag

BY BOB BECKER.

The common woodchuck or groundhog is about to have the spotlight turned on him because of a very ridiculous superstition. According to the popular story the groundhog is supposed to rouse himself from his long winter sleep tomorrow, glance at the calendar to find it is Candlemas day, and then come out of his den for a squint at the weather.

If this brilliant prognosticator steps out of his den and sees his shadow, according to the story, our weather will continue cold for some time and spring will be late. If the groundhog does not see his shadow, it is cause for three cheers and celebrations, in as much as our weather will be warm and balmy.

Origin of Tale Lacking.

The origin of this ridiculous superstition, which has become a national institution and thus heaped upon the groundhog no end of entertaining publicity, can only be surmised. It is not definitly known. At any rate the tale is strictly fantastic.

The woodchuck hibernates during the cold winter months. Before cold weather comes the animal has established a comprehensive system of underground chambers, where it can curl up for a long sleep. Before turning in, he has crammed himself with food until he is rolling in fat. It is his fat which tides him over during his sleep. The animal does not store up food in his den.

They Do More than Sleep.

This winter hibernation is really more than just sleep. Experiments have been conducted with live animals proving that the woodchuck actually is in a condition of suspended animation. When he curls up in his den, his temperature approximates that of his surroundings, the heart action slackens and respiration is so slight that one might think the animal was dead. Groundhogs have rolled around like a ball on a rug without being able to get one move out of the animal. In the spring when warm weather comes the groundhog responds to a rise in temperature and becomes active again.

LAYDEN AND 1933 PLAYERS ATTEND ROTARY BANQUET

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Elmer Layden, the 1933 Notre Dame football team, and Central High school's northern Indiana championship eleven were honored at the annual gridiron banquet of the South Bend Rotary club at the Oliver hotel today. About 800 attended.

HAWKS SEEK 1ST PLACE IN BATTLE WITH CANADIENS

Gardiner Sees Chance for New Shutout Mark.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Tied with the New York Rangers for first place in the United States division of the National Hocky league, the Chicago Blackhawks arrived here late this afternoon from Ottawa to battle the Canadiens tomorrow night. The teams have clashed three times to date with the Canadiens winning once in Montreal and the Blackhawks the other two in Chicago.

A win for the Hawks might give them undisputed possession of first place. The Detroit Red Wings, a point behind the Hawks, are tackling the rampant Boston Bruins, who, with Eddie Shore back in their ranks, are out in a savage way to regain lost ground, and the New York Rangers will have to use every trick in their repertoire to defeat the league leading Toronto Maple Leafs whom the Rangers meet at Toronto.

With nine shutouts to his credit thus far, Chuck Gardiner, Blackhawks goalie, bids fair to eclipse the National Hocky league record of 12, which he established in the season of 1930-'31. Gardiner has 17 games left of the 1933-'34 schedule to accomplish the feat.

The Hawks leave immediately after tomorrow's game for Chicago where they will meet the Boston Bruins Sunday night.

CODE TO CONTROL ALL PHASES OF BUILDING SIGNED

President Asks Solution of Union Disputes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A code for the construction industry, rated the nation's second largest in normal times, was approved today by President Roosevelt and will become effective Feb. 27 over every form of building, from roads to skyscrapers.

The President, in approving it, requested that the code created national construction planning and adjustment board take immediate steps to find a solution for jurisdictional disputes, the interunion squabbles which in the past have tied up millions of dollars worth of work while labor groups fought over which one should do some part of the building work.

President to Name Leader.

The new board will be half labor, half industrial, with twenty members under leadership of a presidential appointee. Its creation, with supplementary regional boards and other measures for safeguarding labor interests, ended a four month deadlock over the code.

He pointed out that the industry in normal years employed up to 3,000,000 men in summer months and could absorb half the remaining unemployment in the country if it became active again, but he warned that the code was not in itself capable of effecting this restoration.

Two Other NRA Moves.

Signature of the code was accompanied by two other important NRA steps. Johnson approved a new and apparently simpler standard formula for bank service charges to depositors. The national labor board anticipated issuance of a presidential executive order by sending an investigator immediately to the plants of the Weirton Steel company in Pennsylvania and West Virginia to poll employés on the need for an election on the issue of union representation.

The new bank regulations were issued with a proviso that each clearing house association must submit to Johnson for approval the actual schedules it decides upon before the banks can start any new charges. The proposed public hearing Feb. 16 on the original bank plan to institute 4 cents a check and other high charges all over the country was scrapped by today's action. All schedules based on the original plan were ordered revised.

NATL. DISTILLERS FINAL QUARTER SHARE NET $2.21

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Reflecting the increase in business incident to prohibition repeal, National Distillers Products corporation today reported net profit of $4,173,215 for the December quarter of 1933, equal to $2.21 a share on the stock now outstanding. The old stock was split three for one several months ago. Third quarter profit was $1,477,925.

For 1933 the company, in its preliminary report, showed net profit of $6,127,488, equivalent to $3.25 a share on the present stock, compared with $522,179 in 1932. Fourth quarter figures do not include the proportion of earnings accruing from the company's 50 per cent stock ownership in Penn-Maryland, Inc., and its 60 per cent holding in Alex D. Shaw & Co., Inc., which are carried as investments.

BUSINESS GAIN PUTS RYERSON COMPANY ON PROFIT BASIS FOR '33

The sharp upturn in business which developed in the latter half of 1933 is reflected in the annual report to the stockholders of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., the largest independent distributor of steel products in the country. Although suffering an operating loss of about $125,000 for the first six months of 1933, the improvement in the latter half of the year enabled the company to emerge with a net profit for the year of $301,489 as compared with a loss of $255,488 for 1932.

President Edward L. Ryerson Jr. said sales in the last half of the year were 70 per cent over the first six months.

As evidence of the opinion of the management of an improved business outlook, Mr. Ryerson pointed out that inventories were increased from $3,369,193 on Dec. 31, 1932, to $6,279,957 on Dec. 31, 1933.

Mr. Ryerson said that the net earnings of the company for 1933 before depreciation and debenture charges were $617,688. The consolidated balance sheet shows current assets of $9,774,456, including $681,481 cash and $1,235,000 U. S. government securities at par. Current liabilities were given as $628,986. The company paid a special dividend of 25 cents a share out of earnings on Dec. 28.

PWA PROJECTS NEW THREAT TO PRIVATE UTILITY

Securities Endangered by Public Competition.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Munificence of the Public Works Administration in granting loans and gifts to municipalities for the construction of power plants has raised a new problem to confound private utility enterprise, already beset by increasing taxes and agitation for lower rates.

Erection of such publicly owned power plants means disappearance of profits to many competing private plants. The position of stockholders and bondholders of private enterprises is being seriously jeopardized with the prospect that dividends will have to be discontinued in some instances.

Federal funds are obtained by municipalities at a rate which makes it impossible for private capital to compete. Thirty per cent of the federal grants represent outright gifts and the remaining 70 per cent is to be paid back over a period of 40 years. The nominal interest rate is 4 per cent, but including the outright principal gift net cost of the capital is 2.8 per cent.

Private Capital Handicapped.

Private capital cannot be obtained on such terms, and competing companies begin competition with a distinct handicap. The unenviable position of the stock and bond holder was clearly brought out when securities of Oregon utility companies depreciated 55 million dollars in 30 days after the announcement of the federal loan of 45 millions for the lower Columbia river power project. This included companies in the region which would be affected by the Columbia development.

Twelve advances for municipal plants have already been approved by the Public Works Administration. The following are grants made so far: Concordia, Mo., $47,000; Kennett, Mo., $150,000; Middlesboro, Ky., $328,000; Allegan, Mich., $410,000; California, Mo., $155,000; Culpepper, Va., $160,000; Cushing, Okla., $350,000; Burlington, Kas., $118,000; Moberly, Mo., $700,000; Fort Collins, Colo., $738,000; Sheffield, Ala., $230,000; Tuscumbia Ala. $130,000.

In each of the communities a private company is now operating and will be in direct competition to the municipal plant.

The private companies furnish service to several towns and the loss of business in one community in their areas in many cases may cause a decline in gross revenue sufficient to erase profits.

Charge Unfair Aid.

In some instances the grants have been made before voters approved the project. Utility men declare that in this way the administration helped the groups campaigning for the municipal project.

The special tax of 3 per cent on gross billings of utilities imposed by the last congress, along with other taxes which private companies are forced to pay, thus goes into the general pot from which the government helps municipalities build competing enterprises.

Leaders in the industry are hopeful the administration will agree to present demands that none of the next public works appropriation will be used to endow plants in towns where private companies are now operating. Otherwise the future of the utility security holder will be extremely doubtful, they declare.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The month closes with cotton goods very firm. Sales of unfinished broadcloths, combed and carded have been large. Some prices are ¼ cent a yard higher. New prices on blankets showed a rise of 50 per cent over the lows of last year, and there are some instances of larger advances. Worsted dress goods are more active. Rayon yarn sales in acetate lines and for knitting purposes are taking care of nearby production. Silk goods remain steady and in fair demand. Burlaps are firm.

Week's Power Output Sags, but Holds Gain Over 1933

A slight seasonal contraction occurred last week in the country's electricity output, but the margin over production in the like week of 1933 showed a fractional improvement, the Edison Electric institute reports. The output in Chicago and its lead over that for the corresponding week of 1933 were the lowest so far this year.

The national total amounted to 1,610,542,000 kilowatt hours, the lowest since the week ended Jan. 6, which included the New Year's holiday. For the week ended Jan. 20 the production of electric power was 1,624,846,000 kilowatt hours, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent more than the last week, compared with 1 per cent between the outputs for like periods in 1933. The output for the week ended Jan. 28, 1933, totaled 1,469,636,000 kilowatt hours.

9.6 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

The margin maintained by last week's national output over that of the like week of 1933 was 9.6 per cent, against 9.5 in the preceding week, 10.1 for the week ended Jan. 13, and 9.7 for the first week of this year.

In the Chicago district electricity output for the week ended Jan. 27 amounted to 99,292,000 kilowatt hours, or 4.8 per cent in excess of the total of 94,706,000 in the corresponding week last year. The preceding week's figure was 101,527,000 kilowatt hours, showing a gain of 5.4 per cent. The announcement of Commonwealth Edison company suggests that the slight falling off in local output is mainly attributable to weather conditions.

Wk. ended—	1934.	1933.	Pct. incr.
Jan. 27	99,292,000	94,706,000	4.8
Jan. 20	101,527,000	93,700,000	8.4
Jan. 13	103,994,000	94,322,000	10.4

Changes by Divisions.

In the seven major territorial divisions the output of four increased the lead over output last year and that of three reduced the margin. In the middle Atlantic region output rose 9.9 per cent, against 9.3 in the preceding week; in the central industrial, 13.1, against 13 in the southern states, 7.9, against 7.7; on the Pacific coast, 2.8, against 3.

On the other hand the margin in New England declined from 10 per cent to 8.6, that in the west central area from 5.6 to 5.2, and that for the Rocky mountains from 18.2 to 17.5.

Several companies reported that their outputs of electric power surpassed substantially those of the same time last year.

BUYING SWITCH VIEWED AS TEST OF STEEL CODE

New Rates Arouse Auto Makers.

First stirrings were reported yesterday in a fight which may prove the first real test of the rights of consumers under the industrial code era.

Dissatisfaction which has been brewing among steel consumers over provisions of that industry's code came to a head. General Motors corporation, which is known to oppose some of the provisions of the steel code, was said to have sharply curtailed the tonnage alloted to leading steel companies and to have placed the business with a number of smaller concerns.

In steel quarters the step was interpreted not only as a protest against the steel code's ban on preferential prices on large purchases but also against prospective price advances in the second quarter.

Deny Plant Acquisition.

Iron Age, steel trade journal, comments on the developments in the industry, but does not mention the General Motors corporation, referring only to a "large automobile manufacturer."

Confirmation from General Motors that it was scattering its business as a protest against the code could not be obtained. Reports, however, that it is negotiating for the purchase of the Corrigan-McKinney Steel company of Cleveland as the first step toward acquiring its own steel producing facilities were denied. In Cleveland the story would not down and rumor credited General Motors with obtaining an option on the plant.

Blame Large Producers.

Blame for objectionable features of the steel code is placed on the larger companies by the automobile manufacturers.

"The drive to win back preferential prices comes at a time when the steel code is being attacked at Washington for discriminating against the smaller industries," Iron Age said yesterday.

"Steel producers," the review added, "cannot please both large and small buyers, but complaints of smaller interests are surprising in view of the code provision for price equality among all classes of consumers irrespective of size."

Large steel orders have been placed by the automobile industry in the last week and some producers of sheets and strips are sold out for the balance of the quarter, the journal reported.

Operations Up 3 Points.

Operations for the industry as a whole rose to 35 per cent of capacity, a gain of 3 points for the week, and the highest level reached since the first of the year. In the Chicago area the average rose one point to 30½ per cent. In the valley district the rate advanced 5 points to 25 per cent and may reach 40 before the close of the week, it was said. In Pittsburgh the previous week's rate of 21 per cent was maintained.

Railroad tonnage is slow in materializing, the review reported.

NATIONAL STEEL REPORTS BIG GAIN IN 1933 PROFITS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Indicative of a steady upward trend in the steel business, the National Steel corporation reported today a net profit for 1933 of $2,812,406, equivalent to $1.30 a share on 2,156,382 shares of common stock.

The figure represented more than a million dollar increase over 1932 when the profit was $1,662,919, or 77 cents a share. The quarter ended Dec. 31 showed a net profit of $242,530.

The total operating profit for the year before deducting taxes, depreciation and depletion and interest charges was $8,392,209 as compared to $7,031,026 a year ago.

ON NEW JOB TODAY

W. J. CUMMINGS.

Walter J. Cummings will take over his post as board chairman and chief executive officer of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company this morning.

Mr. Cummings arrived in the city yesterday from Washington where he relinquished his positions as executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury and chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Upon his arrival yesterday he went immediately to the Drake hotel where he conferred with bank officials and friends. He declined to discuss the policies he will institute at the Continental, but told reporters that he was in fine health after his short vacation at Atlantic City.

DIVIDEND RECORD FOR JANUARY IS BEST IN YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—The recent improvement by months noted in declarations of dividends was emphasized in January, when, for the first time since the curtailment of payments to shareholders began, the declarations for a month were in excess of those for the corresponding month the year previous.

Dividends declared in January totaled $212,883,853 for 801 corporations, compared with $178,839,359 for 739 companies in the same month of 1933. This favorable turn was caused principally by a sharp increase in extra dividends, increases in regular dividend rates, back payments and resumed payments. Fewer corporations voted payments less than a year ago.

Sixty-four extra dividends were declared in January against 25 a year ago; rates were increased on 49 issues, compared with 8 a year ago; 23 initial payments were voted, contrasted with 9 the year before; back dividends were ordered paid on 88 stocks, compared with 4 in January, 1933, while payments were resumed on 56 issues, against 12 last year.

Stocks Soar in West

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's action after the close of the New York Stock exchange in pegging the dollar at 59.06 cents sent stocks whirling upward in the last hour of trading on San Francisco exchanges today. Some closing prices here, compared with those of Wall street were:

New York, Jan. 31.—Approval by the house of a record peace time naval program including large aircraft purchases stimulated speculative interest in aviation stocks today and gains amounting to as much as 3 points were scored by favored issues of the group. Douglas was the leader and at one time was selling as much as 4 points above its previous close. United Aircraft was strong and active and small net advances were made by Aviation of Delaware, Wright, and others.

Apart from this section, however, the market looked rather limp. Profit taking brought on by the forward price movements of the last few days went on steadily and broke many trading favorites as much as 2 or 3 points. Raids on the leaders occurred repeatedly under cover of buying flurries in certain departments such as the aviation or liquor groups.

Distillery Issues Rise.

Publication of the fourth quarter earnings of National Distillers and rumors that the stock would be placed on a $2 annual basis brought a flurry of buying into that issue in the afternoon and the close found its price nearly 2 points better than yesterday.

Dollar Declines in World Market on Devaluation Act

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—Trading in the foreign exchange market was thrown into a turmoil late today by the proclamation of President Roosevelt officially devaluing the American dollar at 59.06 per of its old gold parity. The dollar promptly lost its early gain and sold down to an indicated gold quotation of 61.50 cents as measured in terms of the French gold franc, as compared with last night's price of 62.31 cents. The British pound sterling also advanced sharply in American funds, recovering from an early low of $4.97⅛ to close at $5.02, up 2½ cents for the day.

Announcement Is Surprise.

Wall street was prepared for the devaluation at 60 cents, but the actual figure announced came as a surprise, and the resulting confusion led to feverish trading. Dealers said that the final recorded quotations probably did not mean much because of the confusion which existed in the market in the late dealings.

The final quotation on the franc was 6.37 cents, against 6.26⅝ cents yesterday. To bring the dollar down to its new gold parity foreign exchange dealers figured that the franc would have to rise to about 6.63 cents.

What the eventual worth of sterling in American funds will be was a matter of conjecture since it is already off gold. In financial quarters it was pointed out that the President's action has checked the tendency of the dollar to rise. The action, it was said, may well cause a huge flow of gold to this country and remove the necessity of further purchase of foreign gold by the administration. Initially an erratic market in sterling is looked for. The way is open for international currency agreements, however, and Washington was said to favor a ratio of about $5.10 for the pound.

In banking quarters here the devaluation was interpreted as a return, tentatively at least, to an international gold bullion standard with a definite stabilization in terms of foreign gold currencies, but a prohibition of internal circulation of gold.

Big Credit Expansion.

The step is expected to lead to a huge expansion of credit and facilitate the floatation of the additional 5 billions of government bonds which the treasury proposed to market before June 30 next.

Nearly all foreign currencies shared in the advance against the dollar. The Canadian dollar closed at 99⅛ cents in United States funds, an advance of one-quarter of a cent for the day.

TREASURY WILL TRY 182 DAY LOAN PLAN TO PLEASE BANKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—Two series of treasury bills aggregating 175 million dollars were advertised today by Secretary Morgenthau, bids to be received at the federal reserve banks and branches up to 2 p. m. eastern standard time, Monday, Feb. 5. The bills will be dated Feb. 7.

For the first time the treasury will put out a bill issue of more than 91 days, an experimental issue of 50 million dollars in 182 day bills, doubling the maturity of the type that has been issued for several years.

The treasury on Feb. 7 will borrow about 100 million dollars over the maturity, the latter being $75,335,000. Officials said that the 182 day type bill meets the desire of banks for longer maturity.

The other series will be for 125 million dollars in 91 day bills.

January Stock Turnover Heaviest in Six Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—The New York Stock exchange today reported that, including inactive issues, transfers during January amounted to 54,556,849 shares, the heaviest since July. An exchange seat sold for $190,000, or $40,000 above the last sale.

Ford Expected to Build Huge Fair Exhibit

BY AL CHASE.

Henry Ford has been assigned a site at A Century of Progress by the exposition authorities. If he signs a contract, as he is expected to do shortly, the Ford Motor company will erect one of the largest and most expensive structures at the 1934 World's Fair—a building with more exhibit space than the Travel and Transport building.

HENRY FORD.

The exhibit will cost several millions of dollars. Tentative plans by Albert Kahn, Detroit architects, call for a structure 840 feet long and about 200 feet wide.

Site South of 31st Street.

The site assigned Ford is on both sides of the old Midway, just south of the 31st street entrance. The Ford building is proposed for the west side of the Midway on the grounds occupied last year by the Indian village.

Directly across the Midway and extending to the water's edge, the space formerly occupied by part of Camp Whistler will be used by Ford for an open air park and resting place, if present plans are carried out. Elaborate landscaping is contemplated, with trees, shrubs, lawns and possibly several fountains.

Steel Inquiry Reported.

Although the Ford plans have not yet reached the stage where anything official is being announced, the Ford Motor company, it was stated yesterday, has inquired of Chicago steel companies for 500 tons of structural steel for its Century of Progress building.

It was reported that bids for the big Ford exhibit building will be taken about Feb. 10. It also was stated that a metal board would be used for the outside walls, making a fireproof structure.

UNION PACIFIC HEAD SAYS RAIL BUSINESS GAINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific Railroad company, said after a call at the White House today that there had been considerable increase in the railroad business.

"During the second third weeks of this month there was an increase in every commodity we handled," he said.

Asked to what he attributed this increase, Mr. Gray said:

"I think it is an accumulation of all that is being done."

WARD HAS GAIN IN MAIL ORDER SALES OF 70%

Year-to-Year Rise Best on Record.

January mail order sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. ran 70 per cent ahead of last year, the largest year-to-year gain recorded in such business in the company's 63 years of history. Retail store sales were about 19 per cent above January, 1933, and the combined volume is 40 per cent higher.

These figures, made available yesterday, indicate that mail order unit shipments for the fiscal year ending with the current monthly period will approach the peak volume of 1929.

Mail order sales have expanded steadily since May last year. In October, November, and December all records for mail orders filled were broken. Over 3 million orders were shipped from the company's 9 mail order plants in December, a figure which has never been equaled in the company's history.

"Investment" Buying Gains.

The sensational gain in January mail order volume is explained in part by the fact that January last year was an abnormally poor month.

A significant trend in the recent business noted by the company is the increased demand for so-called capital merchandise or investment articles such as furniture, which was sharply curtailed when consumers were attempting to bring their expenditures into line with reduced incomes.

The last month in which the dollar volume of sales ran behind the year ago figures was in April, 1933. Since the beginning of the depression the trend had been steadily downward, until that time, because of declining prices and reduced buying.

May Reverses Trend.

Beginning with May last year each month's volume recorded a gain over the comparable period of 1932 and November turned in the best comparative gain of 25.3 per cent.

The doom of the mail order business as such has been predicted many times in recent years because of the "urbanizing" of rural sections through the wider ownership of automobiles and extension of hard roads.

To contradict such predictions Montgomery Ward cites the current increase in mail order customers. In November once and December, the company reported, mail order customers increased at the rate of 14,000 daily. Since the first of the month the company's mailing list has expanded at the rate of 2,000 for each business hour, it was stated.

EXEMPT FROM ALL FEDERAL INCOME TAXES

STATE OF ILLINOIS

6% Revenue Notes

Dated February 1, 1934 — Redeemable on or after December 1, 1934

THESE REVENUE NOTES, issued by the State of Illinois and authorized by act of the State Legislature, are, in the opinion of counsel, issued in anticipation of and payable from a general State ad valorem tax now levied and to be collected as a part of the 1934 tax levy for emergency relief. These Revenue Notes may be issued in an amount not to exceed 75% of the amount of the levy specifically provided for by a legislative act of the 58th General Assembly, First Special Session, such levy having been made upon all the taxable property in the State in an amount of $38,000,000.

Another act passed at said First Special Session as one of the group of six acts for emergency relief provides for the submission to popular vote at the Fall election in 1934 of a general obligation State of Illinois Bond Issue in an amount of $30,000,000 with serial maturities and provides for the levy of an annual tax sufficient to meet the principal and interest requirements of the bonds. This tax will be extended and collected only if a sufficient amount is not realized to pay such principal and interest out of the motor fuel or gasoline tax, as a portion of the gasoline tax which is distributed to the several counties and municipalities has been specially appropriated by law for this purpose, each county and municipality contributing in proportion to the amount of relief it receives.

These Revenue Notes are redeemable by lot at any time after December 1, 1934, after fifteen days' public notice, at par and accrued interest, from the proceeds of the sale of this State Bond Issue, if voted; otherwise, said notes will be paid solely as said emergency relief tax levied for the year 1934 becomes available.

The entire proceeds from the sale of these notes are appropriated to the Emergency Relief Fund to be used under the supervision of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission.

New York, Jan. 31.—Sudden demand for United States government securities resulted in an impressive rise in that section of the bond market today on heavy buying attributed to federal sources.

Long term obligations of the government rose 2-32ds to 23-32ds points, with the single exception of the comparatively inactive first Liberty 4¼s which held unchanged. Turnover in the government list was $2,287,100 while that of the listed market as a whole reached $19,615,100. Today's advance in government issues was the widest in several days.

Trend Irregularly Higher.

Gains in domestic corporation bonds were somewhat smaller than has been the case daily for some time. Industrial and railroad bonds showed strength, but public utility issues eased. As it was, however, a number of issues climbed to the highest levels in more than a year. Closing prices on the average were somewhat higher.

Widespread strength was again in evidence for secondary and speculative issues. Substantial gains were recorded by American International 5½s, American Water Works 6s, Alabibi Power 5s, Alleghany 5s, Boston and Maine 4½s and 5s, Childs 5s, Interborough 7s, General Cable, 5½s, New Haven Debentures, Nickel Plate 6s, Louisville and Arkansas First 5s, Penn Dixie 6s, Rutland 4½s, Rio Grande Western Consolidated 4s, Universal Pipe 6s and Wickwire Spencer Convertible 7s.

Foreign Issues Mixed.

Foreign bonds showed considerable irregularity. Most of the German issues pointed higher on news that Germany would give better debt service. Bonds of the Argentine group featured the Latin American issues, rising 1 to 5 points on the news for better trade figures than had been expected.

However, Dutch East Indies loans and most of the United Kingdom issues were easier. French government 7½s lost 1¾ points and Swiss government 5½s, 1¾ points.

National Cash Register.

Investors' Guide: I have 20 shares of National Cash Register stock. It has not paid dividends for some time. —Mrs. M. E. S.

Answer: National Cash Register company, world's largest cash register manufacturer, accounts for about 90 per cent of the business in this country. Foreign sales account for about half of total volume. Although the company's basic patents have expired, constant research and improvement have kept the organization in the forefront and enabled it thus far to avoid the keen competition that exists in the sale of other office equipment. Recently, however, several large concerns have entered the field. The company also is represented in the accounting and labor saving office equipment field.

The bulk of sales is to retail dealers and earnings and sales consequently are subject to conditions in that field. Revival of trade in the second quarter of 1933 boosted sales to $5,682,000. Loss was only $38,000. Although sales increased 20 per cent to $6,927,000 in the third quarter, expenses of new models and a 10 per cent wage increase caused loss to rise to $259,000. Sales for the first nine months of 1933 were $15,868,000 and loss was $842,000. For the corresponding 1932 period sales were $12,610,000 and loss $1,880,000. On Dec. 16, 1933, a press report indicated that operations were again on a profitable basis and that the company would finish the quarter with a profit.

	Gross sales.	Net inc.	*Inc. per shr.
1932	$16,476,000	†$3,399,000	†$2.09
1931	28,870,000	824,000	.51
1930	45,381,000	3,585,000	2.20
1929	57,607,000	8,340,000	5.12

On Sept. 30, 1933, current assets, including cash assets of $3,494,000, totaled $18,443,000 and current liabilities were $1,935,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consisted of 1,428,000 class A and 200,000 class C shares, both with no stated par value. The class A stock was senior to the formerly outstanding class B stock, but declaration of a 20 per cent stock dividend on the A and exchange of the B stock for new class C shares, which have the same right as the A shares, on a two old for one new basis, leaves the company with virtually 1,628,000 shares of one class of stock outstanding.

No dividend has been paid since Oct. 15, 1931. The stock is speculative.

AVIATION ISSUES RISE SHARPLY ON NAVAL PLANS

Schenley was also given a little whirl and improved moderately. United States Industrial Alcohol tried for a time to look up, but the profit takers got after it and it closed lower with the rest of the list. American Commercial Alcohol also closed slightly lower.

Declines in wheat, rubber, silver, and other commodities brought selling into the farm implement and mail order groups, and influenced liquidation to some extent throughout the list.

Railroad stocks were forced to lower levels in spite of an indicated expansion in carloading for last week and the promise of government aid. Losses of 1 to 2 points or more were noted in Atchison, New York Central, and other favorites of the recent buying movement. Observers thought the selling in this quarter was very largely in the nature of realizing.

Old Line Leaders Sag.

Prime industrials like United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, and the like took it easier. Losses among them were generally confined to a point or so.

American Rolling Mill, Shattuck, Burroughs Adding Machine and Childs were early strong spots, but most of them wilted under later selling.

Public utilities held fairly well, although Telephone was a bit draggy.

Oils failed to carry through with their brisk bid for buyers of yesterday. The silvers were down with the metal and gold stocks were in eclipse.

Selling for foreign account was reported evident on a substantial scale through today's early trading. London is understood to have been rather active on the selling side yesterday, but actually to have finished a buyer on balance. Today, however, Europeans were reported liberal sellers on balance presumably realizing on substantial profits accruing to purchases made earlier in the month.

MAJESTIC STOCK, ONCE PROMINENT, IS DELISTED HERE

An echo of a sensational market episode of other years was heard yesterday when governors of the Chicago stock exchange voted to delist the 500,000 common shares of Majestic Household Utilities company. The company was organized by Grigsby-Grunow in 1930. The stock of Majestic was the market sensation of the year, rising from the offering price of $25 to $75 in the space of a few days. It later sold below a dollar and the company was absorbed by the parent company.

The governing committee also voted to remove the common stock of the Wolverine Portland Cement company and the common stock purchase warrants of the Middle West Utilities company, the Midland United Company and the Signode Steel Strapping company.

An additional 248,008 shares of Goldblatt Brothers, Inc., was listed in connection with the recent 100 per cent stock dividend voted by the company.

COTTON RALLIES AT CLOSE; PRICE RANGE IS NARROW

Although cotton prices were lower early yesterday, they rallied toward the last and finished in Chicago unchanged to 4 points net higher and other markets 5 to 8 points higher on futures. Spots were up 5 points in all markets. Houston and Galveston were 11.40 cents, New York 11.75 cents, and New Orleans 11.35 cents.

The market was largely professional, prices holding within a range of 13 points.

PROFIT TAKING, HEDGE SALES PUSH LARD DOWN

Profit taking and hedge sales of lard futures took the bull edge off the market yesterday. The close was unchanged to 5 cents lower on lard futures, and bellies were unchanged to 10 cents lower.

The cash trade did a good business with regular lard at $5.90, and loose and leaf lard at $5. Dry salted clear bellies were $7. Liverpool lard was unchanged.

ALL GRAINS EASE ON PROFIT SALES; WHEAT LOSES 1⅛c

Late Rally Reduces Part of Recession.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Profit taking after a four day straight advance sent wheat prices nearly 2 cents under Tuesday's finish yesterday, with May touching 91¼ cents on the break. A rally from the bottom appeared near the close, but the finish revealed net losses of ¾ to 1¼ cents, May closing at 91⅞ cents and July at 90½ cents.

Corn lost ⅝ to ⅞ cent with May closing at 58⅜ cents, and oats were off ⅝ cent with May at 37¼ cents. Rye eased ¾ to ⅞ cents, with May at 52¼ cents. Barley was ⅝ cents lower at 52 cents for the May contract.

Severe dust storms were reported in parts of South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas and Texas which induced some buying of wheat futures by farmers in the first named state.

Buy on Crop Damage.

Trade broadened in the July delivery as the result of unfavorable crop comments, but buying was not sufficient to offset liberal eastern and local profit taking in May wheat. Winnipeg finished unchanged in Canadian funds, while Liverpool dropped ⅝ to ¾ cents, suffering from Argentine pressure.

Chicago May wheat is at least 10 cents per bushel above a world parity figured in gold. The international wheat conference in London estimated the world price, gold basis, at 46 cents, or 17 cents below the level established late last year as the figure at which import tariffs abroad would start to be lowered. Based on the value of the American dollar in terms of French francs May wheat in Chicago yesterday closed at 57⅛ cents per bushel.

A majority of brokers attributed yesterday's decline to the weakened technical position incident to the recent steady advance and to an outstanding lack of leadership on the bull side.

Corn Futures Decline.

Corn futures moved lower, despite extremely unfavorable reports on the outlook for the new Argentine crop. Some Argentine interests were reported figuring on a maximum exportable surplus of 200,000,000 bushels from the new crop, or about 50,000,000 bushels less than was available during the 1933-34 season. Buenos Aires futures closed ¼ to ⅝ cent lower, with May at 39 cents, or 13¾ cents under Chicago. A decline in the exchange rate was largely responsible for the recession there.

Country offerings of cash corn to arrive were again small, with purchases totaling 32,000 bushels, while the east bought 77,000 bushels. Oats, rye, and barley held within relatively narrow limits, with the northwest a fair buyer of barley at times.

FARMERS CO-OP ASKS DAMAGES OF GRAIN BOARD

The fight over trading privileges between the Farmers' National Grain corporation and the Chicago Board of Trade, recently regarded as settled, has been renewed by C. E. Huff, president of the corporation, in a suit filed in the United States Supreme court which is asked to sustain a sixty day suspension order imposed on the Chicago Board of Trade in 1932.

This penalty was imposed on the grain board by the grain futures commission on the complaint of Farmers' National that it was wrongfully excluded from membership in the Chicago Board of Trade Clearing corporation in violation of the grain futures act.

The board of trade has since admitted the Farmers' National to the clearing house.

President Huff, in asking the Supreme court to review the case says it is to insist that the 60 day suspension order be mitigated, if at all, upon the Board of Trade making good to the Farmers' National several hundred of thousand dollars of extra costs incurred by the corporation during the period of alleged wrongful exclusion from direct clearing privileges.

HOG PRICES FALL ON EVE OF RISE IN PROCESSING TAX

Average Declines 20c; Cattle and Sheep Gain.

The hog market suffered a setback yesterday as the government prepared to increase the processing tax to $1.50 beginning today. The decline in prices was about equal to half of the increase of 50 cents in the tax over the December and January rates.

The increase in the processing tax was to have been made on Jan. 1, but was postponed for one month, supposedly because of low prices. Another increase, to $2 per hundredweight, is scheduled for March 1.

Losses of 15 to 25 cents were general during the forenoon, while spots at the close were down 30 to 35 cents. Both the general average and the practical top registered a 20 cents loss, at $3.60 and $3.80, respectively. One load of specialties early in the day reacher $3.95.

Tax Main Influence.

Packing houses who were in position to slaughter their purchases before midnight, the time set for the increased rate of tax, were on the market fairly early buying at the first decline, but other packing houses remained idle until they found it possible to obtain stock at 25 cents or more decline later in the session.

Reports from the fresh pork trade were bullish, but members of the hog market were more concerned over the tax situation than quotations in the wholesale market. Current quotations still are 30 cents higher than a week ago, and, including the tax, packers are moving hogs at sharply higher prices than at this time last year.

The break in the market yesterday is expected to curtail the supply temporarily. Five leading markets report only 72,000 hogs in sight for today, against 102,300 a week ago.

Cattle Continue Gains.

Further gains were scored in cattle and sheep, the latter closing only 15 cents under the 2½ year high marks. Advances of 25 to 35 cents were recorded in wooled lambs, bringing the best up to $9.35 to all interests.

Yearlings and light steers were strong to 15 cents higher, but the market for big weights was draggy and in places a little easier at the close. Armour and Swift bought almost 100 head averaging about 1,050 pounds at the $7.15 top for full carloads, while the bulk of the steers of beef merit were sold within a range of $4.75 to $6.75. Several loads of 1,752 to 1,810 pound steers cashed at $3.85 to $4.50.

Old mutton sheep sold under lively competition at the highest level since early in 1932. Top old ewes were bought as high as $4.65, comparable to the kinds selling a year ago at $3.00. The market for old mutton sheep is only 10 to 15 cents under the highest January market in four years.

LONDON WOOL.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A good selection of 10,429 bales of wool were offered at today's auction; 8,334 were sold. Buyers for the home trade and Germany bought fairly well at the previous rates and withdrawals of all sorts were large due to the low bids.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, but refiners who have been holding off for the past day or two showed a little more interest, with sales reported of at least 45,000 bags of Porto Rican in February positions and 180,000 bags of Philippines for February-March shipment at 3.25. Futures developed a steadier tone after early declines with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales were 6,100 tons. At one time the market showed net losses of 2 to 4 points under tired long liquidation and scattered selling by commission houses. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
May	1.50	1.51	1.47	1.51	1.51
July	1.54	1.56	1.52	1.55	1.54
Sept.	1.56	1.60	1.56	1.60	1.59
Dec.	1.62	1.65	1.62	1.65	1.65

Refined was unchanged at 4.30c for fine granulated with a moderate inquiry reported.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL.—Bleachable was easier today, reflecting the disappointing action of the lard, hog, and grain markets and scattered realizing and commission house selling. Final prices were 4 to 5 points net lower. Sales were 34 contracts, including 12 exchanges. Bleachable spot, nominal; March closed 4.90c, May 5.06c, July 5.28c, September 5.46c.

HIDE FUTURES.

Hide futures declined 15 to 30 points in New York yesterday with sales of 240,000 pounds. Closing bids—March, 10.50 cents; June, 11.62 cents; September, 12.04 cents; December, 12.35 cents.

STUDEBAKER OFFERS DE LUXE VALUES

1933 STUDEBAKER.

A de luxe 6 sedan with wire wheels, sidemounts, etc. Has adv. free wheeling, automatic starting, automatic choke, safety glass. Positively looks and runs as though never driven a mile. Fully guaranteed. Only $765.

1932 GRAHAM.

1930 CADILLAC.

De luxe sedan with wire wheels, sidemounts, trunks, etc. It was owned by a wealthy family who gave it the finest of care. Today it will still give new car satisfaction. $378.

1930 BUICK.

De luxe Master 6 sedan. We recommend this as the outstanding Buick value in town. It's in the finest of condition. Has wire wheels, side mounts, etc. Don't miss it at $378.

1932 WILLYS SIX.

This coupe has roomy rumble seat, white wall tires, dual horns, etc. It's a very sporty car, and has a sweet running motor. Only $319.

'33 CHEVROLET.

This convertible coupe will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Has Jumbo tires, spacious rumble seat, and extras galore. When we say this Chev. cannot be sold from new, we mean it. $495.

'31 OLDSMOBILE.

Here is a coach that we sincerely claim looks and runs better than many cars priced at $550. But we marked it at $319 for quick sale.

'32 STUDEBAKER.

Some lucky buyer is going to get the bargain of the week. This fine six sedan has Free Wheeling, safety glass, startix, etc. It's 100% in every detail. Special for $495.

'31 CHRYSLER.

You'll be forced to admit, if you saw this convertible coupe, that it's a real beauty. And it runs like clockwork. Rumble seat, 6 wire wheels. A super bargain at $265.

'31 HUPMOBILE.
